Earnest efforts are being made for the purpose of marshalling under one banner all persons who believe that the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 will be a benefit to the country. This one policy is held up as all important and everything else is ignored, with perhaps the exception of the initiative and referendum. There are among all parties a number of persons who believe in cussion of the merits of the silver question we should like to call the attention other side of the case. of the so-called silver republicans to this to the gold standard; the democratic eral Weyler, it is pretty generally underfact. As a national ment is among the possibilities. party it is insignificant, as is evidenced by its meagre representation in congress. Then if we are to have the country divided into a gold party and a silver party, the one will be dominated by the republicans, the other by the democrats. But this is the point that it is desired to make: The dominant element in the silver party will be the democratic; that is a free trade party. truthfully when he laid the bill before that body that "the business of the entire country was in a state of suspension awaiting the action of the senate." The slowness of the senate is proverbial, but why it should be cannot be satisfactorily explained.
