Superintendent was Finnigan. Home as the action was Finnigan. Whichever the guys got often the thrack An muddled up things 'th' devil and back.

Finnigan write to Finnigan. After the wreck was all on again: That in, this Finnigan Reported to Finnigan.

When Finnigan first writ to Finnigan He writ tin pages—did Finnigan. An he tould jist how the smash occurred.

'Full many a tejas, blunderin' wurred bid Finnigan write to Finnigan. After the kyars had gone on agin. That was how Finnigan Reported to Finnigan.

Now Finnigan knowed more than Finnigan. He'd more idigation—had Finnigan. An' it wore'n clane an' completely out To tell what Finnigan writ about In his writin' to Mister Finnigan.

So he writted lack to Finnigan: "Don't do such a sin agin; Make 'em brich, Finnigan." When Finnigan got this from Finnigan. He blundered roid—did Finnigan.

NEWS NOTES. The annual output of Oregon's mines is greater than that of Alaska. Yet there is no excitement here. If cholera and Blue Liver were situated in the icy regions of the frozen North, the people of this state would be glad to reach them.— Eugene Register.

The Seattle man who has hit upon the idea of furnishing Dawson City with electric lights has a long lead on him. With six months of night he should certainly make the scheme a success. Durrant's case will not come before the United States supreme court till October 15, while Butler, the Australian murderer, is kept only a few months ago, has already paid the penalty of his awful crime. Would that American justice was as speedy as that of Australia.— Register.

Albany Democrat The man who roars a paper at Dawson City during the winter, says that a man who had been zero will earn his subscription price of $20 a year for a weekly. He will never be able to show the ink out and will have to hunt for locals in the dark. One glorious feature will be the prompt pay that will prevail.

The summary of the report of Expert George B. Kneale, who at 50 below zero will earn his subscription price of $20 a year for a weekly. He will never be able to show the ink out and will have to hunt for locals in the dark. One glorious feature will be the prompt pay that will prevail.

The New York Tribune very truthfully says: The farmers of Oregon, Washington and Idaho, like those of Kansas and Nebraska, are rapidly paying off their mortgages without descending to a silver basis as a preliminary. Over them, with the country, is plenty of money, tangling to life, with her redundant horn, and, under the baptism of its abundance, most of the political heresies which have bewildered and misled them will be drowned like gophers out of their holes.

New York Journal. We trust that Secretary Sherman will send the Japanese minister a note as long and as polite as his own, showing him why Hawaii must be annexed to the United States and why Japan has no reason to object. We have learned of late on the side of Europe that matter counts for nothing in diplomacy in comparison with money. Japan is entitled to the very best manners we can afford her. Let us answer her with such a generous diplomatic courtesy that the Mikado will take our action as a personal favor.

American wool-growers are likely to gain some advantages in prices through the great reduction in the supply of Australian wool which must come from the slaughter of the waster on the great wool-producing areas of that country. Australian sheep are reported starving to death in large numbers, and others are being slaughtered for their skins so that it is estimated that one-half of the usual wool clip of that country will be sacrificed in this way. An last year a clip amounted to 615,000,000 pounds, the effect of this will be materially felt.

Farm mortgages are being made the first subject of consideration by the farmers who are benefitting by the increased prices which have followed the election of McKinley and inauguration of the republican administration. The New York "Sun" and the Chicago "Herald" have been making, independently of each other, a canvass of the great Mississippi valley and the Pacific coast states, and in each case report a very great reduction of the mortgage indebtedness and that farm mortgages amounting to hundreds of millions of dollars are being reduced or paid off in full.

Bryan and His Speech.

It is narrated of a certain excursionist to California that he started from Boston with a clean shirt and a $3 bill, and did not change either until he returned home. Mr. Bryan is an oratorical outfit for the tour of the state seems to be of like narrow nature, and to be used with a similar frugality.

One argument and three anecdotes made up his speech at the start, and he has not changed either of them up to this time. If the single speech with which Mr. Bryan started were of that high order of oratory that bears repetition there would be no complaint of the lack of quantity in his ideas, not of variety in his illustrations and modes of expression.

Great orators have often repeated great speeches. Edward Everett did so, and some of the orations of Wendell Phillips were repeated by him a hundred times. The Bryan speech, however, is not of that class. It has been published to a greater or less extent by the press so often that the people are familiar with it, and all the points and anecdotes have become as "tidious" as twice told tales vexing the dull ears of a drowsy man.

It is unfortunate for Mr. Bryan that he has been called to California to preach calmly on the very eve of returning prosperity. This is a heavy handicap, and a statesman of resources or an orator of versatility could overcome it and accomplish a true triumph. That Mr. Bryan continues under changed conditions to speak the same speech he used during the campaign is evidence of the limitation of his mind. He is a doctrinaire rather than a statesman, and like the quack who threw all his patients into his leucage he could cure him, he reduces all conditions to leucage because he thinks he has a cure for a family.—S. F. Call.

No other remedy can take its place in our home, as in it we have a certain and sure cure for Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, etc. It is due to experiment with other remedies, even if they are urged on you as just as good as Dr. King's New Discovery. Sent it to His Mother in Germany. Capt. Polhemus was in town Monday on his return from Coos river, where he went to look after the snagging operations. He has decided that with the limited appropriation at his command, it would be more to the interest of the public to have the worst obstructions removed than to expend the appropriation on a small portion of the river. With this object in view, he has given orders for the removal of the worst snags and rocks on the north fork, including the three large from Caroline bar to Alleghany and will then move the snagging crew to the south fork, where it will be operated in a similar manner.—Marshfield News.
