Regular meeting to night. Business of importance to transact. Visiting members and brothers are requested to be present.

Hon. G. W. Riddle was in the city Saturday from Glenbrook farm. He has been busy for some time with a large force taking care of his fruit. The dry year, with a capacity of 300 bushels every twenty-four hours, is kept constantly going. Apples will be commenced on this week. Mr. Riddle informed the writer that he had a market for all the cures of the kind in the city, and the revenue from that source pays the cost of packing and drying. These "scraps" are bought in San Francisco and are used for the making of jellies. There have been better prices paid for prunes in times past, but the present price, 4 1/2 cents per pound, is very satisfactory and leaves a good margin of profit.

So far the damage to the hop crop in this section of the county has not been very serious, and unless there is more bad weather it will be saved in very good condition. There are a few exceptions, however. Stearns Bros., at Oakland, will lose two-thirds of what, at one time, they had in the crop. The crop of prunes is also in good condition.

The Southern Pacific will make liberal rates for the transportation of exhibits to the state and district fairs. On perishable exhibits, if worthless at close of the fair, amount paid for freight will be refunded. Tickets will be one fare for the round trip.

The remains were brought here for burial. The funeral took place yesterday from Masonic Hall and the interment took place in the Masonic cemetery.

IN A HOP YARD.

A Gay Crowd Brimful of Good Nature. A Hop Yard Yell.

Last week a representative of the PLAINEALER visited the hop yards on the Shamrock farm in Coles valley and put in a half a day among the pickers. Picking began on these yards on the 30th, but rains interfered somewhat so that full time had not been put in, nevertheless the 150 pickers made considerable of a showing, and one of the chief ingredients for the brewing of many a barrel of beer was rapidly passing through big dryers and on to the packing houses to be prepared for shipment to distant breweries. There are two yards here, the larger, leased by Camp, Griffith & McCoy, comprises 45 1/2 acres and the yield will be from 1000 to 1200 pounds per acre. The hops are of good quality and comparatively free from that pest of the hop yard, the louse. George Shamrock has a yard of 20 acres that he is operating himself, and the condition here and the yield will be about the same as in the other.

The pickers, most of them, get to work about 7 o'clock in the morning and work until six in the evening with an hour at noon, and if they keep busy can make about a dollar a day at 25 cents per box of 48 pounds, which is the price paid. There are in some instances whole families in the yards and between them can make a very good showing. Each family is assigned a row of poles, or two if the family is large enough, and all attack the yard in a rowing fashion before them a good wide swath. When the hops on the lower branches about a pole are picked and the others are too high to reach, some one yells "hop pole" and a man comes and cuts the vines within reach by cutting the strings that hold it up. Good natured banter passes from one to the other and we betide the unfortunate passerby who dares to reply to their sallies. The pickers generally use small boxes or picking in and these in turn are emptied into a large sack and when the sack is full it is weighed and the amount credited up to the picker.

We were informed that a hop yard yell had been invented, but whether they did not think, whether out of respect for the editorial tympaanum, or know not, but that yell we heard of but did not hear.

The pickers are camped up and down the creek from the bridge and it is an ideal camping spot. The river is straight for about a mile and without riffles, and its surface is as quiet as the waters of a lake. The face of nature thereabout is mirrored therein with infinite exactitude. There was an effort to get up a dance. The time was Friday night, the place on the bridge. The fiddle was there, also the fiddler, also the boys and girls, also the chaperones. They did manage to go through one quadrille, but the dancing carders did not let the floor smooth enough and the dance was abandoned. The county court should remedy this and in the future have all bridges in the vicinity of hop yards covered in and with planed floors, and teams and stock kept off. Bicycles don't hurt. A candy pull, however, was scheduled for last Saturday night.

Coles Valley is a lovely spot, beautifully surrounded, and is not devoted exclusively to hops. B. F. and J. L. Shamrock have a 40-acre orchard adjoining the hop yards above mentioned. Thirty acres are in prunes and 10 in apples. These trees are just coming into bearing, being four years old, and will be what is called full bearing next year. S. D. Evans has all 65 acres in fruit now far away, and there are grain fields, meadows and gardens.

The pickers are enjoying an outing, as well as making a little money.

Drain News. Abe Mattoon and John Craig, with a good force of men, are preparing to build a kiln of 5000 bricks on the old yard just west of town.

Levi Kent and son, Walter, are erecting a large two-story building on Main street, which will be used for a hardware store. It will be a valuable addition to the town.

The State Normal School will open next Monday, Sept. 13th, with a large attendance of Oregonians and young people. The training department will begin one week later.

Mr. Smith, the night operator at this place, and Miss Myrtle Doyle of Creswell, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony last week. They will begin housekeeping at once.

A busy scene is presented at the Normal school where the new heating apparatus is being put in, campus cleaned, buildings repaired, and general preparations are going on.

Mrs. John Sneed died last Sunday, at her home one mile west of Drain. Her trouble was cancer of the liver. The interment was held yesterday (Monday) in the cemetery of this place. She was loved by all who knew her.

The '05 Mental Culture Club. The following course of reading for the '05 Mental Culture Club is only in outline and is subject to any change that the members care to make. One point of merit, this course has, is that all the books are obtainable in cheap editions. If it prove satisfactory, will the members desirous of belonging to the Literary Section arm themselves with Scott's "Keynotes" for the first meeting, Tuesday, 3 p. m., Oct. 6th, at Mrs. Child's. The first regular monthly meeting will be held at 3 p. m., Saturday, Oct. 2, at the Fireman's Hall.

A course in the English novelists and poets. October: Any three novels of Scott's and one of his poems. For example, Keillworth, Ivanhoe, Heart of Mid Lothian, and The Lady of the Lake. The ladies who have read any or all of these may make their own choice from any other works, as the study will be more a criticism of Scott's style and characteristics in general than of a few novels in particular. And so will it be with the other authors.

November: Any three novels of Dickens, and one poem of Tennyson. December: One of Shakespeare's tragedies. January: Any three novels of George Eliot's and one poem of Mrs. Browning. February: Any three novels of Thackeray's and one poem of Robert Browning's. March: Three or four good novels from different authors, as Kingsley, Charles Reade, Barrie, Stevenson or others.

Dr. Lowe, the well known optician of McMinnville, Or., has been elected lecturer on physical optics in one of New York's leading colleges. Therefore, he will not return to Oregon until next spring, at which time he will make a professional tour of the state and will be better prepared than ever before to serve the public in the capacity of a retracting optician.
