There rested unless he took out such a license, ments might be amusing if they were not simply idiotic. Does the senator in silver, if not then his confidence is not suppose that anybody will believe him? The wheat crop of last year was 2,430,-000,000 bushels, and the "Corn Trade News," of Liverpool, estimates the presept year's crop at 2,398,000,000 bushels. Any politician or statesman who could manipulate the price of wheat, affecting over 2,000,000,000 bushels, to the extent which wheat has risen during the past year, would be indeed worthy the name of statesman.

In wriggling about for an answer to the fact that wheat has advanced while silver has fallen, the free-coinagists have managed to destroy their entire argument as to the relations of silver and wheat. They now say that the rise in wheat is due to the shortage in supply, and, in doing this, of course must admit that a large supply would produce a fall in price. Everybody knows that there has been an enormous increase in the and, in doing this, of course must admit supply in the past few years and a great decrease in cost of productian and transportation. The fact is that silver has nothing to do with it. It is supply and demand, coupled with cost of production and transportation.
