A LITTLE JAUNT. Through Hop Yards, Orchards, Dryers and Meadows-A Yaller Dog. The PLAINDEALER representative took a little spin through the country on Friday, going via the local to Oakland, thence down the Calapocia to Umpqua Ferry across Coles Valley and back up the river to the poor farm, crossing there and home via Wilbur awheel. The roads are pretty well lined with teams hauling grain to the railroad or to the mills, and the faces of the drivers are wreathed in pleasant expressions and the waylarer is greeted always with a cordial "bow do you do." When two farmers meet and stop for a chat their voices have a ring with the despondent and dejected tone of the years now happily past. There is to take charge of the evidence of good feeling and better times the Normal school.

on every hand. Fences are being repaired, houses improved and barns oullt. Everybody is busy and feeling as though they were getting some return from their labor.

After the Stearns' yards, to which reference was made last week, and that of the Stearns Bros. would yield but a third of a crop where a ton per acre was expected, and of Stearns, pater, which was mostly saved, the next was Durlin's yard. This is in good condition and some pickers were at work. Mr. Durlin Hattie. had gone in search of more. George Shambrook saved most of his, but the upper yard operated by Camp, Griffith & McCoy has molded considerable and they would lose about a third of the crop which would amount to a net lose to the boys of about $1900. The poles that had fewest vines fared best as they had dried out readily after the rain.

Then we went by S. D. Evans' fruit farm. Last year Mr. Evans had no fruit, this year he has more than he can handle and of excellent quality. There full capacity night and day, and if he had another it would be kept busy. The sutlook for price is also fair. Mr. Evans has had an offer of five cents per pound for his silver prones. An invitation to stop and dine was exended by ex-State Senator John Em-mett, and the editorial appetite was just in that condition to prompt the accept-ance of the invitation and a stop was made at the farm house of Mr. Exmett. This is located on rising ground at the edge of the valley, considerable above the level of the farming or bottom land. Mr. Emmett and his estimable wife were among the first settlers in Coles Valley some 45 years ago. They had travelled the length of the Willamette, stopping to look at the country along the way, but when the "prairie schooner" reached a point that revealed Coles Valley to their view Mrs. Emmett said, "We will look ao further." Here they took up their donation claim, and here they have remained; and now in life's gloaming, while the lengthening shadows indicate that the light of life will ere long burn out, they are enjoying an honored age. under their own vine and fig tree. Under the parental roof were two daughters, the elder of whom, Miss Rose, is con-siderable of a traveller, and the cabinet of curios and mementas that she has collected was the study of a pleasant hour. But we must up and away, over the till towards home via Cleveland, the poor farm, the ferry and the north fork. E. E. LaBrie is building one of the finest fruit dryers in the county. It looked like a dandy from the road, a closer inspection is reserved for another trip. Here we crossed in to the LaRaut place where the hop pickers were at work. About half the 10-acre yard will be saved, the other given over to lice and mold. The Chapman and Gilliam yarde
