Alaska Nomenclature

The United States board of geographic names, which meets in Washington at stated intervals, has just rendered decisions determining the spelling of 149 geographical names. These include a number in Alaska-significant at this time in view of the Klondike excitement. Many variations of nomenclature for the same place are encountered, and the board's action settles the uniform usage. Following is a summary of action taken relating to places conspicuously mentioned in the gold stories:

As to Klondike, the decision is to spell as here given, and not Clondyke, Klon-dyke, Chandik, or Deer, Reindeer, Throndyke, nor Thron Diuck.

One of the lakes of the upper Yukon was named Lebarge by the Western Union telegraphic expedition in 1868, after "Mike" Lebarge, a member of the exploring party, who is now living some-where near Ottawa, Canada. Late publications have fallen into the error of spelling this Labarge, but the board adheres to the original for Lebarge. There is a Lebarge river in Alasks.

When Schwatka descended the Yukon in 1883 be named one of the lakes on its headwaters Lindeman, after Dr. Moritz Lindeman, now vice president of the Bremen Geographical society. This sometimes appears erroneously as Linde mann and Lindermann. The board adopts Lindeman.

One of the principal tributaries of the upper Yukon is the Lewes river, named by Mr. Robert Campbell of the Hudson Bay company about 1849. This is often miscalled Lewis.

The inlet, river and village at the head of Lynn canal, which is in the newspapere almost daily under the form of Dyea, the starting point for the over-land route, is an Indian word, which has appeared in many forms, Admiral Meade in 1869 wrote it Tyya; Krause in 1882, wrote it Dejah : Schwatka in 1883, Dayay; Dall in 1887, Taiya. The board adopts the form Taiya.

For the lake and river variously called Hootalinqua or Hotalinga or Teslin-Hina or Teslin-Too or Teslin, the board adopts Teslin. The termination Hina and Too are said to mean river in different Indian dialects.

An Indian village on the middle Yu-kon is called Nuklukayet. This has been written in several forms, including the erroneous one. Takiukyet.

Out of 7,447 primary schools, inclusive of infant schools and the schools of primary instruction attached to educational institutions of other classes, there were 4,798 which took part in the savings-bank business. The number of children in those schools possessing deposit books was 154,192, of whom 86,309 were boys and 67,883 were girls. Including the schools above primary grade there were, according to a recent report, 5,056 schools of all kinds in which 200,347, pupils had saved 3,734,402 francs. Most of the schools of Belgium, therefore, it may be said, teach thrift and economy with their instruction in the elements of education.

A Good Story.

A good story is told of General J. A.

Early, of confederate fame. It is this:
The federals and confederates were about to engage in battle in Virginia, during the late war, Gen. Early in comparing the late war, Gen. Early use for him at that time, but in case his services should be needed to comfort the dving, he could be found just over the hill, and then departed in a gallop. General Early, indignant at the chap-lain's course, said to those around him "Now look at that old scoundrel; he has been praying to go to heaven for over thirty years and the first opportunity he has to get there, runs away."

Lady Claire Klondike, the golden-haired daughter of the first Duke of Dawson, stood within the grand old caken hall of her father's palace, overlooking the frozen river and the snow-clad bills. She was clothed heavily in rich and elegant furs for the winter had been long and cold and the end was not yet.

She shivered as the seneschal an-nounced the arrival of the Count of St. Michael. Full well she knew the intent of the Count's visit, and she steeled berself for the encounter which she knew must follow quick upon their meeting. Seeing the fair being standing by the wide tireplace of the drawing room, looking more lovely than he had ever seen her, he approached her side in a

"At last," he ejaculated, in suppressed tones. "Why?" she inquired in a tone of voice which made the Klondite winter seem like a tropical dream.

"Oh, sweet Claire," he murmured, 'so long have I yearned for this moment. Day unto day uttereth speech and night unto night showeth knowledge, but all days were dumb to me and all nights black in ignorance while I have been waiting to come thus into your presence and offer you my heart, my hand and my fortune."

Thus speaking he flung himself at her feet, the meanwhile ten large and soiled Indians from the headwaters of the river came forward rolling into the beau-tiful reception room ten barrels of pure, unadulterated gold dust worth $19.35 an ounce at any mint in the land.
At first Lady Claire's fair face took on a kindly look, and there was in it almost a rosy flush of hope. She watched the barrels eagerly, for they looked so much like the barrels her father was wont to pack hams in ere be had come hither from Chicago so many years agone. However, it was but a moment until she detected nothing in the barrels save ed and gold stomacher, hanging now eo loosely about her fair form.

The Count. still at her feet, took no notice for he had not spent the winter in Klondike and did not know how it was. As she saw what the Count was lavish ing upon her she drew back and touched him with her foot as a token that he might arise. "Take back your gold, Count," she said, waiving her lily white hand for the Indians to withdraw as they had come, that is, accompanied by the barrels. "Take back your gold; I have no use for it here. It was kind of you to think of it, and I am sure I appreciate your courtesy, but Charlie McManagin has forty pounds of boiled dog which he says shall be all mine own if I accept him, and you must excuse me, Count, really you must. Before the ice broke up in the river in July the Count began to understand Lady Claire's choice.
