Roseburg merchants are likely to move to Portland in order to get the Roseburg trade. This may not be true, but it is a fact that many people will send to Port-land for things that they can get just as cheap right here, and just as good. But because it comes from Portland it seems to have a charm that pleases. If our merchants were patronized as they ought to be they could and would keep larger stocks and there would be a greater variety of things to choose from. Don't send away for goods that you can get here, anyway. Every dollar spent in the town is saved to the community and every dollar sent away is an absolute loss to our circulating medium.

Since the first Catholic priest came to most popular priest that over located here. From the very beginning he made friends. His policy was to be a friend of all, no matter what their religious views or political creeds might be. He was energetic and did more during his short stay here to bring about a spirit of harmony between religious factions, than was deemed eyen possible. The improvements he made around the church property will stand as a witness of his ability, considering the paucity of Catholics. Every one regrets his removal, not ability. considering the paucity of Catholics. Every one regrets his removal, not in a selfish way, (because he is promoted) but as a loss to the town. It is the wish of all that he will succeed in his new place, but a stronger wish exists that the Archbishop will send him back to Roseburg.
