Spanish navy. The crew of the St. Louis has had nothing whatever to do with the prisoners since they came aboard, and have been kept as far away from them as possible. There are a number of Spanish surgeons on board, who have taken good care of the sick and wounded prisoners. There are about 40 of the latter, the remainder being ill from the effects of exposure and rain during the battle.

At 11:50 the first officer from the St. Louis and Ensign Payne arrived at the navy-yard to officially notify Admiral Carpenter of the arrival of the vessel and with messages for Captain Phillips. Cadet Fremont landed with a gig loaded with mail from the fleet, and it was sent in bags to the postoflice.
