LETTER FROM ALASKA.

DYER, ALASKA, Aug. 8, 1898.

EDITOR PLAIND DEALER:

Before leaving Roseburg, I promised to write you after reaching here, I have not forgotten this promise all these weeks, but on account of being very busy, I have not had much to write that would interest the average person not acquainted with the conditions of this country. I had a very pleasant trip up, came by the way of the Columbia river, and had just a little sea experience, but did not get sea sick. The inland passage is a delightful one, at least in the summer time, and the scenery is beyond descriptive powers, so I will just say, "it is grand". I reached here May 9th and assumed my official duties on the 7th of the same month. I found Judge John D. Smith, though very much criticized for official conduct here, a very accommodating gentleman, as he was very courteous to me, and took great interest in showing me into the details of my duties. There has always been, that is, for the last year, there has been quite a spirit of rivalry between Dyer and Skagway, they lie about six miles apart, and are separated by a point of land running out into the bay. Both towns are situated on rather flat ground, consequently it requires very long wharves to reach water deep enough to land deep water ships. In providing for this, the people of Skagway were in the lead, and have four fine wharves and docks, all complete, so that freight can be and is loaded right from the ships, and then transferred at a wharf to town. Dyer was slow. They commenced a wharf and dock, but did not push it forward to completion, so the ships land at Skagway and get the trade largely settled in that direction, and while the Dyer wharf and dock can be now used, only part of the ships coming this way land here at all.

Skagway is made up largely of Oregon people, mostly from about Portland, with quite a sprinkling from Seattle.

The recent fight for law and order at Skagway, was a great fight. I knew some time ago that it would have to come sooner or later and I knew that when it came it would be a fight that would cost life, and I feared the loss of much property, as the out-law element had defied the authorities and threatened the town with destruction by fire if they were molested, so when the end was reached and only two lives lost, I realize the cost of right was not so great as was generally expected. To say that for five days and nights the town was at fever heat and excitement but mildly expresses it. A genuine lynching was only averted by the best kind of hard work. Ten men and one woman connected with the gambling and robbing element have been bound over to the grand jury and taken to Sitka, while quite a number were advised to, and did leave the town for other and more congenial climes.

A rail road is now being built from Skagway across the White Pass, the road is now in running order and trains are running out about four miles from Skagway. This enterprise is making very rapid progress, the building up of Skagway into a permanent town, the streets are well arranged and the town nicely planned, the work of surveying and platting was done by Frank Reid, the man who was shot by "Soapy" Smith.

I am now arranging to locate my family at Skagway, as it is the better place to live, I will still have to maintain my office here, but will spend most of my time at Skagway, as nearly all of the business is now done there. A. C. Marks, and wife are located about half a block from my office, consequently I see them often; Hal Loughary is still with him, while James Donning, of Looking Glass is in charge of a packing train between here and Canyon. I saw Roscoe Green today; J. J. Cawfield, and Stoney are here teaching, Stoney has served on juries twice since I have been here, while Hal Loughary has served as a special officer in the matter of an inquest and summoned a coroner's jury, and A. C. Marks acted in the capacity of special officer and served papers in an attachment case. At Skagway, our old friend, Mr. Nicce, formerly of Roseburg, was one of the coroner's jury in the inquest held over the body of "Soapy" Smith, he was also a juror in a case of criminal trespass, some time ago, so you see that the Douglas county people are cutting some figure in this country. Dr. Bradley and J. E. B. Carlwright are in the interior some where, while the irrepressible L. D. Carl is a navigator on the lakes, being duly licensed to do that kind of work by the powers that be in the North West Territory. Oregon people seem to have a faculty of getting along pretty well out here. Quite a nice haul was made right here in town, the other day, by the custom officers. A large consignment of "eggs" under bond for the Canadian territory, was being shipped through here, the custom officers became suspicious that the boxes contained something more valuable than eggs, so they "went" through them; they found the eggs nicely packed, two layers on the top, two on the bottom and two in the middle was nice, but very carefully stowed away from dozen bottles of the finest of old Scotch Whiskey, 1000 bottles was thus being smuggled through, and was confiscated. The poor smuggler could only stand by and see $8000.00, in big gold dollars, slip through his fingers, as that is what it would have been worth once across the gate, the eggs were intended to cover the cost of transportation and first cost of whiskey. This only goes to show, that in some instances, the way of the transgressor is hard; however he repacked 'em in eggs, and went on his way a wiser, if not a richer man.

Today we are having it real warm, the sun is coming down in good old fashioned shape, and the glacier just above town is sending down the mountain quite a stream of water again. It has been quite cold and windy for several weeks past. Well, we are having some new mining excitement, a new discovery has been made about half way between here and Dawson; the find is reported to be richer than the Klondike, and hundreds of men are now on the trail with their outfits making for the new strike. I interviewed one of the first to come in from there; he was in my office an hour this morning, and besides showing me fine specimens taken during his short trip in that section, he told me much of the country and its richness; he with several others were in there three weeks, located their claims and are now out for the purpose of putting in supplies for the winter.

It was reported that yesterday there were five thousand people at Lake Bennett waiting transportation but could not get it, and no boats were to be had for love or money, this place is nearly deserted of men, but in full of Klondike widows, even some ladies are arranging to go.

Quite a large amount of gold is coming out this way from the Klondike, but it is hard to tell anything as to the real amount, one reason is, that every miner is supposed to pay a royalty on all of the gold that he takes out, consequently if he has "stunk" any on the side that he has not reported, he does not want any one to know his real amount, as the authorities finding it out, would confiscate his claim and all of his belongings left for his return, so it may mean a good deal for him not to let any one know what he has got.

I am running this out too long, so I will chop off, and leave something for a future letter. With kind regards to the good people of Roseburg, I remain, very truly yours,

C. A. SCHUBBERG.

OCCUPY THE PALACE.

The same dispatch also says: "The Second Oregon Regiment, Colonel Sumner, commanding, is the Governor's guard and now occupies the palace."

From this it would seem our boys took a leading part in the surrender of the metropolis of the Philippines.

THE SCHIRMER.

The Case of Joseph Allen.

Joseph Allen, who was arrested on the 13th of this month at Oakland, charged with the murder of J. S. Reynolds on July 25th near Helena Mont., is a son of Joseph Allen who formerly lived on the Upper Calapooia in this county. Young Allen who is about 22 years of age left this county with his father about three years ago, going to Montana where they have since resided.

Sheriff Davidson arrived from Montana, and last Thursday started back with the prisoner.

The account given of the killing, as given by the defendant differs very materially from that given by sheriff Davidson. While Allen claims that the killing was in self defence, the account given by the sheriff would indicate that the killing was premeditated murder.

Runaway Accident.

On last Friday about noon, Mr. Jephtha Green's team, when in front of the post-office, became frightened and ran away, going north on Jackson street to Douglas, then east to the alley back of the court-house, where they became tangled and stopped.

Frank Castle, a boy about 12 years of age and a grandson of Mr. Green, who was in the wagon at the time, was thrown out and sustained quite serious injuries about the head. He was taken to the residence of Mrs. Whitney where his injuries were treated by Dr. Coffman.

A buggy belonging to Hugh Brown, in which his two daughters were seated, was struck and the wheel crushed but the young ladies escaped without injury.
