Another Treat.

"A Summers Fancy" at the Opera House.

"The play's the thing," says Shakespeare. We are going to have another.

On Saturday night, the bright laughing comedy, "A Summers Fancy" will be produced for the first time, by our great home cast, under the direction of Mr. Levin. This will be Mr. Levin's last appearance here, as he goes on toward San Francisco.

The play is of an entirely different type from "Baron Byssington," being founded on the old story of a man of the world falling in love with a little country girl. The country girl, will be portrayed by Miss Antoinette, and in it she has a great opportunity to display her versatility, as it is distinctly a comedy part. Dexter Rice will be seen in the leading role, Jack Henderson. The scenes between Philander Potts, (Dr. Hamblin) and Emma Watson, the old maid, Miss Grace Cavil, (Mrs. J. B. Baxter), the farmer, Dan Langenberg, (a funny part). Edith (Miss Katie Sharkey) and Harry (Nathan Fullerton) add their share to the fun.

Miss Perry, as Mrs. Henderson, has a good and telling part. Mr. Levin will again be seen as a duke, while "Appleton Thornbryke," who is quite well known here, will have a surprise in store for his friends, as Duke. Who is he? That would be telling.

The first act, is camping in the Adirondacks. Wally goes fishing—Potts is chased by a cow—Edith begins to abuse Harry—Mercy and Jack—Jack and the old farmer, and then the engagement.

Act second is the day set for the wedding.

The third act, is a quarrel—between husband and wife—Wally gets onto something and Harry becomes a philosopher on women and marriage. The country girl and her husband part.

Act IV is full of good comedy, and at the end, Jack recognizes in a lady called Mrs. Ashton, now a belle, his long-lost wife.

The piece is on the order of several successful New England comedies and one which has been played with much success for several years.

Another Letter From Cavite.

Through the kindness of Mrs. M. N. Metten we are permitted to publish the following interesting letter from her nephew E. B. Wilcox, now with the Oregon volunteers at Manila.

Cavite Barracks, Aug. 6, 1898.

Dear Aunt: As the mail leaves tomorrow for the United States on the steamship Colon, I will write you a few lines to let you know how I am getting along. I would have written before, but about three weeks ago we were ordered to pack up everything we had except haversack, blanket, canteen and such things as that, and not to have anything extra along. They said we would start out in a few days on a campaign so I packed up every thing, and in the rush I failed to save out any paper and envelopes, and as there were very few in the company I haven't been able to get hold of anything to write on until today, when the chaplain happened to get some paper off of one of the transports and sent it to me.

We are stationed in the barracks at Cavite where we first landed and the chances are we will stay here until the war is over. We have very good quarters and good protection from the rain, of which we have had considerable lately. The last week or so has been typical Oregon weather, only a little warmer. There has been a drizzly rain most all the time. Some times there comes up a shower of rain, and then talk about raining, if you ain't in shelter in less time than it takes to tell it you will be thoroughly soaked. The building which our company occupies one end is about 150 feet long. Then at each end built at right angles to it there are two other buildings, and filling in the space between the two ends of these is another building. In the center between all these is quite a large open space where we form for roll call and to march out to drill, and for marching to mess. I have seen this space filled almost six inches deep in less than half an hour. Of course it wasn't that deep all over it but more than half of it would be covered to that depth.

The third expedition arrived last Sunday, the 31st of July and Monday I got your letter of the 20th. Since we came here we have not been doing much of any importance, only drill, eat what we can get, and work a good deal. We have to carry our water that we use about a quarter of a mile, and have to go down town and get our wood, hauling it on a wheelbarrow or carrying it on our backs. They use rain water here almost altogether for drinking and all other purposes. All water to be drank must first be boiled. I would give almost anything for a drink of right good water. It is about the biggest drawback we have.

For the last week or so I have been working in the kitchen helping cook, wash dishes, etc. It is not very hard work, but the smoke nearly puts a person's eyes out. We have been getting very fair grub since we landed, at least far ahead of what we got on the boat, but the worst trouble is that it is not hardly enough. They have stopped us buying fruit or anything across the line and unless a person can get a pass to get out side the lines, he has to eat only what they give him. There are but few passes issued. I have ate all the fruit I wanted until the last few days, since it has got so I can't get it, and I haven't been sick a day since we landed. I have got a cold now but it is caused by getting hot working in the kitchen and then cooling off too quick. I have also been nursing a big boil on the back of my neck for the last week or so, but that is about well now.

By stepping out behind the barracks a person counts the remains of seven ships sticking out of the water. When the tide is low we can see about half the hulls of two or three others. The nearest one is about 150 yards from the shore. It goes up on top of the "lookout" we can see the remains of the entire 11 as they all went down in shallow water. We are surrounded by a big wall about 20 or 25 feet high and from 20 to 100 feet wide in some places. In fact, at one place on the top of the wall one company goes for drill some times. But these walls are not all solid. In them are dungeons where untold crimes doubtless have been committed. They are very dismal looking places. There are three old Catholic churches in the town, all of which I have been through. The oldest one was built about three centuries ago. They were fine buildings at one time but are now somewhat dilapidated.

Dave Shaubrook, Lieut. Hamlin and the rest of the boys from Roseburg are getting along first rate. We are expecting some more from there on the next expedition. There has been but one of the boys from there sick to amount to anything. That is George Stamer. Something is the matter with his back so that he can't get around. Dave Shaubrook had the measles while we were on the boat.

As soon as we take Manila they are going to issue to each of us two suits of white clothes. That is the kind they wear altogether in these warm countries. They are also going to issue us canvas shoes, cork helmets and a hammock. We already have a small tent to each two men, a rubber blanket and an army blanket with plenty of light underclothes. We have never received a cent of pay yet and don't know when we will. I have been saving with what money I had when I left home and have got about $3.50 left. There are very few men in the company or regiment, either, that have got a cent. We were expecting pay today but for some means it failed to come.

The Monterey arrived yesterday all right and we now look for the bombardment of Manila almost any time. She was given four days after she arrived to prepare for action. All of Dewey's fleet have taken their small boats off and sent them to the navy yard, and he has clear them all for action, so he must be contemplating a move before long.

I guess it is going to be our fate to sit and look on and see them take Manila. At least that is the report now, that our regiment is going to be used as a guard for this fort, although some say that when the attack is made and Dewey has blown the wall down we will be taken to the water front and landed, to march right into the heart of the city. If we do we are apt to see as much of the fun as the rest of them. About all the troops have gone away from here except our regiment and are surrounding Manila. They have had several skirmishes so far, of which you will have a much better and more authentic account than I can give. We have not had any outside news for a couple of weeks, so I don't know what is happening in Cebu. Well, as it is getting almost dinner time and this is about all that will go in one envelope I guess I will have to close. I still have hopes of being home by Christmas. Good bye for this time.

Your nephew,
R. B. Wilcox.
