OLD WORLD OPINION

Europe Bitterly Opposed to American Expansion.

STEAD'S LETTER FROM ROME

Powers' Proposal to Intervene Was Checkmated by a Bold Yankee Diplomat.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—William T. Stead writing from Rome, under date of Nov. 21, says:

"The answer to the question, 'What does the Old World think of the New World?' has never been made with greater emphasis than in the Eternal City. The oldest Old World regards the newest New World with feelings of anger, disgust and alarm almost too great for words. The sentiment of indignation differs in intensity, but it is universal. There is no sympathy for the United States either among whites or blacks. In fact, dislike of the American seizure of the Philippines and a conviction that the humane enthusiasm which made the war possible was a mere mask of cant, assumed in order to facilitate conquest, are almost the only sentiments shared in common by the rival camps of the quinal and of the valican.

"You may urge, protest and rage as you please, the Old World has made up its mind on the subject, and nothing that can be said or done in the United States will alter its judgment. The American government has come out of its ring fence. It has thrown its hat into the arena of the world. It is launched on a career of conquest, which will be all the more predatory because it is masked by humanitarianism. The commonwealth, they hold, has so long plagued the Old World. A bright hope for the human race was extinguished when the one monarchical power, which eschewed all schemes of aggression and annexation, enrolled itself among the common herd of conquering states. So men talk everywhere in Europe. Whether they regard the old American ideal with sympathy or every contempt, they all agree in believing that it has been abandoned, and that forever.

"The annexation of the Philippine islands may seem but a small thing, but it is decisive.

"In the course of my tour I am now compelled to admit that I found proof existent of a disposition on behalf of Spain, which might have been very serious had it not been checked in the bud by the knowledge that England would have nothing to do with it. When I was in Paris I was positively told that no proposal had ever been made to intervene, and that, therefore, England had never had the occasion or opportunity to put her foot down on the anti-American coalition. That no doubt, was true so far as overt action on the part of the government was concerned. But it is not less true that immediately after the war broke out, a diplomatic representative of the powers communicated to an American minister at a European court in plain and unmistakable terms the displeasure of the powers and their desire to express that displeasure publicly and forcibly. This communication was sufficiently serious for the contingency of the use of the allied forces of the European nations for the coercion of the United States to be frankly discussed between the two diplomats. The result of that discussion was to put a summary stop to all notion of European intervention.

"If you intervene," said the American minister, "it means war."

"Yes," rejoined his visitor, "and the force of the great European powers, acting in alliance, would overwhelm any opposition which America could offer."

"No doubt," said the American, "but you would have to bring your forces across the Atlantic to the other hemisphere and keep them there for the rest of your natural life. For the New World is not going to submit to the Old World any more. No, sir; not any more than it submitted a century since, when the odds were far worse."

"And remember," he added, as a clincher, "that when you are bringing your armies and your navies across 3000 miles of sea to fight America, you will have to count with England, who is certainly not friendly to your enterprise."

"This put an extinguisher on the proposal. Nothing more was heard of the contemplated intervention. It never got so far as to be submitted to England. The whole design was checked at the very outset by the calm audacity with which the representative of America played his cards, including the trump card of the Anglo-American entente, which henceforth will play a leading part in all the dealings of the English-speaking people with their jealous and suspicious neighbors.

"I am very glad to be able to set forth the actual facts as they actually happened. They were told me at first hand by the person most intimately concerned, and you can absolutely rely upon the accuracy of the above statement."

DEATH LIST GROWS.

It is Growing Despite the Precautions Taken.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Washington says:

Surgeon-General Wyman, of the marine hospital service, has received a report from Dr. W. F. Brunner, United States sanitary inspector at Havana, covering the week ending November 23, which shows little or no improvement in the health conditions in that city in spite of the efforts now being made to prepare it for the American army of occupation.

In the week there were 490 deaths, giving an annual death rate of 114.40 per 1000, most of them being due to the filthy condition of the city and the lack of good food. Yellow fever, enteric fever, malarial fever and pernicious fever are credited with causing respectively 4, 32, 64 and 9 deaths; 69 are attributed to enteritis, 26 to dysentery, 1 to starvation, 9 to pneumonia and 55 to tuberculosis. Of the four cases of yellow fever two were among the Spanish troops in military hospitals and the others among civilians. Dr. Brunner thinks there are less than 60 cases in the city. The report continues:

"I am at a loss to understand why the enormous death rate continues. The weather conditions favor a decrease in the death rate, and while the city is filthy and dirty in the extreme, I cannot see that the native population should be unusually affected by such a condition of affairs. There are some few cases of malarial fever occurring among the crews of vessels in the harbor, but they are mild in their nature and yield to treatment. Since September 24, there must have been from 15 to 20 American schooners in this port. Nearly all of them discharged their cargoes of lumber at Tallapiedra wharf or some other badly infested dock, but no known cases of yellow fever have developed among the men composing the crews. In fact, the largest death rate has occurred in the suburbs of the city, sections well removed from the bay, those two known as Cerro and Vedado showing an abnormally high death rate.

Some attempts have been made to clean the city, but as they were not made intelligently they were not effective. Fire engines have been used for flushing sewers, but as they merely pumped the water into the streets allowing it to drain into sewers, little good was accomplished. The work could have been made more effective by pumping into each one of the manholes or catch basins, beginning at the head of the sewer and pumping to the outlet.

"An abortive attempt has been made to sweep some of the streets by means of wisps tied together. The methods were as ludicrous as they were futile. The excess of hundreds of homeless people and hundreds of those who have homes line the sidewalks of side streets, and the indifference shown to these conditions is remarkable, even when the character of the population is considered. It is to be hoped that the city will be made mechanically clean before the American troops are allowed to enter."
