

The last kitchen in the world is in the great Parisian store, the Bon Marche which has 4000 employees. The smallest bottle contains 100 quarts and the largest 500. Each of the 50 roasting pans is big enough for 500 cutlets. For cooking alone 50 cooks and a hundred assistants are always at the range.

At Hayville, L. I., a few days ago, William Cornell, aged 34, arose in the morning a handsome young bachelor and that night retired a great-grandfather, with a daughter older than himself, and a granddaughter with a child old enough to make remarks about him. He had married the widow Overton, aged 70.

The insurance companies doing a life business in Canada have agreed hereafter not to accept risks on the lives of married women unless they happen to be the bread-winners of the family, or, in other words, independent of their husbands. This decision has been arrived at, strangely enough, with a view to lessening the crime of murder for insurance, several cases of which have been reported within the last two years.

A correspondent of the London Daily News says that wherever he went he was able to converse with foreign statesmen and diplomatic in English. He found that as a rule the governing classes of Europe would understand and speak English. In the Russian royal family especially English is the familiar language of conversation. The czar, for instance, invariably speaks English to the czarina and his little daughters.

The London News says that the bishop of Wakefield was once consoling an East End costermonger for the loss of his little son. The poor fellow was rocking to and fro in his distress. He suddenly looked at the bishop and with tears streaming down his cheeks said: "D'ye think I could get the little begger stuffed?"

In the little town of Deventer, in the Dutch province of Overijssel, there lives a writer called Dr. Cox, who has recently published a pamphlet advocating complete equality between men and women. Last week his house was broken into, the burglars were traced and arrested with the result that they were found to be two young girls.

The most costly book in the Royal Library at Stockholm is a bible. There is not another like it in the world. It is said that 160 asses' skins were used for its parchment leaves. There are 330 pages of writing and each page falls but one inch short of being a yard in length. The width of the leaves is 30 inches. The covers are solid planks, four inches thick.

The new stamp for the Canadian Imperial penny postage to come into use on Christmas day, is now in course of production under the direction of Mr. Mack, the Canadian postmaster-general.
