The public installation of the officers of Riverside lodge, I. O. O. F., and the Rebekah degree on the night of the 13th, was interesting and impressive. Among the exercises was a recitation by Miss Gaddis and also by Miss Balderes. The chief official for the Riverside lodge is Geo. Balderes, and for the Rebekahs is Mrs. Brownell. An excellent supper was furnished at the hotel by J. Daley, which rapidly disappeared before the onslaught of the large gathering.

The ancient Babylonians had no regular physicians. The sick and infirm were brought out into the market place where the passers-by prescribed remedies which had proved effectual in their own experience or that of their friends. We are told it was against the law to pass by a sick person without inquiring into the nature of his disease and prescribing a remedy, though history does not tell us that they were compelled to try all the recommended. And yet, though they had no physicians, it is safe to say that they killed about as many people in those benighted days, in their attempt to save human life, as the doctors do in these days of scientific research with all their knowledge of therapeutics.

A TRIAL IN PROSPECT

For Egan, the Traducer of Miles.

PRESIDENT HAS SO DECIDED

The Talk of Selecting the Court Will Be a Difficult One—The Defendant's Rank.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—President McKinley announced to the cabinet at the regular meeting today that he has determined to court-martial Commissioner-General Egan. Alger was not at the cabinet meeting, but with Adjutant-General Corbin was at the White House in conference with the president on the subject just prior to the cabinet session. An order for the court-martial probably will be made soon.

General Egan has not yet been relieved of his duties in anticipation of his prospective trial, but it is understood that the order for his arrest, preparatory to the trial will, of itself, carry with it his relief from official duty.

The general practice is for a majority of the court to consist of officers, the equals or superiors in rank of the defendant. This would make the task of selecting the court a hard one. But latitude is permitted the appointing authority in such selections, as the ninth article of war reads:

"No officer shall, when it can be avoided, be tried by officers inferior in rank."

It will be noted that the phrase, "if it can be avoided," leaves an opportunity for appointment of junior officers. The penalty for the offense upon which General Egan probably will be tried, "condemning unbecomingly an officer and a gentleman, is one of the most severe known in the army, being dismissal.

PROPOSED ROAD SYSTEM.

Summary of the Oregon Road Club's Scheme Now Before Legislature.

SALEM, Or., Jan. 17.—A system of road laws prepared under the direction of the Oregon Road Club and embodying its plans for systematic road development, is now before the legislature in the form of three bills now in their first stages in the house. The first of these bills does away with the old plan of assessing road taxes in the form of days' work to be done on the county road, and provides that road taxes shall be collected in cash, like other taxes. The tax levy shall be made by the county court at each county not to exceed 5 mills to the dollar, and shall be collected like other taxes, but in the treasury shall be held as a special road fund, subject to disbursement by the county authorities, and it shall be used for no other purpose. It is further provided that a road poll tax of $2 shall be collected from each male inhabitant between the ages of 21 or 30 not otherwise exempt, and that the proceeds of this collection shall also go into the county road fund. No person subject to this tax and who does not exhibit a receipt therefor, shall be registered as a voter.

A PLAN OF STATE ADMINISTRATION.

The second link in the proposed system is in the form of a bill which looks to a general uniformity in road plans and methods under the leadership of a state engineer, to be called "the state road engineer." The county roadmaster is required to be a competent engineer, to be paid as the county court may direct, and subject to dismissal at the will of the court. Sections 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 relate to the details of selecting, surveying and dedicating roads, etc., of a perfunctory kind.

Section 7 provides that the governor shall appoint a state road engineer, who shall be a competent civil engineer, to hold office for a term of four years, subject to the discretion and pleasure of the governor, to be paid an annual salary of $2,400, "as the salaries of other state officers are paid." The state road engineer shall have an office in the state capitol. He shall give bonds in the sum of $5,000, and take an oath binding him not to become financially interested in any road work, nor in any contract for the same. The duty of the state road engineer is defined as follows:

It shall be the duty of the state engineer to thoroughly advise himself as to the best methods and bridges in Oregon, having reference to difference in soil, climate and other differing conditions, and to use his influence with the county courts of this state to introduce and encourage them to begin and prosecute the improvement of the roads in their respective counties, to advise with them regarding the best manner of making temporary and permanent improvements on the roads of their respective counties; and of the most advantageous method of using the means they may have to secure the greatest benefit to their various county roads; and to endeavor to promote good road building throughout this state.

And when any county court with in this state contemplates making personal

What Think Ye of Expansion.

Expansion means development, as well as stretching out; and sometimes means abolition. To bring reform about.

Expansion measures to the end, and planets far away; Expansion scarcely has begun, but it has come to stay.

Expansion ferrets out all crime, and pleads fair science' cause; Expansion will in course of time, give all mankind its law.

It ostracizes devil, too, and laughs to scorn their claim; It separates the false and true, which honors its fair name.

It taint the cause of science up, and set poor Curia free; It made the once dark slave to sup, free from his master's key.

Our schools have flourished where it rules, from whence new light has come; Contractions now is meant for fools, and idiots yet to come.

Resolution of Condolence

Adopted by Alpha Lodge, Number 47, Knights of Pythias.

WHEREAS, The Supreme Ruler of the Universe, has in His infinite wisdom, removed from our midst, our worthy and esteemed brother Knight, C. Y. Benjamin; and

WHEREAS, The fraternal relations existing between the members of this order and our late brother, make it fitting that we record our appreciation of his knightly qualities; therefore,

Resolved, That the friendship, charity and benevolence which he exercised in behalf of our order, will ever be held in grateful remembrance.

Resolved, That the sudden removal from our midst of this true and faithful Knight, leaves a vacancy and shadow, that will be deeply realized by all.

Resolved, That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved relatives and friends of our late brother, trusting that the Beneficent Father will comfort them in their great sorrow.

Resolved, That the charter of this lodge be draped in mourning and that the members wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days, and be it further

Resolved, That these resolutions be transcribed upon the records of this lodge, and an engrossed copy sent to the family of the deceased.
