JULY 17, 1899.

Not a man died during the passage of the Oregon volunteers across the Pacific. It has not taken Uncle Sam long to master the science of transporting troops safely by sea.

After a hard campaign in the tropics of the Philippines and a long fatiguing voyage it was only natural that the boys were eager to get onto terra firma as quick as possible after entering San Francisco harbor. The boys want to come to their homes, which does not necessarily mean Portland.

"War in the Philippines," says an anti-expansion exchange, "is the saddest thing in the history of the United States." It isn't quite that. A sadder thing is the spectacle of so-called American citizens embracing the government in its efforts to implant civilization and good government among a people it has rescued from tyranny.

The review in its last Thursday's issue criticized us for directing a few harmless thrusts at the local board of trade for not providing for the entertainment of the visiting editors, and then copied all of the dirty "flings" and adverse comment on the matter that could be culled from its state exchanges. Consistency then at a bright gem, but you do not sparkle in the columns of the Roseburg Review.

Notwithstanding the fact that Coquille City is advertising for laborers to work on a new logging railroad, while the mills, logging camps and creameries of that section are running in full blast and business of all kinds is humming, the populist Herald of that city under the head of "political pointers," contained the following "last week": "That 'wave of property' hasn't waned." Great is calamity journalism.

It is easy to drift with the tide; it is easy to sit down and let your business push itself, but it never goes far. The fellow who advertises and keeps constantly and everlastingly at it, is the one that is going to attract people his way and the more business of this kind in a town the more business it handles. The towns that advertise and hustle are the ones that do business and it needs not the wisdom of a sage to see it that way. An ad in the live wide-awake semi-weekly PLAIND DEALER will bring the desired results.

The Agualista disease is called copperhead. Protests come every little while from supporters of Hoar, Gorman, Bryan, Billy Mason and the rest of the enemies of their country against the application of this term to these individuals. Yet unless the term copperhead has changed since the days in which it was invented, it correctly designates the persons to whom it was given. A copperhead is a person who takes the side of his country's foes. The country's foes at this particular time are the Filipinos, who are in rebellion against its authority. Atkinson, Garrison, Gorman, Bryan and the rest of the howling fire-bringers are giving aid and comfort to Agualista and his dupes. If three individuals are not copperheads the dictionary definition of that word will have to be altered.

Vault Shipped.

The proprietors of the Grand finished the shipment of the old Lane county court house vault Friday, by delivering to the Southern Pacific for transportation to Klamath Falls, Klamath county, where it will be used by the bank. The outside and inside doors with jamb weighed, when crated, 2370 pounds, and the wall, floor and ceiling plates 4900 pounds, in all 7320. The rivets were cut and the plates shipped in sections.

FAREWELL RECEPTION

Tendered to Governor Geer and Staff by California Officials.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15.—The members of Governor Geer's staff today tendered a reception to Governor Geer, of Oregon, and his staff, who departed this evening for Portland. The officers and ladies of the party assembled in the parlors of the Occidental hotel.

All the efforts were in uniform, and the gathering was a brilliant one. General Seaman first addressed the company of officers, explaining that the members of the governor's staff desired to show a mark of respect to the visitors, and had gathered together for this farewell reception. "The California people were the last to bid farewell to the gallant soldiers of Oregon when they sailed away," said General Seaman, "hence it is as entirely proper that California should be the first to greet them on their return from the glories of war. We have been pleased and glad to greet you, and if we have done anything to contribute to the pleasure of your visit here we are most glad."

Governor Geer responded, saying that he wished to thank the people of California for their kind treatment and courtesy. "It has been a wonderful reception," said the governor, "and we thank you all for the many courtesies we have received."

Colonel Spencer, advocate-general on the Oregon staff, made the concluding speech, saying: "On behalf of the governor and his staff I desire to say that we have been wonderfully impressed by our reception here, but the greeting you have given our boys is something that we can never forget. We thank the people and the members of the governor's staff for their kindness and courtesy."

The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" brought the reception to a close.

Old Church That Burned Yesterday.

ST. HELENS, Or., July 15.—The Methodist Episcopal church in this city was destroyed by fire early this morning. No effort was made to save the building because it was so far consumed by the flames when persons reached it that any effort would have been futile.

The suggestion is that tramps were sleeping in the building, during the night, and after awaking threw a lighted match into a closed under the stairway leading to the gallery. There was a can of coal oil in the closet, and the floor was saturated with oil.

The building was reputed to be the second one built in the state of Oregon by the Methodist denomination, having been constructed in 1852. The cost was by popular subscription. Colonel Tripp, Robert Germain and Mr. Bronghaus were the carpenters. The building will be remembered by every person who has had occasion to travel up or down the Columbia river for the past 46 years, it having been perched upon the rock bluff, back of and overlooking this city, and was the most prominent landmark on the Columbia river from Portland to the sea. Judge C. Vancouver, deeded the lot, on which the building stood, to the church association, and, although the building was known as the Methodist church and claimed by that denomination, it is contended by old-timers that the building was erected with the understanding that it should be known and used as a union church.

The people of St. Helens regard the destruction of the building with as deep regret as though a human friend had been removed from their midst.

Waived Examination, Went to Jail.

B. L. Davis, who is charged with larceny by bailies, was today taken before Justice W. D. Smith and waived examination. In default of $900 bail he was sent to jail to await the November term of circuit court. His companion, Stephenson, will be arraigned Monday.

"A hope is abandoned," yells the Telegram. "The people of Oregon refuse to become reconciled." The only people in Oregon not reconciled are the inhabitants of Portland and not all of them. Outside of Portland the situation is accepted sensibly and philosophically. The general sentiment is that the boys have done the proper thing under the circumstances, and their action is generally endorsed by the people of the state as it was by Governor Geer and Col. Sumner.—Albany Democrat.

Time for Expansion.

Fourteen years after the inauguration of the first president of the United States the republic began to expand. We took in Louisiana much more than doubling our area.

Sixteen years after that we annexed Florida. In the meantime we had perfected our title to the Oregon country. Fourteen years thereafter we secured Florida we annexed Texas.

Three years after that we added California, Nevada, Utah, most of New Mexico, Arizona and part of Colorado. Five years later we bought the southern parts of New Mexico and Arizona.

Fourteen years thereafter we secured Alaska. And then we stopped. For 31 years—from 1867 to 1898—the United States ceased to expand. Then we timidly picked up the microscopic morsels of Hawaii and Porto Rico, and stretched out a tentative hand over the Philippines.

Was it not time? Never in our history has the march of American expansion halted so long as it did between the annexation of Alaska and that of Hawaii. Never before have we allowed other nations to gain such a start on us in the race.

When Jefferson bought Louisiana the density of population in the United States was between seven and eight to the square mile. It could hardly be said then that there was any pressing congestion within our boundaries, but Jefferson had an eye that could see into the future.

When we purchased Florida we had between four and five inhabitants to the square mile. When we annexed Texas the density of our population was not quite ten. When we took in California it was about the same.

When we effected the Gladden purchase it was a little over eight. When we bought Alaska it was about twelve.

It is now in the neighborhood of 20 including Alaska; and excluding Alaska, most of whose area is unavailable for settlement, it is 26.

Greater the pressure of population is evident now than it was at any of our previous periods of national expansion. If we felt the need for more room then we feel it more intensely now. Our population is denser at this time in California, our remotest state, than it was in the Old United States when we annexed Louisiana.

THE ORDER RECORDED.

Companies comprising the O. N. G. Notified to Suspend Preparations for Portland Trip.

R. H. Izabo, captain of company K, Third regiment, O. N. G. of this city, yesterday received from Brigadier-General C. F. Beebe an order rescinding the previous order, instructing the company to prepare to move to Portland on the receipt of telegraphic instructions.

Now that the contemplated trip to Portland to greet the returning volunteers at an organization, has been declared off, it is suggested that the state guard hold its encampment at the state fair grounds, near this city, as it was originally planned. The military fund has not yet been expended and no reason can be given why the encampment should not be given in this city as planned.

The custom of annually giving the members of the guard a few days of practical military life has been observed for years, and it is certainly of the greatest importance to the regiment, that the encampment be held this year, for the drilling and experience that would be obtained thereby would be invaluable to the various companies. The encampment should certainly be held. If thought ill-advised to have the guard assemble here at this time, the encampment could be held during the state fair, when it would prove one of the principal attractions of that exposition.—Helen Statesman July 15.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The war department has left the disposition of the Oregon troops in the hands of General Shafter, commanding the department of Pacific. The troops have been ordered mustered out at San Francisco. It is said here that they will be paid off and will return to Oregon as citizens, not as soldiers. After they are mustered out and paid, the United States has no further control of them.

A PRISONER'S BOLD DASH.

Sheriff Gage is Having an Interesting Time With the Coquille Robbers.

Ed White, an accomplice of those Drew in the bold Coquille robberies, is behind the bars at Coquille City for the third time. Drew and White were given a trial before the grand jury at the last term of Coos county circuit court, and while many were convinced that they were the guilty parties, they were discharged for want of evidence. They immediately left the country, but were shadowed and soon afterwards arrested at Portland and Albany, where they had been disposing of articles which were readily identified as having come from the sale in Loren's store at Coquille City. They were again taken to Coquille and given a preliminary examination, resulting in White being discharged, while Drew was held without bonds to await the action of the grand jury. Strong evidence has since been secured against both parties, causing the arrest of White for the third time, last week. Sheriff Gage went to Riverston, Coos county and secured his prisoner, but while on the trip up the river to Coquille, White suddenly doffed his coat and vest and sprang overboard from the steamer, swimming to the shore and successfully effecting his escape.

A posse was soon on his track, however, and he was captured the next day near Riverston, taken to Coquille and again lodged in jail. In regard to the recent arrest last Saturday's Coquille Bulletin says:

WHAT CAUSED THE ARREST
It is not generally known, but a well established fact is that the late evidence in the hands of Sheriff Gage and Dist. Atty. Brown. The former has been working night and day on the case since the grand jury in May decided that White and Drew were innocent of the offense.

It is at his urgent request that Mr. Brown is in our city to ferret out the crime. The case will be a hard fought one and several other arrests will no doubt follow.
