JULY 27, 1890.

Not an inch of Alaskan territory will be given to Canada in the adjustment of the boundary dispute, declares Congressman Hull.

Much of the clamor heard just now is intended to stop recruiting. But the new regiments will be far from a short time just the same.

It will never be known why Admiral Cervera went west instead of east from Santiago harbor, unless he was prompted by the thought that he might grow up with the country.

By the time the average man is 50 he has money enough due him in bad debts to support him the rest of his life, if he could collect it. Especially this time of a country newspaper man.

One of the democratic leaders, Mr. Cook, of Missouri, insists that "Democrats have a right to think." This may not be strictly true, but perhaps they have a right to think that they think.

Are trusts the product of anything but class legislation? And none fought harder in congress to protect them than the democratic senators who forced special features into the Wilson tariff for the sugar trust and the oil trust so condemned by Cleveland—Capital Journal.

The fierce democratic wrangle in Chicago is only an illustration of what it will be at the national convention when it meets. Bryan may be nominated easily but no platform will be adopted without a hard and hot fight, and when it is over democrats will vote as they please. The party is worse disrupted than it has been since 1872.

Douglas county will give her returning soldiers just as warm a welcome as though they had gratified the wishes of the citizens of our state and voted to be mastered out at Vancouver. We all consider their wishes paramount to our own, especially when there is a money consideration in their favor also. Glory is good, but the boys figured that a few extra dollars would come in very handy, also, and their heads are level in this respect. They are every one heroes and will be received as such.

Aguinaldo, the Filipino leader, is quoted as saying in a recent speech at Tarlac, at a celebration of the summer's declaration of independence, "that we shall see at last that the great American nation will acknowledge the right which is on our side." "Some states of the American Union have arisen in our favor. Especially is the democratic party convinced that both victory and vanguard will lose precious lives. Thus many of the people and many statesmen censure President McKinley as inhuman for having ordered his military representatives at Manila to seek means to bring about hostilities with the Filipinos."

The protest against the censorship at Manila, signed by a number of correspondents, is an amusing document in some respects. They seem surprised to find that they can not use the cable at Manila, which at present is simply a military telegraph, as freely as the wires are utilized at home. The army lines are formed around Manila or a few miles away. It is the front. Ordinarily, war correspondents are not allowed to telegraph anything from the front. Sherman banished them from his department. Commanding generals do not open their telegraphic facilities to outside matter. As a rule, the wires are crowded with army business. The correspondents at Manila have enjoyed greater facilities than is customary. They seem to imagine that they are called upon to conduct affairs at Washington as well as Manila. If these absurd pretensions and officious civilians are expelled from Gen. O'Dell's lines no soldier of experience will be surprised.

Dreyfus Seriously Ill.

Bangs, July 26.—Petit Journal says Captain Dreyfus is ill with a fever, and his condition is serious.

If it be true that President Kruger has resigned, there is no danger whatever that President McKinley will follow his example.

No American boy born this year will be named Aguinaldo, and very few if any will be christened Atkinson.

Mr. Ross called at war department, looked over work laid out for him, and was much discouraged.

NO FORMAL CHARGE PLACED.

McDaniel Cannot Be Indicted Before September.

No formal charge has yet been placed against McDaniel, as high prosecution and defense desire to await further developments in the case. The police are still confident that they have the right man, and do not take very much stock in the stories of those who think they saw McDaniel and Miss Fitch retreating homeward on the night of the murder. Prosecuting Attorney Sewall says these people may all have been mistaken, as none of them positively identify the couple, but simply give their opinion as to resemblance in general appearance and dress.

Business is more active in all of them than was ever known before. The reports of the bank clearances from all quarters of the West show an enormous increase in transactions since last year at this time. The earnings of the Western railroads are at the highest figure ever touched.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Vandenberg, who has just returned from a tour through several states in the Western country, is eloquent about the evidences of industrial activity and prosperity which he saw on every hand. He remarks that this is killing the silver issue as a democratic dogma. Democratic leaders in the West are saying the same thing.

There is a strong disposition among the smaller democratic magnates of the Western states to take up some other issue, and let silver drop out altogether, or put it so far in the background that it will not figure with any prominence in the canvass.

The theory of the prosecution is that the couple went to Cycle Park, where a quarrel ensued over proposals and charges, and that McDaniel, becoming angry, intended he would put the girl out of the way. She had kept company with no other young man, but was undoubtedly infatuated with him, and him alone. Every new development points to the fact of his having great power over her, while her affection does not seem to have bound a responsive sentiment in his breast. That she was pure and above reproach until she met him is proved more conclusively as the detective goes deeper into the details of her acquaintance with McDaniel.

The prisoner has very comfortable quarters in the third story of the city jail. In this story, women prisoners are kept, but one cell has been set apart for the better class of male prisoners. He eats heartily, sleeps well, and is permitted to see only his brother and his attorneys. Quite a number of young men who knew him apply for permission to visit the accused youth, but, unless they show some special business, they are refused. McDaniel has little, in fact, nothing to say, and seems to have an aversion to meeting any one's gaze. He has evidently come to the conclusion whether through the advice of his attorney or not, that "a still tongue means a wise head," and if the prosecution throws any more light on the murder of Miss Fitch, it will not be through any information gleaned from Frank McDaniel.

When the proper time comes the state will proceed to make a formal charge of murder against McDaniel in the municipal court, when the prisoner is expected to waive examination and he will then be remanded, without bail, to appear before the grand jury, which does not meet until September. The city prison will then be done with him, and he will then be given quarters in a steel cage in the basement of the Multnomah county courthouse, from whence he will emerge a convicted murderer or a free man.

Mr. H. Stanton is improving his place with a large new barn.

Quite a number of rigs of various kinds are passing through on their way to the coast.

Harvest is on, early down grain will yield fairly well, while late grain will be light.

Rev. E. J. Vivian, of McCook, Nebraska, is visiting with friends in the valley. He thinks Oregon is all right.

Victor of the CORONER'S JURY.

The following verdict was rendered by the coroner's jury Tuesday:

That the cause of death of the said Claire Adelaide Fitch was strangulation and smothering, and that the said strangulation and smothering was performed by some person with murderous intent.

That the said Claire Adelaide Fitch had secretly met one Frank McDaniel, and that the evidence is conclusive that the said Frank McDaniel was with the said Claire Adelaide Fitch on the said night of Wednesday, July 19, 1890, and in the said Cycle Park.

That excepting facts hereinbefore stated, the evidence obtainable is circumstantial, and that as to who committed the said crime of strangulating and smothering the said Claire Adelaide Fitch, the evidence both direct and circumstantial points to the said Frank McDaniel.

If it be true that President Kruger has resigned, there is no danger whatever that President McKinley will follow his example.

No American boy born this year will be named Aguinaldo, and very few if any will be christened Atkinson.

Mr. Ross called at war department, looked over work laid out for him, and was much discouraged.

"Necessity knows no law." It is a law of Nature that the blood must be kept pure, and Hood's Sarsaparilla does it.
