Source Cockran describes himself as an expansionist, but not as an imperialist. Imperialists, in fact, exist only in the imagination of a few old grandsons of the Altknew type.

Republicans passed an anti-trust law during Harrison's administration, and after Cleveland was elected the law was repealed. But the democratic press does not say a word about this, says a Baker City exchange.

The PLAINEALER says that bicyclists propose to take an active interest in the municipal election at Roseburg, on supporting those who will enact city legislation favorable to them. There are liable to be bicycle parties everywhere. Albany Democrat.

When people look back three years and remember the condition of business at the time that President McKinley was elected, it is surprising that the democrats should again attempt to play on the credulous by asking the country to give them another trial.

In Mr. Bryan's home county, the democrats nominated a soldier just returned from the Philippines for sheriff, but when he saw the democratic platform he declined to run on the ticket, as his views on expansion and his opinion of Aguinaldo were slightly different from what he was expected to advocate.

The town talk is to be moved from Ashland to Klamath Falls and consolidated with the Republican. In closing the talk he says: "As a matter of fact, Ashland needs three papers about as much as a dog needs two tails, and it is folly for any one to encourage the institution of a third paper here. People will do well if they accord sufficient support to two papers."

Professor Goldwin Smith, the eminent Canadian scholar, esteems Dewey's victory at Manila by light, and thinks Americans have lost their heads over him. Professor Smith is an agnostic or a skeptic in almost everything, a very useful man in reducing the world's tenature in various quarters; but in this case his cool Canadian breath will not be felt or noticed. Admiral Dewey's valor and heroism and the greatness of his achievement in Manila bay is not over estimated.

The Brownsville Times speaks out as follows: "V. K. Kirk returned last evening from attending the state fair at Salem. He did not appear very enthusiastic when asked by a Times representative what he thought of the fair. There is no use talking, you can't make a successful state fair out of a horse race only, and the sooner those who manage the present horse race at Salem realize this fact the sooner will we have a fair that will receive support from the best people of the state—the agriculturists' class."

The farmer doesn't have to solicit the patronage of anyone. He does not have to enter in competition and strive with his neighbors like a merchant, he does not have to wrangle and warp the truth for a living like a lawyer, he doesn't have to depend on donations reluctantly doled out by many ministers, in fact he can be the most independent man on God's green earth if he manages his affairs in a business like manner. He has more time and equal opportunities for improving his mind, he has less allurements for corrupting his morals, and his occupation is conducive to the highest development of his physical powers. He can be as intimate terms with the whole family, at peace with the whole world and can worship God under his own grapevine in a pleasurable, none daring to molest or make him afraid.—Ex.

Fruit Dryer Burned.
Last Friday afternoon the fruit evaporator of J. Wharton, who resides near the Soldiers' Home, was discovered on fire about four o'clock and there being no adequate protection the building was soon destroyed, together with about 20 bushels of prunes which were being dried.
The loss is estimated at about $200 with no insurance. This was the only evaporator in that neighborhood and will be quite a loss to the community.
Mr. Wharton had only dried about half of his prunes and the remainder of the crop will probably be hauled to the dryer of O. F. Goldrey.

OHIO CAMPAIGN OPENS.

Seventy-five Thousand Gather at Grace Park, Akron.

AKRON, O., Sept. 21.—The republican state campaign was opened here today with one of the largest crowds ever known in the history of politics in Ohio. The meeting was held at Grace Park, within whose confines fully 75,000 people had gathered. Judge Marsh, Gov. Roosevelt and others spoke.

What Would Bryan Do?

It is a somewhat remarkable fact that while Mr. Bryan is prancing about the country attacking the policy of the administration in its conduct of Philippine affairs, that he has not informed the party of which he is the acknowledged leader, nor the country at large what he thinks should be done in the Orient.

He is so busy denouncing republican policy, so eager to show that he is not in accord with what is being done, that he has failed to set forth his own policy.
What would Mr. Bryan have done in the Philippines at this time? Would he have the United States troops withdrawn? Would he haul down the flag and give up the islands at this juncture? Would he tell the Filipinos that we are done with them and that they can go ahead and establish a government of their own, or do without one, as they please?

Is Mr. Bryan aware that congress, and not the president, must and will determine the policy to be pursued by this government in the east? What could he do, were he president, that McKinley is not doing?
It is all very well for Mr. Bryan to rage and howl and draw his money from organizations which hire him as an attraction, but if he is the leader he pretends to be, and if he is the statesman thousands of his deluded followers think he is, he would have something to offer.

Trust Problem Discussed.

EDITOR PLAINEALER: Will you please allow me a little space to offer a few thoughts upon the all-absorbing question of trusts, for the simple reason that, to a considerable extent, my class of thinkers will doubtless be called on not long hence to decide this matter at the ballot box, if I judge aright the signs of the times.

As I view it there are three classes of combines or trusts, as they are called. A combination of labor, a combination of manufacturers and a combination of capital. Each combination has for its object, self interest. The laboring class combines to keep up the price of labor; the manufacturing class combines to keep up the price of their products. I observe also that while each of these classes try through combinations to keep up the price of their labor or products, they are each equally zealous to pull down the price of what they consume. The farmer wants high prices for his products and to give the least possible price for labor he may wish to employ and the lowest possible cost of all commodities he consumes. The manufacturer seeks to keep up the price of his output, and the lowest possible cost of raw material and articles of consumption.

And now comes in the third class of combines—capitalists. They combine to keep up interest on money and to control its volume.
The farmer will avail himself of every advantage of the markets for his products. He seeks the highest price for his products by reason of the scarcity on one hand or by an increased demand on the other. So, also, the manufacturer, and for the same reason, self interest pursues a like course. This is right, it is legitimate economy. The capitalist also pursues a similar course. His object is gain. Thus in the world of trade, barter, bargain and sale, there is an irrepressible conflict between the producers and consumers. In the struggle, "it is the survival of the fittest."
Any statutory law that shall deny this right or impair the obligations of contracts would be unjust and clearly comes within constitutional inhibition, and so the supreme court has ruled. It is clear to every right minded person that the citizens should have the right as well as privilege to agree or not agree to any business proposition of any other citizen. This he claims as a freeman's right, and any law that shall deny him this right would be unjust and subversive of liberty—a liberty formidable to tyrants only. I will not anticipate now objections to this theorem.

The democratic platform builders will very soon find out that it is hard work to make a nation with a full stomach feel hungry.—Randall Reesider.

TWO CONVENTIONS.

The Democrats in Massachusetts Pull Hair, While the Nebraska Republicans Hold a Love Feast

BOSTON, Sept. 22.—The riotous scenes and the bitter fights between the two factions of the democrats in this state, which characterized the all-night session in Music hall here in 1896, and that at Worcester the following year, were renewed with even greater bitterness at the annual convention of the state democracy in Mechanics' hall today. There was hardly a moment after the speeches of the temporary and permanent presiding officers were concluded when there was quiet and harmony in any degree. At times the entire delegations were upon their feet, the members standing on chairs or tables, shouting in the heat of passion, some denunciatory remarks at the chairman or the person who was endeavoring to speak upon the platform.

At three times it seemed as though even the force of 100 policemen in the hall would be of no avail, so impassioned were those on the floor, and the climax came when, at the request of the chairman, a captain of police appeared upon the platform and placed his hand upon Congressman John F. Fitzgerald in readiness to forcibly remove him from the platform, had he not subsided and allowed the chairman to address and calm the excited assemblage. The following ticket was finally nominated:
Governor, Robert Treat Paine, Jr., of Boston.
Lieutenant-Governor, John H. Mack, of North Adams.
Attorney-General, John H. Morrison, of Lowell.
Auditor, W. L. Ramehall, of Lynn.
Secretary of State, Harry Lloyd, of Boston.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION IN NEBRASKA.
OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 22.—The republican state convention was one of the most party in the state. M. B. Reese, of Lincoln, was nominated for supreme judge as the first ballot. L. G. McMillon, of Omaha, and William H. Ely, of Alameda, were both nominated for senators of the state university on the first ballot. Judge Reese has served six years ago to resume the practice of his profession. The administration was heartily indorsed.

RAILROAD DISASTER.

Northbound Overland Collided With a Section of a Freight Train Near Wolf Creek.

The northbound overland pulled into this city about nine hours last Sunday morning the delay being the result of a disaster a few miles south of Wolf Creek. It seems as though the freight, north bound also, had stopped at a side track a mile and a half from Wolf Creek and while the engine was transferring some cars to the side-track, the larger portion of the train which remained on the main track on a steep grade, was started backward by the brakes giving way and was soon running at a high speed down the grade toward the first section of the approaching northbound overland with which it collided a few miles south of Wolf Creek.

The collision resulted no more serious than the wrecking of the caboose and a few freight cars, while the engine, No. 1355, was considerably demolished. Fortunately Engineer Hendricks escaped unharmed while fireman Jones only sustained a slight injury to his left leg. Several of the passengers of the overland were considerably bruised and shaken up, among whom was Mrs. Chas. Clevenger of Grants Pass, a sister of Lee Wimberly of this city. Mrs. Clevenger stopped off in this city to recover from her injury and visit with relatives and friends.

Visit to the Hop Yards.

Having just returned from a trip to Coles Valley, one of the most beautiful valleys of the West, and having visited quite extensively the hop fields and orchards of that vicinity, I thought a few items thereof would be interesting to our many readers.
We arrived at Umpqua Ferry by Monday morning's stage and were kindly received and entertained elegantly by Mr. George Shumbrook and family. This is an ideal home situated in a community of wealth and delightful scenery, second to none in the Pacific Northwest.
To say we were surprised at the extent of the hop industry of northwest Douglas, is putting it mildly. Within the scope of country from Oakland to Coles Valley we found between five and six hundred people busy as bees, happily, light-hearted and jolly people—not sad, miserable, woe-begone, calamity howlers, complaining of hard times and poor wages or corrupt administration, grinding the poor to the wall and bringing the country to starvation and ruin, but six hundred souls who

To all sick and discouraged People in mind, body or estate. No matter what your ailment or how long you have been ailing. Greeting, Health and Peace.

There are thousands of people all over the world who are sick and literally discouraged because medicine has failed to cure them. They are drawing out lives of torture, having come to the conclusion that there is no hope for them.
But there is hope. There is a positive cure for every form of disease, even those commonly called incurable, as Diabetes, Bright's disease, Consumption and Cancer.
That there is an immense power in the mind for the cure of the sick is a truth, which is daily growing stronger to the consciousness of all thinking people. Take for instance "Christian Science." It is more than a fad, it is a rebirth in part of an old-thousand years old—ever active and wonderful, but still imperfectly understood Force in Nature.
Still Christian Science has no claim to be called a science (and it may be questioned whether its founder, who is said to have made a million of dollars out of it, has justifiable claims to be a considered consistent follower of the lowly Nazarine) yet it cannot be denied, that Mary Eddy is an Idealist and has found that mind controls matter, and cures are being made, which to all but the initiated, seem almost miraculous.
These cures, perhaps all cures, are effected by changing the vibrations in a patient's mind. The presence of a doctor, whom we have been accustomed to trust will often change these vibrations and supplant fear with hope. Hope is allied to the will. The will takes its rise out of hope. As soon as the vibrations are changed from doubt and fear to hope, the will begins to gather force and assert itself. When our treatment, mental and bio-chemical, strikes squarely into the centres of diseased vibration and the patient begins at once to recover.
I claim to have found the means by which Mental (not Christian) Science coming in to the aid of a mild and rational therapeutics (largely Bio-Chemical or life chemical) can cure the most serious forms of disease either of mind or body. Even those troubles of Organic character, affecting Brain, lungs, heart, stomach, liver, kidneys, or sex organs, and I propose to prove this to the satisfaction of the afflicted who may call upon me. I will give references and examination. To those who cannot come but who write me, enclosing stamp I'll send free advice. My permanent P. O. address is Box 825, Portland, Oregon. I shall remain for a week possibly ten days at the McCallen House, but come at once if you want to know what ails you, and what you must do to get well.
