DEFENSES OF WASHINGTON.

Gen. Wilson's Report on Year's Operations and Armament of the Capital City.

Gen. Wilson, chief of engineers, has made a report of the operations for the defense of Washington. These works are in charge of Lieut. Col. Charles J. Allen and Lieut. Jay J. Morrow, his assistant. In regard to the defenses, Gen. Wilson says:

"The defenses of Washington are located at three sites—two on the left bank and one on the right bank of the Potomac river. One of the sites on the left bank is in charge of an ornamental sergeant; the other two were garrisoned during the year.

"At the beginning of the fiscal year permanent improvements were completed for four ten-inch guns on disappearing carriages and three eight-inch guns on disappearing carriages. One ten-inch B. L. rifle, intended for tests of experimental parapet, had also been mounted temporarily for defense during the year with Spain, with funds from the appropriation for 'national defense.' This gun was subsequently mounted on the platform built for testing experimental parapet. In addition to the foregoing, construction was in progress upon two emplacements for ten-inch guns on disappearing carriages and for two four-inch rapid-fire guns, under allotments from the appropriation for 'national defense.' These batteries were entirely completed during the year.

"Construction was commenced during the year upon emplacements for eight 15-inch mortars, two six-inch guns on disappearing carriages, two five-inch rapid-fire guns on disappearing carriages, and two 15-pounder rapid-fire guns. At the close of the year good progress had been made on all these batteries, with expectations that they will be completed during the present working season. An electric light and power station was completed for the works on the left bank, and construction of a plant commenced for works on the right bank. The torpedo storehouse in process of construction at the close of the fiscal year was completed and occupied, and work begun on an exterior to the main casemate. The telephone system planted in the channel during the year was completed for a short time after the beginning of the year, when all the material was taken up, cleaned, repaired and stored.

STARTLING RAT STORY.

A London District Post Office Closed and Houses Overrun by the Rodents.

About a year ago an important district in London was closed. It had been opened for stamps, money orders, post office orders and telegrams last night, and it was in the center of a thickly populated district. One day the doors were shut and a card affixed, stating that it was closed for repairs. Weeks passed and it was not reopened. The postmaster general received complaints by the way. But the weeks became months, and still the doors remained closed. And the people around wondered why.

Her Majesty's Portrait.

Prof. Angell, the queen's favorite painter, who has recently been entrusted with the execution of a portrait of her majesty, enjoys the highest confidence. No secret, he has been telling an interviewer, is hidden from him. The last time the queen was sitting to him at Windsor castle, on the occasion of her eightieth birthday, she wished to be taken simply as a woman, not as the queen. This portrait, at her majesty's request, is to be reproduced for circulation among the English people. The queen, however, will not allow the original portrait to be used for reproduction, so Prof. Angell will make a copy of it.—Chicago Times-Herald.
