SENATOR GOEBEL SHOT

One of Two Shots Fired Passed Through His Body.

WOUND NOT REGARDED FATAL

Farmer Arrested on Suspicion, Declares He is Innocent—Great Excitement at Frankfort.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 30.—Senator Goebel was shot and seriously wounded after 11 o'clock this morning. The shooting was done by some man at present unknown. Goebel was walking up the sidewalk leading to the senate chamber, when a man in the second story of the building immediately to the east of the capitol, fired upon him.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 30.—Goebel is not fatally wounded. The ball struck him in the right side and passed through the body, coming out below the shoulder blade. At noon a report from Goebel's room is that the wounded man is resting easily.

Harland Whitaker, a farmer of Butler county, was arrested on a charge of shooting Goebel.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 30.—William Goebel was shot and very seriously wounded this morning at 10 minutes after 11 o'clock, while passing through the stables on his way to the capitol building. Two shots were fired from a rifle, only one of them taking effect. It struck Goebel in the right side, one-third of the distance from the armpit to the hip.

The ball passed entirely through the body, coming out below the right shoulderblade. It is not thought by the physicians in charge that the wound will prove fatal, unless complications set in. Harland Whitaker, a farmer of Butler county, Ky., is under arrest, charged with having fired the shot, but he denies that he had anything to do with it. Five revolvers were found upon him when he was taken into custody.

Goebel, in company with Colonel Jack Chinn and Warden Lillard, of the Frankfort penitentiary, was walking up the sidewalk leading from the street to the capitol building. Goebel being on the right of the three. When the three men were two-thirds of the distance from the street to the capitol, the shot was fired from the third-story window of the building occupied as the offices of the governor, secretary of state and other leading officials of the state. The ball struck Goebel in the side, and he instantly dropped to the pavement. Chinn and Lillard instantly seized him, Chinn saying as he did so:

"I guess they have got you, Goebel."
"Yes," replied the wounded man, "I guess they have got me for sure."
While Chinn was holding the wounded man, supporting his head in his arms, four shots were fired at both men. All of them struck close, making the dust fly from the brick pavement. Both Chinn and Lillard struck to their friend neither of them moving from his side until the firing ceased, when Lillard ran for help. He had not far to go, for there is always a crowd around the gates of the capitol building.

A crowd of men were around Goebel in less than a minute and he was carried to the office of Dr. Home, in the basement of the capitol, about 1000 feet from the spot where the shooting occurred. Home made a superficial examination of the wound. He declared the ball had penetrated the right lung and would in all probability prove fatal. Goebel was then hastily taken from the office of Home to his own room on the second floor of the capitol hotel. Guards were stationed at the foot of every staircase leading to the second floor and nobody, not even the guests of the hotel, were allowed to pass.

Amore extended examination by Home and several other physicians who had been called, resulted in the announcement that the wound would not necessarily prove fatal and that the wounded man would in all probability recover. The ball, it was found, had inflicted a wound which was somewhat of a grazing nature and had not gone through the lung in a direct line, as Home had thought upon first examination. Had the ball struck the chest half an inch to the right, it would have caused certain death.

The house was in session when the shooting occurred and the senate was to have met in 20 minutes. The capitol building was, therefore, filled with members of the legislature and the greatest excitement followed. From both halls men ran wildly down the steps without hats or coats, and one member of the house came out carrying in his hand a bill on which he had been arguing when the shooting occurred. By the time the members of the legislature had reached the lower floor, Goebel was on his way to the office of Home. The members hastily rushed back to their room, adjourned with most unceremonious haste and poured down the streets again.

The news that Goebel had been shot spread through the streets with lightning-like rapidity, and in a few minutes crowds were hastening toward the capitol from every direction. Within three minutes after the shooting, a line of men was thrown around the building from which the shots were fired, with the intention of preventing the escape of any body from the structure. John W. Miles, an aged citizen of Frankfort, was standing at the foot of the stairway leading from the first floor, when a man, evidently a mountaineer, came rushing down the steps. Miles instantly threw his arms around the man and held him, calling loudly for help.

Assistance was close at hand, and no escape was possible for the prisoner, even had he attempted to make an effort. He submitted to arrest very quietly, claiming again and again that he had nothing to do with the shooting. He was hurried away with all possible speed, it being feared an attempt might be made to lynch him. He was very quiet, and did not lose his composure for an instant, notwithstanding the excitement around him.

That reconnaissance showed the purpose on the part of the Boers to cut off Buller. Should they had an overwhelming force over the Tugela and crush the British at Chieveley, they would have Buller in a trap.

Meantime, the Boers are in force at Colenso, only a few miles away from that base. Last Tuesday they crossed the river there, and made a reconnaissance of the British camp, apparently with a view of ascertaining the strength of the force which Buller left behind to guard his base and communications.

The party that crossed came in contact with Buller's rear guard, and killed several British.

BULLER IS IN DANGER

In Danger of Being Cut Off From Supplies.

WARREN'S LOSSES HEAVY.

Lady Smith Must Fall—White May Attempt to Cut Through Boer Lines.

New York, Jan. 30.—A London dispatch to the Evening World today says: Buller's danger is now forcing itself on military experts. The committee of national defense is gravely considering it. Lord Roberts, it is reported, called the committee to see Buller and his forces arrive safely from their present position to the south of the Little Tugela river. They will be in imminent danger of having their communications cut. Lord Roberts has pointed out that Buller has with him an immense transport train, carrying his ammunition and supplies. This interferes with the mobility of his army.

Buller's main force is now about 22 miles from its base at Frere and Chieveley. It is between the Big Tugela river, over which it has retreated, and the Little Tugela river, over which it has to retreat in order to begin marching to its base. That part of it comprising Lyttelton's brigade may still be on the north side of the Tugela at Potgieter's Drift, though it is generally believed that it too, has retreated over the river. It will take days for Buller's army to get back to its base.

Meantime, the Boers are in force at Colenso, only a few miles away from that base. Last Tuesday they crossed the river there, and made a reconnaissance of the British camp, apparently with a view of ascertaining the strength of the force which Buller left behind to guard his base and communications.

brave men in the beleaguered camp and its only rational policy of carrying on the war. It has to be faced without sentiment or unavailing regret." The Daily Mail says: "Such a move could not be made with sufficient speed to save Ladysmith. It would mean that the soundest military principle dictate the reinforcement of our army in Natal and a fresh advance, this time in ample force.

"There are two dangers to be guarded against—foreign intervention and further military disaster in South Africa. To prevent the first, the whole navy should be mobilized and the naval reserves called out. Our squadrons should be distributed in the proper position for war. The volunteers should be put under arms and provided with transport and artillery. The remnants of militia should be embodied.

"A force of at least 100,000 men over and above the volunteers and militia is required to supply our general needs in South Africa. If it can't be raised on terms of voluntary service, we must have drafting, as in the United States during the civil war."

The London Post says: "There is a rumor that General Kitchener or Lord Roberts has left Cape Town to take command of a movement by General Gatacre and General French's forces combined, with heavy additions of fresh troops, against the Orange Free State. The defeat is bitter, but it is right to face it, while it is wrong to keep the news from ourselves. The meeting of the defense committee on Saturday was probably caused by a knowledge of General Buller's defeat, though the fact was kept from the public until Sunday.

The measures now urgently needed are development of the military resources of the country, with 100,000 men in the field and 50,000 to follow. The moment has come to push on the training of all the troops left at home."

The Leader says: "The enemy has beaten us at the sticking point; he has beaten us in strategy tactics, and he has induced us to give up the first plan, where he would have hardly had a show and to conform to this plan, where naturally everything is against us.

Is there a single soldier who can justify what we have done on other than political principles? Not one. We know from his own pen that General White was induced by one of Mr. Chamberlain's deputies to disastrously change his plan. We know that General Buller, after working up to the original plan of marching on Bloemfontein, was persuaded by somebody to give it up, and he was persuaded within three days. That is a pretty problem for parliament to what its wife on the opening day."
