Geo. Minkler and sister, Mrs. Lilly Cann, of San Jose, California, arrived in this city Wednesday to enjoy a pleasant visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Minkler, and their many friends. Mrs. Cann's husband is one of the leading florists of San Jose.

A Clackamas county man reports that he made 15 pounds of butter from one Jersey cow in one week recently. This butter if manufactured at a creamery would sell for six dollars in cash. Of course this is an extraordinary production, but it shows what can be done by careful and intelligent care of the cow. Every cow well taken care of would earn a good profit if there were more creameries.—Yamhill Reporter.

A Live Road Supervisor.

Wm. Landess is doing a first class piece of work on the three miles of road coming under his supervision just east of town. He plowed the entire road before it became too dry and Tuesday commenced grading, throwing up 600 yards the first day. As soon as the grading is completed Mr. Landess will commence macadamizing with the crushed rock now being prepared by the rock crusher.—Cottage Grove Nugget.

To the Public.

Believing we can do better by our patrons and ourselves by selling strictly for cash, we have decided to keep no books from May 1, 1900. Hoping this may suit the convenience of those who wish to deal with us, also at all times soliciting a fair share of patronage we are

Respectfully yours,
GADDIS BROS.

Dewey has again returned home after swinging around the globe as a peep, and he easily holds the list for the world's best living illustrated travel genius.

The Treasury Department has named a special agent to the Pacific coast to investigate the large influx of Japanese coolies to this country within the last few months.

Three years ago Uncle Sam had no idea that he would be speaking today of Gov. Allen, of Porto Rico; Gov. Wood, of Cuba; and Gov. Dole, of Hawaii. The world do move.

Of course, the gentlemen of the Southwest, like the wool growers, are for another republican administration. The desire to return to a calamity era is not in evidence anywhere.

There must be a hot old time political out in Jackson county, the Ashland Record says: "Cigars and whiskey are catching hold. Mr. Noble's son Cyrus is doing lots of business."

Dewey sneaks of Bryan as chiefly a populist and the exponent of populist principles. That is where the Admiral hits the mark as well as if he were the most experienced of politicians.

Bryan's acceptance of the Senex nomination and platform will indicate that he is giving more thought to the populist ticket of 1904 than to leaving the foreign hope in the present year.

Everything tended to disaster during the last democratic administration, and since then everything has moved in the direction of prosperity. It is a mere coincidence," vote for the candidate.

In saying that Bryan is the man the republicans want to see nominated in Kansas City, Wharton Barker is nearly correct. Barker was nominated for president recently by the middle-of-the-road populists. He knows the feeling in the populist ranks toward Bryan. He knows the feeling in the populist ranks toward Bryanism. He knows how the republicans feel on the subject of Bryan's candidacy. Bryan will be an easy man for the republicans this year to beat, and consequently there will be jubilation among them when the news comes that he has been nominated.

In nomination of A. H. Black, the enterprising merchant and creamery man, Myrtle Point, for representative of Coos county, the republicans made a most wise selection. Mr. Black is a man of great executive ability, a thorough business man, enthusiastic in the progress and advancement of his county, and a man thoroughly awake to the best interests of our state and nation. His character is without blemish and none more worthy, conscientious and able representative could be desired in any county. He should be elected, and will no doubt, by an overwhelming majority.
