Advertising Rates on Application.

OCTOBER 17, 1901.

With this issue the PLAINDEALER introduces a new and interesting feature to its readers which is a step forward on the part of the paper and an improvement which can but be appreciated by our large family of readers. We refer to a series of fine illustrations—newspaper half-tone cuts presenting all noted personages prominent before the public and passing events of note in a graphic, up-to-date and comprehensive manner regularly twice-a-week, supplemented with all the latest and best telegraphic news. Of course this service comes pretty high for a county newspaper, but we mean to keep the Twice-a-week PLAINDEALER thoroughly abreast of the times and improve it as often as our rapidly increasing patronage will justify. We consider that the best is done to good for the PLAINDEALER readers and will strive to keep the paper up to the highest standard in its class.

The PLAINDEALER is in receipt of an advertising proposition from an Eastern Brewing Co. for which service the company desires us to accept as payment, twenty quarts of seven-year-old Rye whiskey. They add in a postscript that "If you cannot use twenty quarts yourself, get your friends to assist you." We have signed up the contract and now watch our friends multiply.

Only a little more than half of the month of October has expired and our books show thirty new subscribers and cash in advance renewals, an average of two unsolicited subscribers a day for this month thus far. This is an evidence of the PLAINDEALER'S growing popularity and rapidly increasing patronage.

Wallace McCamant is said to have a congressional boom up his sleeve by which he expects to succeed Malcolm Moody. But there are some striking uncertainties and disappointments in Oregon politics that even the erudite McCamant may not be able to overcome.—Engage Register.

Monday's Daily Oregonian gave an illustration of Homer Davenport's Albany lecture. Harry Murphy, the Oregonian's cartoonist, executed the work, which demonstrated the fact that he is a close second to the great Davenport.

According to Dr. Mann, one of the attending physicians, President McKinley's last intelligible words, spoken to his wife, were: "Nearer, my God to Thee, 'e'en though it be a cross, has been my constant prayer."

President Roosevelt met the expectations of the country in signing all the power of the Government to secure the release of Miss Stone, the American missionary held by Bulgarian brigands for a ransom.

Have you subscribed to the McKinley monument fund? If not, you should do so at once. His monument should be worthy of the richest and greatest country on earth.

There is scarcely anything left for the growler. The wheat crop was fairly good and the prunes crop is the best ever known, although slightly damaged by the early rains.

A newspaper man in Philadelphia kidnapped an robber a woman last week. This should be a warning to those in arrears on subscription to pay up.

We don't suppose it makes any difference with the Englishmen whether we keep the cup or not. You know they use a jug.

If this bank and train robbery business continues the appellation of "Wild and Woolly East" will not be out of order.

Marquis Ito, the Japanese statesman, now in the United States, deserves the cordial welcome he is receiving.

There is no truth in the rumor that Hon. David B. Hill has been divorced from the Presidential bee.

The Ohio democrats are not even putting up a respectable bluff in the way of a campaign this year.

Drilling Progresses at Ashland.

The good work of drilling goes on with increasing vigor at the plant of the Southern Oregon Oil Co., on the Alford place, near town, and the hole was down to a depth of 875 feet, Saturday night at 12 o'clock, when work ceased for the night to enable the 35 horse power boiler to be cleaned and blown out. This morning all is bustle and activity at the plant, the puff of the engine is heard and the thud of the drill comes from the hillside as the bit drives its way through a strata of sand stone that is highly impregnated with bitumen. This morning the suction pump brings out of the well a sulphurous black cum of this bituminous matter which is now being penetrated. The indications for ultimate success in tapping the eagerly sought gray fluid grow more hopeful as the work of the drill progresses and the prospect of the enterprise are more sanguine of striking a flow of oil in steadily paying quantities than at any time since the beginning of the work. Since the drill has been going through the creosote strata highly charged with oil and impregnated with bitumen even the most skeptical are bound to admit that they are convincing proof of the oil bearing character of the underlying strata. Oil drilling experts are enthusiastic over the outcome of the drilling operations at the Alford place and likely oil lands are now being diligently sought by those whose aim is to exploit them in the near future.—Ashland Times.

E. M. Black, aged 75 years, died at his home near Gardiner, Oct. 6, 1901, of paralysis. He leaves a wife and three sons, C. W. and Noah, of Gardiner, and J. A. Black, a prominent merchant of Drain.

High School Notes

The second month of the fall term is with us, and the following figures testify to the flourishing condition of our public and high school:
Total enrollment up to Oct. 15, 1901, 481.
Total enrollment up to Oct. 15, 1900, 470.
Several new pupils have entered during the past week bringing the enrollment of the eighth grade and high school up to 70.

We lack the encouragement given by personal visits from parents and patrons. These are few and far between. Persons have been heard to say, "Why I didn't know Roseburg had a high school." How can they know if they do not take interest enough to find out? The high school has been established three years and the coming school year, will, we hope, see a graduate from the four year course. A careful invitation is extended by teachers and pupils to see how our work is progressing.

The football team is getting along finely. A game has been arranged for Saturday evening with the Eugene high school, and another is being arranged with Drain to occur about Nov. 9.

HIGH SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT.

The Athletic Club will give a combined social and entertainment at the school house on Friday evening, Oct. 19, at 8 o'clock. Come everybody, have a good time and help a good cause along. One of the features of the entertainment will be a concert solo by Miss H. J. Perrin. Miss Perry is a wonder on the coronet and has played all over the Pacific coast giving excellent satisfaction to everybody. The admission will be 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children. We will also have a mandolin and guitar solo by Jay G. Crocker, the world-famed leader of the Philippine concert band, and William E. Lawson who you've heard so much about. Come one, come all and you'll have a good time.

Carille-Parrott Nuptials.

Married, at the home of the bride's parents in North Roseburg, Monday afternoon, Oct. 14, 1901, Miss Ethel Marion Parrott and Mr. Frank Carille, of Geyserville, Calif. Rev. Mulligan officiating.
The bride was daintily dressed in white silk mousseline with applique trimming and carried a bouquet of white carnations and roses. The groom was attired in the tastefully decorated tuxedo and took their place beneath a festoon of flowers and foliage where the ceremony, which united these two lovely lives, was pronounced in a very impressive manner. The congratulations of those present being received, the couple led the way to the dining room where a delicious repast was served.

The groom is well and favorably known in Sycouse county, California, where for several years he has been in the employ of the California and Northern Pacific Railway Company, and at present has charge of the station at Geyserville, which position he has filled with credit for about two years.

The bride has many friends throughout Douglas county and various parts of the state who join in wishing them a long life of happiness.
On account of the recent illness of the bride, it was decided to have a very quiet wedding with only the immediate relatives and a few friends present.
Many useful and beautiful presents were received.

Mr. and Mrs. Carille took their departure on the evening train for San Francisco where they will spend a few days. From there they will go to Heidelberg to visit with Mr. Carille's parents, after which he will resume his duties at Geyserville, where they will be at home to their friends after October 22nd.

Hedden-Wilson Wedding.

The farm home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Wilson, near Yoncalla, Oregon, was the scene of a very pretty and quiet wedding on Oct. 9, 1901. The contracting parties were Miss Hannah, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, of Yoncalla, and Mr. D. L. Hedden, of Drain.
The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. S. Smith of the Oakland Presbyterian church, at 10:30 a. m. before the near relatives of both families, the rooms being beautifully decorated for the occasion.
A tempting and delicious wedding breakfast was served, the young couple leaving on the noon train for Portland.
The bride is one of Yoncalla's popular young ladies and the groom one of Drain's prosperous farmers.
After a short visit through the Willamette valley Mr. and Mrs. Hedden will return to Drain where they will reside.

From Our Correspondents.

What is Anarchy?
What is anarchy? Anarchy is at once the most disagreeable and repulsive of all social remedies. And it means the annihilation of the government of men by men, and the formation of a society without governing restriction.

It is not a new idea, but one that has manifested itself from time to time amongst the different nations of the world; and it has been engaged by one historian that the principles of anarchy were prevalent at the time of the Judges of Israel before the chosen people had been governed by a king.

Anarchy is of two distinct classes, individual and communistic. The latter being by far the most dangerous to all forms of national government.

The spirit of anarchy in America has been of an insidious growth, and a part of the foreign element of our population are inclined to a spirit of rebellion against our grand and generous government, that has ever extended open arms to the despoiled, of all other nations of the world.

While we find that Russia, Italy, Austria and Spain, are the nations that for countless generations have been the most vigorous upon the earth and peaking portion of their people; we have also observed that the descendants of these nations, that have found peaceful property upon America's broad lands and under America's judicious government, have inherited from their rebellious ancestry a tendency to object and complain against our governmental policies. Just as did their forefathers from the governments of their native lands. They are anarchists by heredity.

That awful tragedy at Buffalo that robbed our nation of one of the wisest and most humane rulers that the world ever knew, was a blow against every loyal American, as well as a direct assault upon organized government. Murder is such an awful crime, that to hear that a man has been murdered in our community fills us with a nameless horror.

Ten thousand times greater was the fatal message to America, that our beloved president, who had passed through one of the most trying and painful terms of office, and who was again chosen by our people to fill the same office, became his administration had commanded the profound respect of our people and won the admiration of the civilized world, was stricken down while holding a reception, and even while the cowardly assassin was, under the guise of friendship, clasp his hand. The ancient history of Rome, or the brutal tyranny of Nero, does not recount an act of greater treachery or of so vile a character.

Education is certainly the surest remedy for anarchy. Coming generations must be taught that government is a necessity; and the foreign emigration that seeks refuge upon our shores, must be taught submission to our laws.

Crimes should be punished at every step. He had no personal malice against President McKinley. He was the senseless tool of a horde of dissatisfied and envious wretches, who were too worthless to strive by honest endeavor, for a place and name in the busy world. But by a coup d'etat of the murder of our beloved chief, he hoped to destroy our government and secure a share of the spoils; also to attain to the distinction that crime might give them. Cravages hoped to make himself famous and become a leader of anarchists. He was the mad act of a mind overwrought by the vile eloquence of Emma Goldman; and his recent exhibition of cowardice at Auburn prison when he wallowed on the prison floor and begged to be protected against the mob who were yelling outside, followed as a natural consequence, after the excitement of the hour that had nerved his hand to murder, had passed by. That he should be convicted and executed in an orderly way is justice. He is not fit to live, and all Americans will breathe more freely when he shall have expired his crime.

Again, there is now some danger that unwise legislation may result from the frenzy of our grief. So let us all gaze backward upon the patience and gentle forgiveness of our lost leader, whose great heart could forgive, even in the agony of his certain doom. As we see through a mist of tears, we hear no word of censure uttered against his slayer. He asked that he might not be hurt. And we feel the heartache that our president felt as he clasped the hand of the frail wife, who had been his cherished and beloved companion and whom he had nursed so faithfully in her recent illness upon our far western shores, may "He who watches the sparrows," be his comforter. As the dying husband clasped her hand in his last farewell, he could trust all to the God he had served so long and well, and humbly acknowledging the justice of God's holy will, he was ready for transition from earth to heaven.

Now let us turn in our hour of bereavement, to the one who was called through much tribulation, to take upon himself the mantle of power, our lost one had bequeathed him. All eyes are centered upon President Roosevelt. And nobly is he starting out upon his high mission, and let us all accord to him our sympathy and our loyal support and in that way help him to bear his burdens, that he must feel to be so great in taking the place of President McKinley at such a time, and whose wise policies he is following so carefully, and as we commend our bereaved country and our new president to the supreme ruler of the universe, we ask his continued guidance as an individual, a state and a nation.

try in the coming year to make our department work a valuable adjunct to our educational influence.
WHEREAS, We rejoice in the great volume of testimony which is coming to us from the laboratories of the old world, and from the medical journals and physicians of our own country in support of the principles of total abstinence, and
WHEREAS, We deem it of great importance that every member of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union be familiar with these truths and be a medium for communicating them to the teacher in the public schools and to the public generally.

WHEREAS, That we urge all unions in our state to devote at least three meetings of the local unions, to the study of the questions, What shall be taught in the study of temperance physiology? To what extent should it be taught? The programs and necessary materials for such meetings may be obtained of the national superintendent of Scientific Temperance Instruction.

Since this first year of the 20th century has witnessed the establishment of a Court of Nations for the settlement of international differences, therefore be it Resolved, That we will labor to create sentiment in favor of referring all controversies to the arbitration of reason instead of resorting to the sword. That we continue, as in the past, to aid the Florence Critchfield Refuge Home and to strengthen the hands of Mrs. Anna R. Riger, who has so long labored that work.

That we urge as special work in the unions the presentation of the matter of organizing anti-cigarette leagues before the school boards, and that these leagues be organized wherever it is possible to do so. That we rejoice in the great victory that came to the temperance cause by the passage of the anti-liquor law at the opening of congress, Dec. 1900. That we realize the victory is menaced and we are assured the effort to repeal this law will be in evidence when congress again convenes. We urge white ribboners and temperance people everywhere to strengthen the position taken by our senators and representatives at the time of the passage of this act, thus preventing any backward step. That in the death of our former state president, Mrs. Nellie White-Kelsey, our state has lost a noble and patriotic woman, set in his country first we would look in substance to the fact that she had been elected by the military and naval forces to the example of her husband, and which she stood true till death, and could spread sympathy to the bereaved family. That we in sympathy with all our citizens are shocked at the taking of the life of the president of our nation. We urge our people to elect law that will root out anarchistic sentiment from our country and thus prevent a repetition of such a horrible murder. We also urge that measures be advanced that will aid in removing the foundation cause of the legal liquor traffic. We believe it was in the nation that the assassin learned the lessons that made him what he was. That the thanks of the convention are due and are heartily given to the ladies of the union of Astoria, who have tendered us every courtesy and attention, which has made us feel so much at home in their midst. To the ladies of the various churches who have ministered to our material needs by furnishing a such beautiful luncheon at the noon hour. To the officers and members of the Methodist and Presbyterian churches who have kindly opened their doors for us. To Miss Busey, who had charge of the music, which added so much to the enjoyment of the evening. To the Southern Pacific railroad who gave reduced rates to delegates. To the janitor, who so faithfully attended to our needs, and to the pages, Matrons Lyle Masters and Eldon Renfro and Miss Genevieve Courtney, who so pleasantly discharged their duties. To the newspapers for furnishing space for reports of this convention; and to all who have contributed to the success of the same.

Mrs. H. R. FERGUSON,
Mrs. M. E. ELDER.
