S. P. Co.'s Industrial Movement.—L. B. Moore, the genial local agent of the Southern Pacific Company is not only awake to his company's interests, but to the interests of the producer and shipper as well. Since the company has inaugurated its industrial movement all along its line in this state and has put forth so many inducements to encourage the farmer to produce a greater variety of farm products, Agent Moore has been doing his part to advance these interests locally as far as the authority invested in him would permit. This movement on the part of the company together with the hearty cooperation of its local agents will tend to hasten the development of our resources and industries and prove of mutual benefit to the people generally and the company and it is a very worthy and commendable movement on the part of the S. P. company. We are pleased to see the good work going on and feel it the duty of the local press to aid the good cause every way possible. In this connection we desire to call special attention to an article in another column appearing under the caption of "Will Help to Secure Market."

BOUGHT A MILLION POUNDS OF PEAS.—Edwin Weaver, of Myrtle Creek was in this city Friday and Saturday. With Mr. Ward he purchased about 1,500,000 pounds of peas in this country this season. Some fruit has been boxed but the bulk of the crop has been forwarded in sacks. Most of the shipping is now over for the season. The tendency of prices has been downward, with the average lower than last year, but the crop was generally good. Mr. Weaver's prune crop aggregated about 200,000 pounds of dried fruit, and was of excellent quality, varying 40 to 50, for which he received a top price.

DIED.—In this city, Thursday, Oct. 24, 1901, M. R. Daniels, aged 22 years, 11 months, and 24 days, after a very brief illness. The decease was an estimable young man, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. From Mary to John Roseburg, Ore., Oct. 28, 1901.

DEAR JOHN:—

I have some news to tell you. Mr. W. C. Hildebrand has the loveliest Dry Goods and Clothing store on the corner where Caro's used to be, where I used to meet you after school.

They call the store "Hildebrands" and I am going to trade there all the time. They don't have a horrid old job lot, but everything they've got is good and reliable. Since it is so rainy and disagreeable, I don't go out to the store very often, but send Josephine and little Cyran and Hildebrands never works off old or shelf worn stuff on them.

Write soon and send me a V or two.

Your wife,

MARY.

DRILLING MACHINERY.

Has Arrived for the Umpqua Valley Oil Co.

DRILLING OPERATIONS TO BEGIN.

Location of First Well Will be Either in Vicinity of Myrtle Creek or Oakland

The large and complete oil drilling plant recently purchased by the Umpqua Valley Oil Co., at Bakerfield, California, arrived at this place this morning, but was forwarded on to Oakland, where it will be side-tracked and held pending the decision of the company regarding the site for the first drilling operations. It is understood that Myrtle Creek is making a strong bid for the sinking of the first well at that place and the chances for securing the first well are about equal between the places mentioned. The fine plant, however, was shipped direct to Oakland from California from the fact the freight rate was no higher to that point than to Roseburg and if it is decided to commence operations there, the company will be ahead, the freight charges from this place to Oakland.

The matter of securing the first well by the rival towns where the oil prospects are about equal is of considerable importance, as the operations, whether successful or not will attract a great deal of attention throughout the state and give the place much valuable advertising, although there is little doubt of the ultimate success of the venture at either place, in the opinion of some of the best geologists and oil experts of the Pacific coast. The geological formations at these places are almost identical to the Bakerfield country and even the surface oil seepages are in evidence. Work will commence on the derrick and bull dog for the plant just as soon as a decision is arrived at by the company regarding the site for the first active operations.
