American Horses for British Troops. NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 12.--The shipment of American horses to South Africa for the use of the British troops was resumed today under the new contract recently made by the British government. The contract calls for purchase and shipment of many hundreds of American horses and mules, which have been found to stand the South African climate better than those bred in England. Six steamships, three of them owned by American companies, are to be engaged in the transportation.

The Henthon Chinese. Pekin, Nov. 11.--In accordance with an imperial edict issued by Prince Ching all of the civil and military officials in Peking today assembled at the Board of Rites and took part in the traditional ceremonial of rescuing the sun from the dragon, which the Chinese believe seeks to destroy that luminary. The ceremony consisted of the beating of conch shells and drums, the drizzling noise of which is supposed to frighten the dragon.
