ABOUT SOUTHERN OREGON.
Answer to Questions Frequently Asked by Home-seekers.
People in the east and north are always asking all sorts of questions regarding Oregon. These questions are of times too ridiculous to be taken seriously or answered intelligently. Below is a list received this week by one of our cities, which we print because of the fact that there are several new ones and someone who may receive this paper in the east may want to add them to their long list of inquiry. There are some of the questions, however, which are such as any prospective locator would want to know and these we will endeavor to answer. Here is the list:
"Is the climate mild?" Answer:—Yes. There is probably not a country anywhere with a more even temperature than here. The climate in Southern Oregon is a very agreeable medium between the extreme wet and fog of northern Oregon and Washington and the warm, dry climate of California. Here the weather is neither too hot nor too cold; neither too dry nor too wet; just right for all purposes.
"What about the winter; is it long or short?" Answer:—We in reality have a winter as the term is understood in the east. From the middle of November to April we have frequent showers of rain—from one to two days each week, with warm sunshine between and some frost at night. Rarely ever any snow in the valley. Unprotected water pipes are rarely ever frozen.
"Are the summers very warm?" Answer:—Yes. Sometimes the temperature reaches 100 in the shade, but there is never any prostration from heat. The atmosphere is so dry—never humid during warm weather as it is in the east—that no inconvenience is experienced and all work progresses at the same pace it does with the thermometer at 70. The nights are always cool.
"What would it cost to build a small, comfortable house?" Answer:—A five or six room cottage can be built for $400 to $700. Prices would depend largely upon a person's idea of comfort. A dwelling which will serve all purposes and be comfortable so far as ample protection from the weather is concerned can be built for even less than figures given above.
"What are the wages for a Chinaman servant, a cowboy, a shepherd, a cook, errands and workmen?" Answer:—Few people here employ Chinamen. Servants are an unknown quantity in most Southern Oregon families. The wages of a good farm hand range from $15 to $20 per month and he does not usually care very much whether he herds cattle, stacks alfalfa or sprays fruit trees. The wages of a hired girl are from $2.50 to $4 per week. In most Southern Oregon homes the hired girl is the whole-time cook, general housekeeper, washwoman, servant, and companion—sometimes. In fact she is from cellar to garret.
"What is the price of a cow, horse, sheep, mule, pig, poultry?" Answer:—Cows are worth from $20 to $70; horses, from $25 to $125; sheep, from $2.50 to $5.00 per head; mules, about the same as horses; hogs, from $4 to $5 per hundred; chickens from $2.50 to $3.50 per dozen; turkeys 10 cents per pound; ducks, $3 per dozen, geese, $5 per dozen.
"What is the price of meat, a bag of flour, a bag of potatoes, or bread?" Answer:—Meat retails at any of the markets at from 8 to 15 cents a pound; a 50 pound "bag" of flour is worth 55 cents a "cog" of potatoes—100 pounds—is worth from a cent to a cent and a half a pound; a loaf of bread will cost a five-cent nickel. You can buy six loaves for five cents.
"How are cattle sold? Do the people buy on the farm?" Answer:—Cattle are sold almost any old way at from $3.00 to $4.50 per hundredweight. People do not buy on the farm, but city buyers buy from the farmers who may raise cattle on the farm.
"Do the grazing cattle sell easily?" Answer:—Yes. Otitian's the buyers are said, but this is not general, as Southern Oregon has a prime cattle always. The buyers with the largest cash always ship the longest trainloads of cattle.
"How many sheep can a shepherd keep?" Answer:—On the ranch two herders usually handle from 3,000 to 4,000.
"How many cows can a cowboy keep?" Answer:—Depends all together on what he is doing with the cows. Otitian's cowboys can keep one cow very satisfactorily, then again and under different conditions 100 cows can be kept needed for the home range by one cowboy. Then again the number of cows a cowboy can "keep" depends upon the distinctness of the brands. As a usual thing they will keep all the cow and keep himself out of the penitentiary.
"Is Roseburg a consequent town, and can I find the necessities for my living and nothing too expensive?" Answer:—Yes, sir. Roseburg is of more consequence than any of the other Southern Oregon towns. Roseburg is a town of 3,000 people. Every line of business is represented here. You can buy anything you need to live on—from a cranberry needle to a threshing machine. All household necessities are very reasonable in price—cheaper in fact than in most coast towns. Prices do not vary much from those of eastern towns, except in cases of local production, where we are undoubtedly cheaper.
"Are the sheep subject to disease; do they all die off once?" Answer:—No. There is no disease here peculiar to sheep except scab, and this can be cured readily to treatment. They die off at once when the butcher decides he needs one for the block, or they get caught in a barbed wire fence—and these are sometimes for the block.
"Can I find in Roseburg the agricultural implements necessary on a farm, and are they expensive?" Answer:—Agricultural implements, however, can be bought in Roseburg from one or all of three dealers at prices as low as they can be bought elsewhere.
Douglas County's chief industries are fruit growing, stock and poultry raising, lumbering and farming. It is adapted to the creamery and dairy as well as all kinds of manufacturing. Farms and ranches can be bought at very reasonable prices and terms, some government and timberland of a desirable nature but considerable distance from the railroad can be found yet in this County. Transportation from Medford Mail, revised and a guaranteed reliable.
