LAW RELATING TO NEWSPAPER SUBSCRIPTION.

According to some of the latest laws in force, publishers may cause individuals who use a paper and refuse to pay for it to be arrested for fraud. Under this ruling, also, anyone who allows his subscription to run along for a time unpaid and then orders it discontinued, or orders the publisher to mark it refused, or sends a postal card to the publisher is liable to arrest and fine the same as for theft.

Cubbing Rate

We have arranged with a large number of papers and magazines for rates which will give to our subscribers two publications for a slight advance over the cost of THE PLAINDEALER alone. Following is a partial list:

JANUARY 2, 1902.

The year just closed was a prosperous one for Roseburg and Douglas county. This city experienced unprecedented building activity and besides acquiring two complete and modern electric and water works systems, several large new brick buildings were erected including the new three-story McCallan hotel, while new commodious cottages and residences sprung up on every hand, reaching a total for the year of nearly one hundred. The growth and advancement of our city during the ensuing year promises to be ever greater than for the year just closed. Among the early substantial improvements will be the grading, graveling and permanent improvement of our main streets, the building of the new brick Masonic Temple and the large new two-story Douglas county bank building. Other substantial structures are contemplated, while the erection of new cottages and residences promises to exceed the fine record of the past year. Business conditions are most satisfactory at this place and throughout the county, owing to the abundant crops of the past season which were marketed at remunerative prices. Many Eastern people of a desirable class found homes in our county, the past year and many more will cast their lot in our favored section of the state during the present year where so many excellent opportunities are afforded. In fact, immigration to Oregon promises to be the greatest in years during the next twelve months and with a little effort on the part of our citizens Douglas county will receive its full share of the home seekers and investors. The new year opens with bright prospects for activity in every avenue of trade as well as for the rapid growth and development of our city, county and state.

England will send a batch of pupils to this country next summer to study American industries. They will consist of members of Parliament, heads of business houses, college and labor leaders. The plan was suggested by Alfred Moseley, the Englishman who made a big fortune in the South African diamond fields. Mr. Moseley says that the English boy is brighter than the American boy, and consequently becomes a brighter man. Hence he believes that there must be something in the American educational system which is lacking in the English system, and this is one of the things that the commission is to try to discover. They will also study American methods of commerce and industry.

Considerable activity is being manifested on the part of the politicians of the Willamette valley and the political pot is beginning to simmer. It appears that Governor Geer will experience the fight of his life to secure re-nomination, but as far as United States Senator is concerned, Chas. Fulton appears to be the coming man and is universally popular. It looks like "Little Joe" is up against the real thing.

Germany has wisely delayed action against Venezuela.

Secretary Gage says the Treasury is in a condition of unexampled strength. Dudley Evans, an ex-Portland man, a choreus president of Wells-Fargo Express Company.

Frederick Ward in the Mountbank.

On Saturday Jan. 11, Mr. Frederick Ward, the distinguished actor, presents his famous characterization, "Belphégor, the Mountbank." The Portland, Ore., Oregonian, had this to say of it, when it was presented there: "The part of Belphégor has so long held a prominent place in Ward's repertoire, and is so familiar to Portland's theatre goers that it is difficult to say anything about it and avoid repetition. Mr. Ward's Belphégor has evoked the applause of previous years, riper, perhaps, and perhaps richer in detail. It was the same tender, honest, heroic characterization that enlisted the sympathy and aroused the admiration of this city's lovers of romantic drama a decade ago. Belphégor, chief of all his lies in his essential guilelessness, and in his bravery the natural result of a character that is both manly and simple. In his bringing out and blending of these qualities Mr. Ward was intelligently consistent. His quiet and quaint work in the earlier scenes was a shrewd preparation of his auditors' feelings, for the exciting situations and climaxes of the third and fourth acts. Gradually and almost unperceptibly, he carried his public from a sense of placid enjoyment to a state of sympathetic pity, and then like a whirlwind he whisked them into a condition of rapturous admiration. It was deft work, and generally well rewarded. Certain calls were numerous and hearty."

Perfect, Delicious, Appetizing.

The Salem Statesman came out January 1st with a beautiful New Year edition in magazine form, containing 56 pages besides its artistic covers and is handsomely illustrated with half-tone cuts. It presents the enterprises and resources of the middle Willamette valley admirably. The Statesman publishers are to be congratulated upon their energy and enterprise.

Never has a more competent, obliging and business-like set of officials occupied the county offices than the present incumbents. So far as we can ascertain the people generally are well pleased with the present Douglas County administration and so no cause whatever for any radical change the coming spring.

Senator Hanna is right in declaring that no greater public benefit could be conferred than to increase the cordiality of the relations between labor and capital, and the committee, of which he is chairman, formed with that object, will have the good wishes of everybody in its work.

The French Panama Canal Company is now anxious to sell out to the United States at any old price, but that won't make the sale. The United States is going to construct the canal, but it is to be over the Nicaragua, and not the Panama route. The sooner those Frenchmen realize that the more money they will save.

Ex Representative Kerr, of Ohio, is writing a life of the late Hon. John Sherman. Mr. Sherman's life-long habit of preserving every important letter he received has given Mr. Kerr much interesting material to draw upon, although he will have to exercise great care to avoid treading upon living toes.

Hon. Henry C. Payne, the new Postmaster General, made no mistake when he announced his intention to work for one-cent letter postage. That is the next step forward the people expect from the Post Office Department.

A great majority of our people agree with Secretary Long and the court of inquiry that the Schley matter ought to be dropped, but those who hope to make political capital out of it will see that it isn't.

Marconi and Santos Dumont might put their issues and make the establishment of an ocean wireless telegraph line and an air ship passenger line a joint and simultaneous affair.

President Roosevelt is thoroughly practical. Knowing the important part that Cranes play in the industries of the country he concluded that a Crane would be useful in his Cabinet.

One of the resolutions that might be adopted with advantage by some high officials would be to cultivate discretion and tact.

That new leaf which was turned yesterday will begin to look a little speckled before the close of the week in many cases.

Remember and write it 1902.

What of the Future?

As the old and never-to-be-forgotten year of 1901 is dying, it seems fit that we look ahead and try to pierce the dim future enough to gain a faint forecast of what is going to be.

Who will even dare to predict what the coming year will bring us? Who can even say that there are sure of even one thing? There are several ventures on foot, viz: The perfection of wireless telegraphy, perfecting the submarine boat and many other questions that will command the interest of the entire world; but what are the prospects for the people of the United States?

First will come the Nicaragua Canal, that will surely be well under way before the close of 1902. This is going to be the greatest improvement that the world will make. The completion of this canal will place the products of the Pacific coast states on par with those of the Atlantic seaboard; of course this canal is being fought by the railroads but when a controlling power opposes the people, that is not positive that, for the people it is a benefit. Johnny Bull and Uncle Sam have agreed; the question is up to Congress; what will she do?

There is danger ahead for the republican party. It is the question of reciprocity; this is a question that is absorbing a great deal of interest. Cuba a sister republic, and the Latin American demand it. The question is up to Congress. What will she do with it?

In our president's last message we see that the United States army and navy is to be improved. This is as it should be; times and conditions have changed; we have foreign possessions, they must not only be protected but advanced in the ways of this great republic. We see that our secretary of the treasury estimates the expenses of government for next year at $811,000,000 of which over $11,000,000 will go for the army and navy and pensions. A large amount! Yes, but we are a large nation and our demands for government are large; but our revenue will more than pay it. Our surplus now would pay it.

The Philippines are rapidly donning the garb of peace and her revenues are on the increase. How much longer before she will be self supporting? What will be the condition of affairs there at the close of 1902?

Cuba is rapidly forming a stable government, and the United States will probably soon withdraw from the island. But, will Cuba succeed? We have seen.

For the year of 1902 what will be the value of the agricultural products of America? The same may be asked in regard to the mining industry. What will Alaska, and even Oregon bring forth in minerals for this year?

These are questions that we know will be answered one year from now; but what will the coming year bring us in war, discoveries and inventions?

War will probably continue in South America, Africa and the Philippines. Where else will it break out?

Will Baldwin reach the pole and plant the stars and stripes where all directions are north, and where it is any time of day you may call it?

Will aerial navigation be solved, and if so, will our Uncle Sam be the lucky person? Will Edison perfect his dry storage battery and cheapen the cost and lessen the weight of the automobile? What will the year bring us in authors, poets, statesmen, artists? Who will write the greatest poem of the year?

But in all that we hope to be blessed, let us each trust and pray that we will not see another tragedy like the one enacted in Buffalo, last September. God forbid!

At Cottage Grove.

The editor of the PLAINDEALER returned home from a brief pleasure trip to Cottage Grove Wednesday evening. On Monday evening we attended a celebration of the tenth (10) wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Jones at their commodious Cottage Grove home. A large number of guests were present, and a most pleasant and enjoyable evening was passed with music, games and social converse. The "bride and groom" were the recipients of many presents—useful and otherwise, the reception room presenting the appearance of a retail store after the guests had all deposited their tokens of esteem on the tables. In the midst of the anniversary festivities the hosts and their guests were agreeably surprised by a serenade party composed of a number of popular young people of the town.

A New W. F. President.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—It is announced, says the Herald, that a successor to the late President Valentine of the Wells, Fargo Express Company has been selected in Dudley Evans, at present general manager of the company with headquarters in New York. It is believed here that at the next meeting of the directors action will be taken looking to the establishment of the headquarters of the company in this city.

Roosevelt a Disciplinarian.

"The Personality of President Roosevelt" is analyzed in the Century by one who knows him well.

He is a kind-hearted man, yet a rigid disciplinarian, and will demand a faithful and efficient discharge of public duties by public officials. I happened to be present when graduates of Harvard and other universities and Western mining engineers, to the number of thirty or forty, collected in the office of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy to be enlisted in the "Rough Rider" Regiment. Mr. Roosevelt stood in front of his desk, while these earnest, manly young fellows stood ranged around three sides of his office. Addressing them in his peculiarly quick, earnest manner, to the effect they must not underestimate the dangers or difficulties they would encounter, he told them that it would probably be the roughest experience that they ever had, and he wished them to understand that after once being sworn in they must take whatever came without grumbling. "Positively, gentlemen," said he, "I will have no squealing," and he urged them, if any of them thought they could not endure the greatest hardships to withdraw before it was too late. Then, turning to a pile of volumes of mounted infantry tactics, he said: "I will remain behind a few days and hurry forward the equipments. You gentlemen hurry to San Antonio, and if you do your part toward getting the men in order and licking them into shape, I promise to get you into the fight. There are not enough tactics to go around, but I will distribute these, and you must read and study them on the cars." Calling out their names, he buried the books at the men so fast that several would be in the air at once, the men catching them on the fly. I could see in their faces that every one of them was ready to follow him to the death.

One of the clouds of misconception and the false impressions thrown about this picturesque figure by the cartoonists and the paragraphs, more interested in sensationalism than in reality, there suddenly emerges this intensely earnest, forceful, brave, patriotic, humanity-loving, broad-minded, non-sectional American, this practical idealist, to become the youngest ruler of the greatest country in the world.

Looking Backward.

'Tis midnight, and the passing year Creeps noiselessly away; No stern regret nor bitter tear, No pleadings in its cold, cold ear, Can bid it stay.

'Tis gone, and I am left alone To ponder o'er the lost, To weep o'er wasted moments flown, To reap the harvest I have sown And count the cost.

The flowers lift their heads in praise In their appointed time; 'Tis man alone finds idle ways, Neglectful of the passing days, While in his prime.

The fruitage ripens on the trees When summer's sun is bright, While man enjoys the soothing breeze And slumbers on nor heeds nor sees The coming night.

The birds from the instinct know just when To leave the roosting nest, While oft the recreant sons of men Repeat and wear and turn again To mother's breast.

The sun and moon and stars roll on Nor slacken in their pace; They cheer the night and gild the dawn, Just as in ages long ago Before our race.

And I sit here alone and sigh, Another year begun, And, looking back with tearful eye Through misty days, cannot decry What I have done.

Notice.

A winter trip to Southern California and Arizona via the famous Shasta route is one never to be forgotten. Renewed acquaintance with this section will ever develop fresh points of interest and added sources of enjoyment under its sunny skies, in the variety of interests and added industries, in its prolific vegetation and among its numberless valleys of mountain, shore, valley and plain.

Two trains leave Portland daily, morning and evening for California. These trains are equipped with the most improved pattern of standard and tourist sleeping cars, and the low rates place the trip in reach of all.

For illustrated guides of California and Arizona winter resorts, address R. B. MILLER, Gen. Pass. Agent, Portland, Or.

Get Your Spray Material at MARSTERS.

State Chemist, Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Oregon.
DEAR SIR—We send you by this mail sample of sulphur taken from our stock of spray material. Please make a careful analysis of same and inform us if it is of such standard of purity that it will fill all requirements for making first class spray compounds. If it is not sufficiently pure for such purpose please inform us where we can obtain sulphur which will meet all requirements.

Very respectfully,

Mr. A. C. Marsters & Co., Roseburg, Ore.
GENTLEMEN:—Your letter concerning sulfur and the sample of sulfur, have been received.

I have examined this sample and find that it is almost entirely pure sulfur. I think that it would answer the purposes very satisfactorily for spraying compounds or insecticides. I think that if you have plenty of this quality, or can get it, that it will be as good as any sulfur that we can obtain for spraying materials.

Very truly yours,
