SOME HUMANE LAWS.

1st Hill's Code, sec. 1878.

UNLAWFUL CHASTISMENT OF CHILDREN BY PARENTS.

A parent may in all reasonable manner chastise his child. But in all cases of chastisement to be justifiable, appear to have been reasonable. And the law as above stated with respect to chastisement of children is said to have reference only to such children as are capable of appreciating correction, and not to infants as so many parents are laboring under a false impression. But notwithstanding the fact that a parent has the right to inflict moderate corporal punishment for the purpose of correcting or restraining the refractory child. If the correction is moderate the parent would not commit an assault and battery at all. If it is not moderate but excessive he or she is guilty of an aggravated assault and battery, by having exceed the authority of his legal right as a parent, and by exceeding such authority places themselves in the attitude of a stranger. The law has not laid down any fixed measure of moderation in the unlawful chastisement of children, nor is it practicable for it to do so. Whether the chastisement is moderate or excessive must necessarily depend upon the age, sex, condition and disposition of the child, with all the attending and surrounding circumstances to be judged by the courts.

THE WELL IS CLEAR.

After an Embarrassment of Fifteen Days the Southern Oregon Oil Company Pulls Tools Out of Wells.

(Ashland Record.)

There was joy in the hearts of the holders of the Southern Oregon Oil Company's stock, the officers and directors and the citizens of Ashland generally, when it was learned that at 3 o'clock on New Year's day the string of tools had at last been removed from the well, after a job of fishing for fifteen days. It will be remembered that on the night of Dec. 17th 2000 feet of half inch wire cable used to bail out the well accidently ran off the wooden roller and was precipitated into the well, following the bailer. At a depth of about 700 feet the wire cable became bunched in the casing. The night crew brought out their fishing tools and they became stuck to the mass of wire cable in the well. The rope was cut off and it was thought the devil was to pay generally.

This was the worst piece of luck that they have yet had to contend with, though many annoyances have generally hindered developement work from time to time. But the recovery of fishing tools at three o'clock yesterday relieved the jam of troubles besetting the company and it will be a comparatively easy matter to remove the obstruction now in the well.

The services of the night shift were dispenced with fifteen days ago and the work is now being prosecuted with a day crew only, which lessens the liability of serious accidents. Fred P. Marsh, the Pennsylvania driller who has had the best luck of any is now in charge and the hopes that no serious delays will be encountered. The well is down a few feet under 1600 feet and the work of drilling will begin in a day or two. The Company expect to strike oil within the next 400 feet, 2000 feet being the aim of the present operations in this the first well of Southern Oregon.

The Southern Pacific operations for coal are located a few miles north and west of this oil well.
