LATE NEWS SUMMARIZED.

State and General News Condensed for the Busy Reader. The Old Fellows' home at Portland will be dedicated April 25.

The Old Fellows' home at Portland will be dedicated April 25. An eastern Oregon woman has just sold 8,000 head of sheep and 1,000 acres of land...

There has been one commendable feature about all the labor strikes this spring—they did not last long. A German commission is coming to the United States to study the methods of cotton culture in this country.

Goldfishing in Montana. The Flathead Indians of Montana are assisting the money selling dyed cow tourists as Buffalo boys. A bill appropriating $100,000 for the erection of a monument in Buffalo, in memory of the late President McKinley, was passed by the Senate last week.

The review, published at Salem by R. A. Harris, is to be changed to the Salem Weekly Democrat and published by Mr. Harris and A. M. Dalrymple. A few fruit trees are in bloom. In certain parts of the state there have been recent cold rains, but it has not been reported that the fruit prospects have been injured to any extent.

Last week the "Bearing Branch" mine of Grant Pass, was sold for the sum of $10,000 and only a few days later a pocket ledge was struck, one of which $18,000 worth of almost pure gold was taken. There is considerable talk, on the quiet, of a creamery being established in Grant Pass in the not far distant future.

C. Hagan's new velocity is very much in need of such an institution, says the Signal. It is related that some "about a captain" in the army was arrested by the army for addressing his men as follows: "My men, fight like demons until your eyes are given out, then they run. I was little lame, I'll start now."

Chief Justice Hoover in all President Roosevelt's cabinet, and he is expected to be a great success. The fruit and fish will speak for themselves, and their customers will speak for their products if they are properly reminded of where they can be found.

Through a dream Mrs. Mary Taylor, 714 First street, Portland, has recovered $17,000 which she lost about 20 years ago. It is some of those "old and rare" cases wherein a dream "comes true." Mutual telegraphy may afford a plausible explanation for the occurrence. At any rate the money was recovered.

After six weeks' trial Lawyer Patrick, who poisoned old Millionaire Bly, an amiable character, after forging Bly's name to large checks, has been found guilty of murder by a jury. The same result ought to have been ascertained in five days or less. Probably nobody on earth who read the story ever doubted Patrick's guilt for a moment.

Noriel, the only insurgent general with the exception of Malver still in the field, has been captured by Lieutenant Bamford of the Twenty-eighth Infantry. There is some reason to believe that one member of this body guard is General Malver in disguise. Noriel has been one of the recognized leaders of the insurrection since 1899.
