THE COUNTY TICKET.

The republican county ticket has again been nominated and as usual a list of strong candidates have been chosen, several of whom were re-nominated for a second and one for a third term. These staunch republicans who were re-nominated by acclamation, have been tried and have proven themselves true to the trust reposed in them. They have filled their respective official positions with efficiency, honesty and to the entire satisfaction of the public, reflecting much credit upon themselves and their party.

From the legislative ticket down to constable the men selected by Saturday's convention are eminently well fitted and qualified for their respective offices and each and every one possess the qualities necessary to success at the polls in June and the later performance of their every duty, if they are fortunate enough to be placed in such positions by the voters of the county. But the fact that a strong ticket has been selected does not assure the party of complete success at the coming election. As a matter of fact half the campaigns of candidates for strictly county offices are made on the basis of the personality of the nominees. They do not attempt to strengthen themselves by advocating the best interests of the party they represent. One of the chief causes of the defeat of county tickets is the selfish and scattered efforts of the candidates and their lack of interest in each other. Invariably there are men who make a personal canvass for themselves alone never speaking in behalf of other candidates through the fear of asking too much of the voters they interview. They care nothing for the success of their co-workers or the party which has honored them and gives them their greatest strength. But few men on the republican ticket can make the fight safely without the assistance of the other candidates and party principles to support him. The campaign should be well organized. Party differences and factional strife should be considered forever settled by the action of the convention and its verdict accepted gracefully as the will of the majority. Republican principles should be held above petty strife and be an inspiration for a united and harmonious struggle for the success of the anti-ticket. The fight is not an easy one. The practical politician does not underestimate the strength of the enemy nor does he overlook any possible

MANEUVERS.

He does not take victory for granted until it is certain. One of the chief reasons for the great success of the republicans of this county is the fact that they never quit working as long as the polls are open and a single ballot remains unvoted. This example may well be followed by the candidates placed in nomination by Saturday's convention. With successful organization, co-operation and a warm interest in party measures every republican nominee should be given a big majority at the polls next June.

MR. TONGUE'S GOOD WORK.

The first congressional district has never had a harder worker, a more faithful public servant, nor a more forceful and convincing speaker in the house than Thos. H. Tongue. He is one of the busiest men in Washington. Questions before the departments, carrying out personal wishes, granting personal requests, attending to pensions, post-offices, mail routes, land entries requests for government publications, committee work of infinite variety—all these and a thousand other things have kept him on the jump day in and day out from morning till night. Truthfully says the Eugene Register, it might be added that Mr. Tongue has been in congress for five years and today he stands higher in the estimation of the house and his constituency than ever before.

When speeches are to be made on important public questions, Mr. Tongue is always to the front and in the campaign documents circulated all over the United States you are at ways sure to find one or more of his speeches, full of logic and force that have strong bearing on results. His speeches on the Porto Rican tariff, Philippine question and improvements at the mouth of the Columbia have had great weight with congress. The committee assignments show the esteem in which he is held. Few men in the house have reached the position on committees that he has in the past few years.

Only recently Mr. Tongue was called into private conference with President Roosevelt on important matters, showing the value the president places upon his opinions.

His faithful work for Oregon's rivers and harbors is shown in the fact that the river and harbor bill for this year carries more money for Oregon than was ever carried by any single river and harbor bill in the history of the state, providing for an expenditure of $2,000,000 on such improvements in the state and gives more to the Willamette river and Oregon coast harbors than ever before appropriated in all the years of the past history of the state.

Mr. Tongue has been an ardent worker for the rural delivery route and as a public servant who sticks to business, Tongue should and certainly will be returned to congress. He is likely to be re-nominated by acclamation at the convention in Roseburg next Tuesday. He has made a brilliant record in congress, having labored faithfully and forcefully in behalf of the interests of his district and state. He has shown not only ability, but integrity, and deserves at the June election the increased majority which he will assuredly receive.

How to Reach the Farmers.

George W. McCoy, a well-known business man of Portland, has just returned from an eight-months trip throughout the eastern states, and says that everywhere he has been, farmers, in large numbers, are looking for a change of location.

"The corn crop in many of these states," said Mr. McCoy, "was a total failure last year, and consequently stock raisers were compelled to sell their cattle and practically go out of the business. Such farmers are looking for new locations and naturally turn to the great undeveloped West. I was surprised to find that most of them had never heard of Oregon as a stock and farming country. If Oregon would use the money spent in advertising her resources at exhibitions in scattering literature broadcast in the farming communities of these states it would have a better effect in attracting settlers to the Pacific Coast. Most of the farmers referred to have sufficient means to start up in a new country and would make desirable settlers."

As a general thing people who learn of Oregon at exhibitions, such as those at Buffalo and Charleston, are not the class of people who are looking for new homes. They are of the class that are well-to-do and permanently settled. The masses of Eastern farmers can only be reached by personal contact. A carload of literature and agricultural exhibits sent through the small towns of farming communities would in my opinion, be the most effective way of placing Oregon's resources before the farmers and inducing desirable immigration. This method has been tried, I believe, before, but only on a limited scale. If it could be operated more extensively so as to cover large farming districts, I am satisfied the results would fully recompense the outlay of funds required.

SENATOR A. C. MARSTERS

Chairman of the Convention

Crawford, Roseburg; A. F. Brown, Oakland; Roy Griggs, Conestock; E. D. Day, Canbyville; and J. B. Riddle.

A LITTLE SCENE.

This completed the temporary organization which was effected without the least friction or opposition, but at this juncture Hon. Geo. W. Riddle, delegate from Astoria, arose and created a little surprise by stating that a delegate had been approached, was offered and had accepted money for his proxy in the convention. Mr. Riddle further stated that this delegate was Fred Weatherly, of Kellogg, and that the gentleman was seated in the convention and had a check for $50 which he had accepted for his proxy for the purpose of bringing the matter before the convention, however, no such proxy was presented or produced. Mr. Crawford arose and deprecated the fact that such charges had arisen and suggested that if true the matter was one to be handled by the criminal courts. After some conciliatory remarks by the chairman, the matter was on motion of J. A. Eggers, seconded by A. M. Crawford, referred to the committee on credentials; the evidence in the matter to be brought fully before the committee. The convention then adjourned until one o'clock p. m.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

This session was not called to order until two o'clock on account of the committee not having their reports corrected. First came the report of the committee on credentials which was read as follows:

We, your committee appointed on credentials, hereby respectfully submit the following report, to-wit:

First, that we have investigated the charges made against delegate F. S. Weatherly, and have not been able to obtain sufficient evidence to sustain the same, and therefore advise that the whole matter be referred to the District Attorney, and that this convention take no further action in the matter.

We also submit the following names of those entitled to seats in this convention:

[Here followed, with the substitution of a few proxies the names of the delegates from the various precincts the same as heretofore published in the PLAINDEALER.—Ed.] The proxies were:
