ROSEBURG'S NEW BOOMER

THE PLAINDEALER'S NEW PRESS

A Two-Revolution Cottrell, the Finest Press in the State Outside of Portland.

The Plaindealer has purchased a fine two-revolution Cottrell printing machine. It is exactly the same size of the press upon which the Woman's Home Journal is printed. If necessary the finest kind of color work can be done on the press and it will print anything from the size of a letter head up to four pages of a seven column paper and do so at the rate of 2000 sheets each hour. When it arrives it will be the best press in Oregon outside of Portland.

With the permanent improvement of Sheridan, Cass and Jackson streets—three of Roseburg's main business streets—a long stride forward has been taken in the progress and up-building of our progressive city. These streets were first put on a uniform grade, nicely rounded up and then covered with eight inches of fine crushed river bar rock. Cement gutters were constructed on either side of the streets and solid cement curbs were put in at all prominent street corners. The improvement covers a distance of eight blocks and traverses the main business portion of town from the Southern Pacific freight and passenger depots to the McClain hotel and county court house. While the improvement may not be all that could have been desired, it is, and will prove a vast improvement over the old order of things—mud in the winter and dust in the summer season. Strangers will form a far more favorable impression of the town, and our citizens will be generally benefitted by the improvement. Considering the many unforeseen difficulties and obstacles encountered, Contractor F. J. Blakely has fulfilled his contract faithfully and well, and carried out the provisions and specifications as nearly as possible. While the specifications may have been somewhat faulty in some respects, it must be remembered that this is practically the first work of the kind ever attempted in this city, hence it was not to be expected that no errors would be made in this extensive improvement. Under these conditions we feel that the city council is to be commended for its enterprise and public spirit and the city congratulated upon its evidence of progress and advancement.

The speakership of the house still remains in doubt. Eddy, of Tillamook, is claimed by his friends, will be sure to win out, as the Multnomah delegation is expected to cast its solid vote in his favor. Harris, of Lane, and Davey, of Marion, are both aggressive candidates for speaker and each have many warm supporters. As the situation now is no one of the trio of candidates can claim to have a cinch, and future events will have a good deal to do in determining who will be the favored one.

As stated by the Plaindealer at the very start there will be no extra session of the state legislature. We opposed the proposition from the fact that there was no urgent demand for such a session; no legislation of such important import as to justify the expense an extra session would incur to the taxpayers of the state.

The farmers have been very busy gathering good crops for which a prosperous people stand ready to pay a good price in cash. How awful is Protection to bring such prosperity that every section is busy making money.

The carnival is a thing of the past, and let us hope that never again will Baker City be turned over, body and soul, to such a demoralizing condition as existed the past week.—Baker City Democrat.

Town Talk reports that the output of the cannery at Ashland, Oregon, this season will be about thirty carloads. Roseburg offers many inducements for, and needs a like institution.

Many new substantial buildings going up; larger store rooms; an expanding Plaindealer; Roseburg is bound to be a place of importance.

Maddox and Brown Reversed.

The United States circuit court of appeals, at San Francisco, has reversed the two-times decision of Judge Bellinger, of Portland, in the case of Thos. J. Brown and B. W. Maddox vs. Oregon King Mining Co., and remanded same for a new trial. The decision of the appellate court has been pending since last May and what the detailed substance of it is cannot be learned at the present time, as only the blint information of the result of the higher court's action reached Brown & Maddox's attorney, Albert Abraham, of Roseburg, last Monday evening.

The St. Elmo or Oregon Mine mine is variously estimated to be worth from $400,000 to $700,000. About $100,000 worth of ore has been taken out by the Oregon King Co., but has lain idle on the dump since the lawsuit began some seventeen months ago. Messrs. Brown and Maddox are confident of winning their suit and the latter ventures the opinion that the adverse decision of the appellate court is based on some minor technicality. Mr. Brown, one of the principals in the case, is a well known and highly esteemed citizen of Roseburg and his many friends in this city and county hope he will be ultimately successful in his mining litigation.

A PECULIAR TRAIN WRECK.

Flat Cars Smashed, Fourteen Head of Cattle Killed.

COQUILLE, Oct. 7.—The particulars of a very unusual train wreck, which occurred on the Coos bay, Myrtle Point road about two miles west of this city, have just been learned. The train with about 15 flat cars ahead of the engine, was rounding a curve at a good rate of speed, when the cattle were encountered. The rails being very slippery it was found impossible to stop, and the momentum of the heavy train carried it through the band of panic-stricken beasts.

The head flat car was finally ditched and the following cars proceeded to "climb." Conductor Denning who was riding in front, set the brakes and jumped, as did several other of the rail head boys. Fortunately all escaped without a scratch. Nine "flats" were shattered, 40 feet and packed up in one space—about 40 ft in length.

The dead cattle, of which there were fourteen, were wedged between the cars and wreckage. The poor beasts, in many cases were ground literally to pieces.

Supt. J. H. Ackerman will address the students of Drain on the evening of the 20th of October, at the school house. All are cordially invited to be present. The foot ball team of the C. O. S. N. S. has organized, and is making good use of the pleasant weather. The team practices evenings and Saturdays on the vacant lot in front of the school house.

A challenge from the High School of Eugene has been received and accepted. Among our visitors last month were Rev. B. F. Peck and Rev. Snider. Mr. Peck addressed us in chapel and his remarks were both instructive and encouraging. Visitors are always welcome. A favorite walk with both students and faculty is the trip to Boswell Springs. The flowers, the mineral water and the hospitality of Capt. and Mrs. Boswell make this one of the pleasures of the student life in Drain.

The lectures at the Christian Church of Drain, given by Rev. W. B. Kellums, instructor in the Theological Seminary at Eugene have been instructive and are much enjoyed by the students.

The Epworth League of the M. E. Church, of Drain, gave a reception Friday evening to the new students and the members of the faculty. The guests were received at the Boarding Hall by Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Brown, Miss Kety, Miss Whipple and Mr. Cannon. Rev. Moore, pastor of the M. E. Church, gave the address of welcome, and Pres. Orcutt and Mr. Brown responded in behalf of the faculty. Miss Moore of the Senior Class, then expressed the students' welcome to the new comers and the remarks by several citizens of Drain increased the general feeling of cordiality. Music, progressive conversation and refreshments followed and every one present feels indebted to the Epworth League for a most enjoyable evening. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Ira Wimberly, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Black and Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Hedden.

New students last week were Wilfred Brown, Frank Hill, Miss Nellie Brown and Miss Wal.

WHO'D HAVE THOUGHT IT.
Never Before Have Good Upright Pianos Been Sold at These Prices. $100-$150 down, $6 Per Month.

Bear in mind that during the introductory sale and closing out of the T. K. Richardson stock, we are selling a better and in every way more desirable piano for $196, than could formerly be obtained for $225, (and the regular $500 styles of pianos to which reference is made above, which we are now selling at $327, on easy monthly payments, little more than rent, cannot be obtained even in the East, where prices are supposed to be the lowest, within a clean hundred and fifty dollars of our present prices.

ALL ARE WARRANTED.

Every piano sold here is accompanied by the manufacturers' writing guaranteed, which warranty is duly countermanded by us, which makes your purchase as safe as a government bond.

WE ARE HAVING A SALE.

Come in and look into this carefully. Stock $10, or $15, in your pocket for a first payment down, and, if you find here a piano to suit you, we will make arrangements as to the payment of the balance as you wish. Ten dollars a month will secure choice of any piano in stock, and we have a variety of fine pianos that can be obtained for as low as $6, per month. Think of it. Twenty cents a day will secure a fine piano now, and instead of the price being $300, or even $225, as elsewhere, it is here for $196. Careful buyers are taking advantage of these prices and terms every day.

Inquiries and orders by mail receive our most careful attention. Send for large illustrated catalogue and valuable information for piano buyers, free for the asking.

Walworth Piano; Mr. Atterbery, Organ; Miss Allington, Piano.

We may lose an agency but we do not lose the confidence of the public when it comes right down to straight pianos dealing.

THE GREAT CENTRAL RAILROAD
Give the Men in Charge and the Men Furnishing the Money the Glad Hand.
This Road will be a Blessing to Roseburg and Cause the Town to be in a Short Time the Second City in Oregon.

In the whole history of Roseburg there has probably never been a more certain and definite act in the interest of its future development than today. The definite location of the Great Central Road from Coos Bay to Salt Lake has been looked upon with great interest. No enterprise, we believe, has been so generally accepted as the real developer of the country. Now as the Roseburg people have secured its definite location thus far they stand in a very happy position. They are not indebted, nor ever will be, to the Great Central. Their engineers have spent time and money, and have had wonderful inducements to go elsewhere with their location. They have only decided upon this point from its natural geographical situation. While we can say these pleasant things to the people it is not right for them to take even a lukewarm position in the matter; because of it being impossible or impracticable for this enterprise to move to the north or south is no excuse for indifference on the part of our people.

The opportunity now presents itself for all active minds and people to make the rapid stride which has been experienced by thousands of other towns less pleasantly situated than Roseburg. As we understand from our contact with the active men who are engaged in the preliminary work of this projected line, we can see clearly that they are up-to-date Americans. They have no disposition to tear down anything which they find here. Their disposition is, and their energy and force will be, bent toward improving and building up that which they find already started here.

History from Maine to California has shown clearly to the observing mind that the stranger is really the man who sets the pace in the building up of any quiet town. The local people in every town should encourage the stranger, and not spend their valuable time and energy in questioning what the stranger really intends to do or can do. The people should remember that a stranger almost invariably shows his real intent the first month he is in a community.

Any community that can not, to a reasonable extent, size up and estimate a man in a month is so far behind the times that it is not worthy the notice of a stranger.

We find in Oregon a natural disposition among the people which probably has had more to do with the slow development of the country here than any other thing, and that is, to put the stranger to the test. When a new enterprise is sprung in Oregon, it has to stand the sharpest criticisms and the most absurd questioning of any state we have ever been in. They seem to feel that they are right in the position that that only is genuine which they can not break down on the start. Intelligent, fair-minded people as they are, they seem to be utterly unconscious of the harm they do. If an enterprise has at its back all of more money than is necessary to carry out the work proposed, such adverse expression will cause every move made to cost more than it should, when the local community's sentiments and influence handicap even the foreman in the handling of his men. Labor is at this time very hard to contend with at best. With the people watching and questioning every move even the willing and earnest laborer is not disposed to earn his money.

We honestly believe that Oregon is to have a splendid development in the next ten years. She is already attracting the attention of the civilized world. We speak for her a great development when her resources have really been tapped, when the stranger has come as he should come to a country presenting such vast opportunities. The Columbia bar and the bad roads will be only a matter of history.

In observing these bad roads in Oregon the stranger does not reflect on the energy and enterprise of its people. In that respect we admit that they have done wonderfully well. With so few people to help we are surprised that they have any roads at all. The aggressive move for good roads is all right. The only thing we wish to say about that is we think it is a shame to whip these few people over the back in the effort to have them do still more than they have. The friendly, encouraging word to the stranger that has always been absent in Oregon will help the roads more than the actual settler can do it now.

God has made the country; man, not man, make the roads. It seems to us a stranger that no point in the west is more interesting than the location of Roseburg. There are few passes over ranges, and an especially favorable thing is the pass over the Coast Range to Coos Bay, which is Roseburg's future, and which will be the first to affect Roseburg commercially. But at last when she has tapped the great eastern empire of Oregon is when she will begin to assume the proportions of commercial metropolis. What Los Angeles is to Southern California (with the building of the Great Central railroad from west to east across the state), Roseburg will be to Oregon—the brightest spot in the coronet of Pacific coast inland cities.
