THE ROSEBURG STAGE HELD UP

Robber Failing to Find Registered Pouch Takes Driver's Watch and Passenger's Coin.

Yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock the Myrtle Point-Roseburg stage bound west, was held up near Olalla, and the passengers and driver relieved of what valuables they had on their person, consisting of $7.50 in coin and a watch and chain. Yesterday morning the stage left this place on time in charge of driver Sawyer with A. W. Perkins, a travelling man, as passenger. All was well and the stage was making as good time as the roads would permit, until Olalla was reached; after that the trouble began, which will undoubtedly make Perkins famous among the knights of the grip, as we understand he is a remarkable story teller.

As the stage was crossing a little bridge near the Asher Ireland place about 1 1/2 miles the other side of Olalla, a masked man stepped out from behind a clump of bushes and leveling a pistol at the head of the driver called to him to halt, which he did. The hands of Perkins were immediately sent skyward, but Sawyer thinking he recognized the fellow and believing he was being "joshed" did not respond to the raising of hands order but began to laugh. The robber explained that he meant business, and demanded the brass locked mail pouch, but as Sawyer is very deaf he could not understand, and Perkins was called upon to interpret, which he did in a very trembling voice. At last Sawyer was able to understand and told him that the registered pouch was not on this stage but had been sent by the Marshfield route. The robber seemed much disgusted and remarked that he would take up a collection any way, which he proceeded to do. Sawyer donating his watch and chain and Perkins contributing $7.50, after which the stage was allowed to drive on and the bold highwayman disappeared.

JUMPED TO A WATERY GRAVE.

Mrs. A. H. Kayler Leaped from West Fork Bridge to Escape a Supposed Approaching Train.

Mrs. A. H. Kayler, of Molalla, Clackamas County, met her death at West Fork, at about nine o'clock Tuesday evening, by jumping from the railroad bridge at that place into the creek about forty feet below, and was drowned. The water is about four feet deep where she fell and runs very swift, the body being washed down Cow Creek about 300 yards before it was found.

Mrs. Kayler, with her husband and two children, was on their way to Molalla, when they were crossing the trestle, Mrs. Kayler who was carrying the lantern went ahead to enable the others to see, and when they were on the trestle he looked up and saw a light ahead. He thought it was the head light of an engine and called to the others to look. Miss Dibble jumped out on one of the side trestles, bent Mrs. Kayler became excited and threw herself from the bridge. Mrs. Kayler ran back and jumped off the end of the bridge to go to her wife's rescue, and as he jumped his lantern went out and he fell. The people at the hotel heard their cries and rushed to the scene. When told what had happened W. F. Minard and two others went down Cow Creek to a sand bar and there found the body of the unfortunate woman.

The deceased was about 46 years of age, and lived at Molalla for a number of years, where her husband has a farm. The body will be shipped to that place on tonight's overland. Mr. Kayler who is prostrate with grief, was a passenger on this morning's local for Molalla.

Drain News.

Here's wishing the PLAINDEALER force a genuine thankful Thanksgiving.

L. B. Wheldon has gone to Aloha to look after the dairy farm of F. H. Rogers.

F. H. Rogers, of "The Nonpariel," is absent on business in Gardiner and vicinity.

We understand that Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Applegate, will leave soon to reside in Portland.

Mrs. Nathan Young, of Myrtle Point, who is visiting her parents at Aloha, spent the past two weeks at Youcalia.

Miss Lura Hilly is home for a while, her school at Greenback having closed for a time on account of illness in the district.

J. A. Black's new brick is expected soon to be ready for occupancy. One apartment is being fitted up for the post-office.

Day operator G. M. Bassett, with his P. P. is still off duty, from rheumatism, but his many friends hope he may soon be found on duty.

Mrs. John Veatch, of Divide, arrived Sunday, accompanied by her little daughter, for a visit with her sister, Mrs. W. W. Wilson and family.

The new residence of J. W. Spalding, C. E. Hassard and Mr. Anderson, are worthy improvements of Drain. The first two are not yet completed.

C. W. Elliott, left on Friday morning overland for his home in Irvington, N. J., after several months spent in Oregon. During his stay he has made friends among our people, whose best wishes go with him.

John Schafers, an old resident of this vicinity, died Sunday, Nov. 22, at his home near Drain, aged about 68 years. Interment took place in the town cemetery, Monday. Mr. Schafers leaves several children, only one of whom was present at his death.

WANTED.

As there will be no service in St. George's Episcopal church Thanksgiving Day, any one wishing to give toward the maintenance of the Good Samaritan Hospital can do so directly to the Rev. John Dawson. The offering may consist of money, fruit, preserves, vegetables, food, potatoes, etc., and if left at the Rectory will be shipped free of charge to the hospital. During the year ending May 31, 1902, there has been 1028 patients representing 26 different nationalities and 22 different religious beliefs. Among these the Methodists were represented by 206, Presbyterians 145, Episcopalians 133, Roman Catholics 120, Baptists 70, "no religious belief" 407. There were 7,787 days' care given free to non-paying patients representing so many dollars given amongst all classes of people. As so many sick and injured go to the hospital from Roseburg and vicinity, let every one give something out of their abundance so that the good work may be carried on even more successfully than hitherto.

Pay Up.
All those knowing themselves indebted to F. F. Patterson for laundry work up to Nov. 1, 1902, will please call at the office of Attorney Frank G. McCall, Review Building, and settle at once. F. F. PATTERSON.

WILL GIVE LUCK A CHANCE.

A Man Who Tried Hard Work with Wells and Lightning Rods and Windmills.

"I used to think that hard work counted for more than luck," said the man who had a thrown-down appearance, "but after bucking against the idea for ten years I've had to give up. I'm out of a job and dead broke, but I'm going to walk around on my uppers and see what luck will do for me.

"I went into drive wells a few years ago," he continued, "as I jingled three or four cents in my palm. 'Bought the right' for four counties in Kansas and could see $2,000 profits a year. Put in my last dollar and started out to drive. In driving a well for a farmer you may calculate on hitting water within 30 feet. That's what you base on when you figure on the job. A farmer wants to get water. I put down 14 wells and was yielding all the water he wants. I put down 20 feet of my first well and only struck dust. I went down 60 feet and could smell a little dampness. The pipe was down a full hundred feet before we got water. I put down 14 wells and was re-estimatedly bust. I had picked out the counties myself, but they were the driest in the state. I drove 160 feet of pipe for the last without getting any water.

"Then I turned to lightning rods. I got an agency and an outfit and started out to do the farmers of Illinois. Say, you may not believe me, but out of ten towns which I protected in one township eight were struck by lightning during one storm. The farmers got after me in a mob and, besides having my log broken and my nose knuckled out of joints, I was hauled into court and broken up in business.

"As soon as I could limp around again I got the agency of a windmill for a part of Indiana. The only one I put up was for an old farmer who wanted to drive a saw for cutting wood. I had to warrant so much power, you see, and he had his saw ready as soon as the windmill was up. All the time we were putting up the mill it blew a gale, but no sooner had we finished than the gale dropped to a zephyr. Say, now, well for 15 straight days there wasn't wind enough to rattle a duck pond, and the farmer declared my mill a fraud and made me take it down.

"After I'd been out of a job for a year an uncle started me in the chicken business. Ever figure on it? Bless your heart, but the man who can't figure on a clear profit of $2,000 a year has no business to live. There are so many hens, so many eggs, so many chickens. Easiest thing in the world to figure on, especially where an incubator goes with it. I leased five acres of ground, got an incubator and 200 hens, and for a few days I had my hat on my ear. Did you ever hear of the chicken disease called 'pull'? Well, it broke out among my hens, and they went pop! pop! pop! the first one turned up her toes. I didn't get two dozen eggs out of the whole lot. Then I fell back on my incubator to hatch and grow a new crop. Hatched out 150 little chicks, and then—please excuse my emotions. One day that incubator blew up with a bang and scattered my hen farm all over the county and laid me up in bed for three months.

"I have been offered a patent chain, a washing machine and a hay fork agency, but have respectfully declined. No more hard work for me. I'm walking around looking for lost pocketbooks and big rewards, and I count on luck to uncover a gold mine or notify me of a legacy."—N. Y. Sun.

A MEAN ADVANTAGE.

He Was a Lightning Counter and Thereby Got the Drop on His Man.

"Mister," said Broncho Bob, "you're a stranger in this country."

"Yes," said the gentle, unassuming answer.

"I want to make you welcome, but before takin' you into the bosom of the family I want to ask you a question or two. Have you got any good advice concealed on you?"

"I—I must confess I don't quite understand."

"Have you any of these little sayings like 'Think before you speak' or 'Let dogs delight' or so forth? Because if you have, you might as well take warnin' as how they don't go here. Keep 'em to yourself. I've took a hikin' to your style, an' I don't want to see you makin' no false moves—'cause if you do you'll get jumped. There was a feller come here about five weeks ago. He left four weeks ago, an' ain't been seen since. We've all fair an' square here. If we make a bargain, we stick to it, but it did hurt to let that feller get away. He used to play poker an' quote piety harden's anybody I ever seen. Finally, one night, he said: 'Boys, they've altogether too much quickness in this place. Now, we're all square people. What we say we'll do, we'll do, an' it's not a general condition (words like them come easy for him) if we was to take time to let our teppers cool, instead of 'jumpin' in an' actin' rash. Now what I propose, is that when any of us gits riled, instead of draggin' a gun into the game or talkin' back, he must count a hundred. That's an old-fashioned idea, but it saves lots of unpleasantness. 'Good scheme,' said Rattlesnake Pete. 'It gives both parties a chance to take steady aim.' An' fellerin' Rattlesnake Pete's lead, we all lined in an' made the agreement. The very next night there was a big poker game an' the stranger was gittin' blisters on his fingers rubbin' 'em over the cloth while he took in chips. All of a sudden Apocryphal Joe jumped up an' says: 'You Joe' dropped a card you've been holdin' out. I see you!' Says the stranger, 'Joe, says he, 'you're a liar!' Joe reached for his gun an' the stranger says: 'Don't forget the bargain. You've got to count a hundred.' That's right,' says all the feller. Joe started in countin' out loud. It rattled the feller who was playin' keno in the next room so that they had to come an' look on. The stranger kept his eye on Joe, an' moved his lips, but didn't make a sound. When Joe got to '49 the stranger says '100.' Lifter his gun an' blazed away. The crowd made a rush for him, but he lifted his hand an' says: 'It ain't square, boys. I couldn't help gittin' through fast. I'm a lightning calculator.'—Washington Star.

What Life Insurance Does

It keeps the family together. It educates the children. It takes care of the mother. It pays the mortgage on the home. It provides ready money to keep a business solvent.

It saves the respect of the family. It saves the credit of the insured. It saves money which would otherwise be lost. It saves the insured from anxiety as to the future of his family.

It saves the insured from anxiety for his own old age. It saves the capital which is locked up in human life. It does the very things which the insured plans for, works for, prays for, is happy if he accures, and unhappy if he fails to get. It helps him to make a success of life, and takes up his work when he dies and carries it forward to completion.

Can you afford to be without it? W. J. Toon, Agent, Roseburg, Ore.
