JT BRIDGES, not get. It is no less true that the way __ in which the farmer might obtain such advantages, assuming that they are really desired is to construct and maintain good roads. A good road system is therefore a most potent engine of social reform, while the evils of country life are but the temporary manifestations of a period of transltion; hence to bad highways may be ascribed most of the woes of our agri-people than the improvement of the roads." Scarcely less significant was the opinion Mr. John Wanamaber expressed while postmaster general to the effect that "enlarged free delivery or anything like universal free delivery will have to be postponed until there are better facilities of communication through the rural and sparsely notfled districts?"

The Care of Roads. No road can be left to itself and remain in good condition. Alternations of sun and frost, of wind and rain, of droughts and wet, tear the road to pieces with quite as much certainty as the travel. In countries where the roads are the wonder and delight of all travelers they are kept under the most jenlous supervision and the most zealous care, says the New Bedford (Mass.) Standard. The great European highways are divided into short sections, over which the caretaker keeps a continual watch and where the repairer never stops work. A beginning to decay is detected at once, and the remedy is applied immediately.

The Burden Must Be Equalised. Good roads are benefits not merely to the local community through which they pass, but to the whole state and to the inhabitants of the cities as well as of the country, and the cost of providing them ought to be borne ratably by all the people, says the Southern Planter. In every state where anything substantial has been done in the way of roadmaking these principles have had to be recognized and put in execution before the work could proceed, and the same will have to be done here. The sooner, therefore, provision is made for it the sooner shall we have good roads.

Notice is hereby given that all accounts and bills due me and and remaining unpaid after December 20, 1902 will be placed in an attorner's hands for collection. Prior to this date bills may be settled by calling at C. B. Cannon's news and book store. Call of collection will be added after Dec. 20, 1902, d20p Mas. N. Boyd.

THAN NEVER

But good goods never come too late, and owing to the delay in the Eastern freights, our shipment of small goods did not arrive until today and now that the holidays are over we are willing to make a great sacrifice on these goods in order to make room for another shipment that is to follow shortly and we Needham because musicians Needham and must have them, and everyone who wants a good piano, a sweet toned piano, an artistic piano, a durable piano, find it under the name Needham. Arthur Frazer says the Needham has as good action as he has ever used; and Mr. Page, the baritone soloist, says that the tone is exquisite, and has placed an order with us for one to be delivered at his home in Philadelphia. In fact the Needham has no rival, and that is why we have just shipped a carload from the factory, and our last lot are beanties of new and artistic design : : : :

Needhams Pianos
