On last Thursday the Railroad Eating house was sold to Wood and Co. The former proprietors, Meadames Lohr and Gegax, who have been running this business for sometime, have won through their pleasant ways and never tiring desire to please their patrons, many good friends among the traveling public, and the large trade which the Railroad Eating house now enjoys, is due to the business like way in which these two ladies ran this place. The new management will conduct the restaurant as did the old ones, and will do every thing in their power to maintain the good will and large patronage which it justly deserves.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Flint entertained Friday night at a very elaborate dinner party, in honor of Mrs. G. R. Child. The dinner was served in six courses, Misses Vell Barker and Kate Fullerton assisting in serving. Those who were present were Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Barker, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Fullerton, Mrs. Willis, Mrs. M. Josephson, Mrs. Seldon, Mrs. Child and Mr. Kimball. We could not learn what each course consisted of but it is said, by those present to have been one of the nicest served and best prepared dinners which they ever had the pleasure of attending.

At the Baptist Church last night the Rev. E. S. Uford, author of the revival song, "Throw out the life-line," spoke to a crowded house. The gentleman is one of the most realistic speakers we have ever heard and his lecture or sermon was illustrated by the actual apparatus used in a life saving station. Among other things he showed a life-line which one year ago saved twenty three sailors from drowning off the New England coast. While he whistled and sang and recited there was a deep vein of spirituality underneath, and after all it is a man's spiritual nature which must be touched before any permanent good can be done; and in religion as well as in morals it is the heart that needs to be changed. We can all get reformation at any moment we want and wills for it and the religion that merely reforms without giving an abiding faith in the power of God to keep saved, falls short of what the bible teaches. The gentleman is now taking a trip around the world and by his own unique methods is preaching the gospel of salvation. The PLAIN DEALER hopes that he may be the means of throwing out the life-line to many buffeted souls.

On Saturday afternoon Misses J. C. Fullerton and J. F. Barker were hostesses at a very charming reception at the Fullerton home in West Roseburg. The 3-1/2 roomed parlor appearing in the hall and spacious parlor were artistic and well disposed. Ferns, bamboo and branches of flowering quince were massed in corners and alcove, the brilliancy of the quince blossoms making a pleasing color scheme against the deep green of the ferns, and huge bowls of wild current sprays in bloom were placed on mantles and table-toppets. In the dining room the decorations were white and green, bowls of white narcissus being placed at every available point, and the floral piece on the lunch table was of white hyacinths and long vines of smilax. Sandwiches, olives, tea, cakes and ices were served. Misses Fullerton and Barker were assisted by Misses Brown, Bellows and Child, and Misses Regina Rast, Gertrude Rast, Lillian Stanton, Kate Fullerton, and Vell Barker. About 200 guests paid their respects to the hostesses during the afternoon.

Deserted His Wife and Child.

VASCOUVER, Wash., April 4.—Claude A. Riddle, who suddenly disappeared Wednesday, and has not been seen since, was last seen on board the steamer Undine Wednesday morning, on the way to Portland. He had left home to go to his work at a local sawmill, and his lunch basket was found under a pile of lumber, where he had left it. Riddle did not get on the boat at the dock, but went down the river and boarded it at the drydock. He left no word of his intended movements, and deserted his wife and child.

Claude is a son of A. Riddle, of Riddle, and his relatives say the above report is not true, but think he is a victim of foul play.—E. D.

Virginia Drew Trecoot played in the opera house last Friday night the part of Manon in Count Tolstol's dramatized play of the Resurrection. To do Miss Trecoot justice we must say that she is a remarkable actress and performed the play true to life. She was most ably supported by her company and better acting we have never seen along the lines of such a play. But while we can endorse the acting as a work of art, we must confess that the moral of the play is of a very dubious nature, the same as would be discovered in reading the original novel as published by Count Tolstol. It is to be regretted that such a fine actress can only shine or shine to advantage when she is depicting and acting the part of an abandoned or wanton woman, but come to think of it, if a first class troupe should strike any town on the Pacific slope and give one of the old fashioned love and affection dramas, that there would be a very scattering house to greet the performance. But we do honestly believe that the plays in which debauchery, profligacy, seduction and general abandonment and scenes from bagnios and bagnio methods of conducting business are depicted, are demoralizing to old and young.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundations of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
