Miles for President. A Washington dispatch of Monday's date says: The rumor that Lieut. Gen. Miles is a candidate for the democratic nomination for president has been revived as one of the developments following the publication of the general's confidential report to the secretary of war relative to conditions in the Philippines. High officials of the army make no effort at concealment of their annoyance at the attitude of Gen. Miles in this matter. They take the position that the report of the commanding general of the army is a reflection upon the entire service, and they point to the fact that it is the first time in history that the commander of an army has made a report reflecting upon the conduct of his army when engaged in war with a foreign power. With the enforcement of the order against officers discussing such publications, the expressions of some of the highest officers in the service are prohibited. It is quite probable, however, that an official statement may be made later, reviewing the Miles report. It is alleged that most of the charges of atrocities referred to in the report have already been officially investigated and not sustained. Others of the charges are made by the general, as he admits in his report, upon hearsay testimony and without any effort at investigation on his part.

It is believed here, particularly by opponents of Gen. Miles in the war department, that his report was prepared for the express purpose of appealing to the support of the anti-imperialists and the Carmack school of democrats, with the democratic combination for the presidency in view. The first request for the detailed report came from the anti-imperialist headquarters in Boston. This request was submitted by Mr. Root, secretary of war, to Gen. Miles, who replied that he had no objection to the publication. Mr. Root, it is known, did not want to make the report public. He considered it confidential in nature and not intended for general circulation. It is understood that he reluctantly consented that the report be made public, believing that the anti-imperialists would distort it and furnish the country with garbled extracts from it, as they have of many other documents relating to conditions of the army in the Philippines.

It is asserted that a number of prominent democrats and anti-imperialist republicans have been working for more than a year to bring influence to bear that would result in the nomination of Gen. Miles for the presidency on an anti-imperialist platform. The publication of the report, practically at Miles' request, is considered the latest step in furthering his presidential boom.

Immigration Addresses. The Eugene Guard of recent date says: The Eugene Real Estate Exchange was addressed this morning by General Passenger Agent W. E. Conan and Agent Geo. McKinney, of the Harriman Bureau of Information and Advertising. These gentlemen arrived this morning from Portland.

Mr. McKinney was an Eugene visitor last summer and fall when he laid the advantages of distributing literature among the Eastern districts where immigration was easy to secure. The advice given then to the Southern portions of the state has been well heeded and pamphlets of various descriptions have been issued and sent to the big distributing agencies of the Harriman system.

Over 200,000 pieces of literature have been distributed in the past few months among people who want to come west," said Mr. McKinney to a Guard reporter this morning. "We have a total of a million and a half pieces to handle and the work is going steadily on. "The need we now have to deal with is that of keeping the people moving. Easterners have been started west and we have to keep them going until they get out here. It is like herding a flock of sheep. The ram must be started in the direction you want him to go and then the sheep must be urged to follow. "It will all be accomplished in due time. Oregon, in the next few years, has before her one of the grandest periods of development known in her history. People will come here by the thousands. The Lewis and Clark Fair will bring thousands more. You people want to keep alive to your interests here and you will get your share of the good fortune. The Willamette Valley has a wonderful future."

Mr. Conan spoke of the efforts of the railroads to co-operate with the immigrants and Oregon people in finding suitable homes for the former. He discussed various plans by which this much desired end could be attained.

Alabama Negroes Denied Registration.

The United States Supreme Court at Washington, on Monday decided the case of Jackson W. Giles vs. the board of registrars of Montgomery county, Ala. Giles is a colored man, who was denied the privilege of registering as a voter under the new constitution of Alabama, and the case was brought to test the validity of the portion of the state constitution bearing on this question. The relief sought was denied on the ground that the case was political. Justice Holmes, who delivered the opinion, said that for the court to interfere would be unadvised of relief in cases presenting only political questions. Justice Harlan dissented on the ground that the court should have declined to assume jurisdiction. Justices Brewer and Brown united in a dissent, in which they upheld the jurisdiction of the federal court on the ground that as Giles was denied the right of voting for a member of Congress by the refusal of the right to register a federal question was involved.

The Free Methodist Church

Was organized at Pekin, New York, on the 25th day of August, 1820. They are a "body of Christians who profess to be in earnest to get to Heaven by conforming to all the will of God as made known in his word." "They do not believe that either God or the Bible has changed to accommodate the fashionable tendencies of the age." In doctrine they are Methodists of the original stamp, and teach that it is the duty and privilege of every Christian to be sanctified wholly, by faith subsequent to their conversion; and all persons uniting with them are expected to obtain and enjoy this rich experience. They require simplicity and plainness of apparel, abstinence from connection with all secret societies, and insist on practical godliness in all its characteristics.

In the government the members have an equal voice with the ministers in all councils of the church.

They endeavor to promote spirituality and simplicity in worship and congregational singing without the use of instrumental music is required and universally practiced. All the members are expected to enjoy a genuine religious experience and to be active and earnest in spiritual work. In short all are expected to be whole-hearted Christians.

There are now thirty-eight annual conferences in the United States and Canada, and in the neighborhood of 30,000 members; and the church supports a number of Foreign Missions in India, Africa and Japan.

Do a 20-Day Stunt.

Roseburg should have a city chain gang. If the city has no law, she should make an ordinance to that effect. There is a mob of professional hobos, and all-around bums who infest the S. P. yards, lying around in the shady places all the day long, and when they get hungry go and beg from some of the houses near by; when night comes they go to the bushes to spend the night. Most human beings have but one object in life, but these hobos differ from all other mankind. These hobos have four life objects; the first one is to never work, the second, to get enough to eat, the third is to get all the sleep they want, and the fourth, to keep out of the way of the cops. If the city only had a chain gang for these hobos, and would make each man do a 20-day stunt on the street, who cannot show any visible means of support, the city and its citizens would gain instead of losing by having these hobos begging them for something to eat all the time. After the chain gang is well organized, and everything moving along smoothly, the city should have a cop stationed at the yards. This cop should act as a kind of information bureau, and guide, so that when the hobos alight from the train they may not be forced to lose the time inquiring for the city chain gang. Just about one of the stunts of 20 days' duration, on the city streets, will make the hobos right angry, and when they are turned loose "they won't come back any more."

Roseburg Heroes.

Hobson was a hero, also Dewey and many others. These men were heroes, because they did some act in which their lives were endangered. People praised and lauded them to the skies because they were not afraid to die. There are heroes walking on the streets of Roseburg every day who are passed by unheeded, heroes from the fact that they take their lives in their hand when walking along some of the sidewalks in Roseburg, when at any moment they make a false step, and fall in one of the holes which are in the sidewalks, or by stepping on the end of a loose sidewalk plank and having the other end fly up and hit you on the chin.

An Eminent Divine on Club Women.

The Rev. Dr. R. A. Holland, of St. Louis, last Monday morning at a meeting of the Evangelical alliance spoke on "Marriage and Divorce," and in witty, short sentences he depicted the kind of a woman who is responsible for what he was pleased to call "the heredity of divorce." The clubwoman was characterized as one who "matters in knowledge," taking "dash of Dante, a smack of Shakespeare." With her, he said, matter is the mark of intellect. She has no modest conviction that culture is not culture when it puffs and pants, and that there is no surer proof of its absence than a swayed back, stiff back, stiff neck, or lofty head.

Dr. Holland advised women to find culture "in cooking a meal in the kitchen, preparing a chamber, or giving a kiss of affection to a child." The clubwoman, he said, "is away from home half the day, and she is still more away when she returns. She and her husband come together, but they do not meet. His mind is far away--her's is sailing around in the air.

"She learns how to run a female caucus. She is club president now; she will be president of a federation of federations. Her work increases, and she has to employ a typewriter. What a pity she can not employ a man, to offset her husband's employing a woman!" The speaker uttered expressions of thankfulness that club women usually were childless, although small families in general came in for severe exhortation in the course of his remarks.

Comments were made also on the principle of teaching every one to read. "When you see error in a book or newspaper," said Dr. Holland, "it looks like the truth. It wears the same raiment, and has the same proud look. Thieves may read and learn how to steal. Thugs read and acquire new methods of murder."

The doctor seemed to have been in the inside of the women's club question and knew more than was good for his health but when he spoke of the newspapers he had run up against the democratic heels.

To Destroy Fruit Tree Insects.

The only effective way to get rid of insects on fruit trees is to spray them with poisonous solutions. Any spraying outfits advertised in the agricultural and horticultural papers will be found reasonably satisfactory for the purpose for which they are recommended. The smaller apparatus is suitable only for small amounts of work. For larger operations some of the barrel sprayers will be found suitable, while for the great commercial orchards nothing short of power machines, capable of going rapidly over the work, will be found economical.

The material used in spraying will differ according to the enemy to be combated. For insect enemies some form of arsenic is used. Either Paris green or London purple has generally been employed for poisoning insects.

PARIS GREEN OR LONDON PURPLE. Paris green or London purple, 1 pound; water, 250 gallons; quicklime, 1 pound.

WHITE ARSENIC. White arsenic, 1 pound; sal soda, 1 pound; lime, 20 pounds; water, 400 gallons.

The arsenic is to be dissolved by boiling with the soda in one gallon of water, and is to be mixed with the water and lime as used.

It should never be forgotten that every preparation of arsenic is poisonous, and while the very dilute solutions used for spraying are not likely to be partaken of in sufficient quantities to produce serious results, the white arsenic, the concentrated solution above described, and the Paris green and London purple in powdered form must be guarded as deadly poisons.

While most spraying machines are accompanied by directions for using, it is well to understand that arsenic poisons in any of the above forms are fatal only to the insects which eat them. It is, therefore, necessary to have the spray thoroughly distributed upon the foliage, but it should not collect in drops.

For fungous diseases other spraying preparations are used. Formulas of these and directions for their use are as follows:

BORDEAUX MIXTURE. Copper sulphate, 6 pounds; quicklime, 4 pounds; water, 40 gallons.

Dissolve the copper sulphate by putting it in a bag of coarse cloth and hang this in a vessel holding at least four gallons, so that it is just covered by the water. Use an earthen or wooden vessel. Shake the lime in an equal amount of water. Then mix the two and add enough water to make forty gallons. It is then ready for immediate use. For rots, molds, mildews and all fungous diseases.

COPPER SULPHATE SOLUTIONS. Copper sulphate, 1 pound; water, 15 gallons.

Dissolve the copper sulphate in the water, when it is ready for use. This should never be applied to foliage, but must be used before the buds break. For peaches and nectarines use twenty-five gallons of water. For fungous diseases.

AMMONIACAL COPPER CARBONATE. Copper carbonate, 1 ounce; ammonia, enough to dissolve the copper; water, nine gallons.

The copper carbonate is best dissolved in large bottles, where it will keep indefinitely, and it should be diluted with water as required. For same purpose as Bordeaux.

KEROSENE EMULSION. Hard soap, half pound; boiling water, one gallon; kerosene, two gallons.

Dissolve the soap in the water; add the kerosene, and churn with a pump for five to ten minutes. Dilute ten to fifteen times before applying. For insects which suck, cabbage worms and all insects which have soft bodies.

Where only one kind of spray is used it will be found that an arsenic preparation is more important than any other. No man who has an orchard should allow it to be seriously injured by insect pests without a determined effort to combat them. It is generally safest to begin the battle as soon as the insects are likely to appear in the orchard. For some enemies, like the canker worm, only prompt and decisive measures are effectual.
