On the other hand, many a young man's attention could be centered in the business of his father if he were given responsibilities in a financial way just as soon as he had reached the age for assuming such. The eminent Aberdeen Angus breeder, Mr. Wm. McCombie, the Laird of Tillyfour, once said there is no better way to train a young man than to put him to market without assistance, meaning by this that the young man be entrusted to purchase animals for himself. Mistakes will certainly be made, as was the wse with this eminent breeder, whose first purchase brought forth the remark from his father, "They have not the countenance of beasts." In our opinion there is nothing that so sharpens the judgment of a young man as that of assuming some financial esponsibility. A certain number of
