AMERICAN FORESTRY.

The Object of Our Forest Policy In the Making of Prosperous Homes. President Roosevelt in a recent adfiress before the Society of American Foresters, a professional body of which he is an associate member, declared the forest problem to be in many ways the most vital internal problem of the United States. The object of our forest policy, he said, is the making of prosperous homes. This policy must not be imposed upon the people. It can be effective only when the people believe that it is wise and useful; that It is indispensable. The president called attention to the close relation of forestry to the mining industry in the | gon, March 9th, 1903, west, to the lumbering industry, whose very existence depends upon the success of forestry; to the railroads and to the grazing interests. Of the success of forestry in this country he said, "I believe that the foresters of the United States will create a more effective system of forestry than we have yet

Among other things, President Roosevelt said: "And now, first and foremost, the wild creatures of the wilderness. though that, too, is good in itself, but the primary object of our forest policy. as of the land policy of the United States, is the making of prosperous homes. It is part of the traditional policy of home making of our country. Every other consideration comes as government in dealing with the forests view the fact that it is not only necessary to start the homes as prosperous, but to keep them so. That is why the forests have got to be kept. You can start a prosperous home by destroying the forests, but you cannot keep it prosperous that way.

"And you are going to be able to of the country only in so far as you are phlets, write able to make the people at large and, above all, the people concretely interested in the results in the different localities appreciative of what it means. Impress upon them the full recognition of the value of its policy and make them earnest and zealous adherents of it. Keep in mind the fact that in a government such as ours it is out of the question to impose a policy like this from without. The policy as a permanent policy can come only from the intelligent conviction of the people themselves that it is wise and useful, nay, indispensable.

"'Forestry is the preservation of forests by wise use,' to quote a phrase I used in my first message to congress. Keep before your minds that definition. Forestry does not mean abbreviating that use; it means making the forest useful not only to the settler, the rancher, the miner, the man who lives in the neighborhood, but indirectly to the man who may live hundreds of miles off down the course of some great river which has had its rise among the forest bearing mountains."

The use of the centrifugal separator as a purifier of milk intended for retail trade has already reached some vantages of the method, as pointed out by O. F. Hunziker in a recent bulletin of the New York Cornell experiment station, are the time and cost involved, and especially the fact that skim milk and cream when once separated do not mix well and when reunited the cream does not rise as abundantly as in fresh milk. "As the consumer judges the richness of milk largely by the amount of cream that rises on it, he naturally and unjustly regards centrifuged milk as an article poor in fat and is unwilling to pay the price it is really

Expansion Spring In Wire Fencing. I have used almost all kinds of devices for bracing the corner post and have found all a fallure to a certain extent until I commenced to use the expansion spring, which takes all the strain from the post in winter and keeps your fence tight in summer, says an Ohio Farmer correspondent. In building a hundred rods of fence first set the corner post good and solid; anchor with stone three or four feet underground, which is far better than the brace, using the expansion spring in connection with each wire every twenty-five rods. At the end of fifty rods set another post and anchor one way to draw the first fifty rods, as that is as Fasten the wire, remove the ratchet, and the same with each wire. When you have finished the first half, fasten the wires to the middle post and go ahead with the last the same as the first, placing the springs twenty-five rods apart, using the ratchet for tightening the wires; fasten the wires to your posts. then place stays of some kind to keep bogs from spreading them apart. This is one of the best methods for using straight wire that any farmer can try. The cut shows mode of building and anchoring; C P, corner posts.

WHISPERING TOO LOUD!

I have heard it whispered in loud tones that I was going to quit the music business, but that is only another from the old source for the purpose of gaining a point. Even if I succeed in my new enterprise, it will be only another step towards holding my own against the trusts and combines. I am about the only piano dealer now on the coast that is going it alone and single handed I am grateful to the many friends who are giving me their patronage, for each month is bringing in greater results. I have never been guilty of selling a cheap piano for a high price or of misrepresenting the goods I handle, or even my competitor except in a defensive manner. And the name NEEDHAM (as he has no connection with that house) must be dropped from his ad, or he will hear something drop in regard to the price of Victor pianos that will surprise him and the public, or better see clipping from an eastern paper in my window, where Victors are offered for nearly two thirds less than is asked for them on this coast. This trick of holding a piano and keeping it in bad order just to knock its go d qualities, is getting to be an old gag and the public certainly sees it or we would not continue to sell so many high grade Needham pianos.

Do you remember not long ago, when a certain dealer got hold of a few Steinways and sold them for low prices just to burt its reputat on? Did it hurt it? No and neither can they hurt NEEDHAM because it speaks for itself.

All our last sales are a choice between NEEDHAM and Chi kering, NEEDHAM winning out every time. Watch next ad, for names of purchasers.
