A Wedding at Fair Oaks.

At the home [of the bride's parents, Wednesday, June 24, 1903, Mr. Seymour C. Quant and Miss Jessie A. Taylor were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Rev. C. P. Bailey, officiating. Miss Ora Quant acted as bridesmaid and Z. N. Agee as best man.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Quant, of Driver Valley, and is a

The President of the Board of Trade Makes a Trip.

F. W. Woolley, president of the Roseburg Board of Trade and manager of the Churchill and Woolley Hardware Company, has just returned from a visit in the Missouri bottom and Days Creek Country, and is much gratified at the fine outlook for crops, mines and general prosperity of that section. Mr. Woolley visited the fine farms of Joe Clough, Joseph Boyle, Jacob Brown, Ophir Byres and M. Matesler in the Missouri Bottom section and there found that they would have a record crop of prunes and other fruit, their grain is at a good height probably five feet and looks clean and healthy. This will certainly be a prosperous year for the Missouri bottom farmers.

Days Creek is not behind Missouri bottom in crops, and is far ahead in the enterprise of building. Postmaster, H. C. Gidney, David Fate and Geo. Neuner each have many new buildings. Mr. Neuner is just completing a fine new residence, and when Mr. Woolley arrived there, it was receiving a coat of paint. This shows the enterprise of the farmers through one section of bountiful Oregon.

At the John Perdue place all were busy cutting hay, the crop there is of fine quality and quite large. Mr. Perdue has a fine place and is doing nicely in the way of improvements.

At the forks of the Umpqua river and Elk Creek, Mr. Woolley met County Bridge Builder, Tommie, who had just prepared his camp and was getting timbers on the ground to commence work on the new bridge at that place.

The stock ranch of Wright brothers, two miles above the Poole ranch, was visited, and there Mr. Woolley met the surprise of his trip, to run across a well equipped, up-to-date stock ranch in what is supposed to be the wilds of Oregon, is indeed a surprise. At present they have but a few head of stock, but within a few weeks several hundred head of fine stock will arrive. They have everything in the best condition for the care of the stock and have spared no expense or pains in the arrangement of their ranch. They have an eighteen acre field on a plateau about 100 feet elevation above their barn and a shute 400 feet long from the field to the gable end of their big barn, when they cut their hay they simply load it upon this shute and shove it into the barn. Their field is sown with Alfalfa and grain hay. There are many chances for fine stock ranches through Oregon, but it seems that Wright brothers who recently arrived here from Nebraska, are leading all at present.

The many miners of this section are also being worked to good advantage and it seems that within time that the prophecy of Ed. Schedin, the great Oregon Miner and discoverer of Tomestone, Ariz., will in time come to pass that "the mines of South Douglas County will prove the richest in the world." It will be remembered that this man died alone in these hills a few years ago while out prospecting.

At Banfield mine they have a goodly lot of promising ore on the dump.

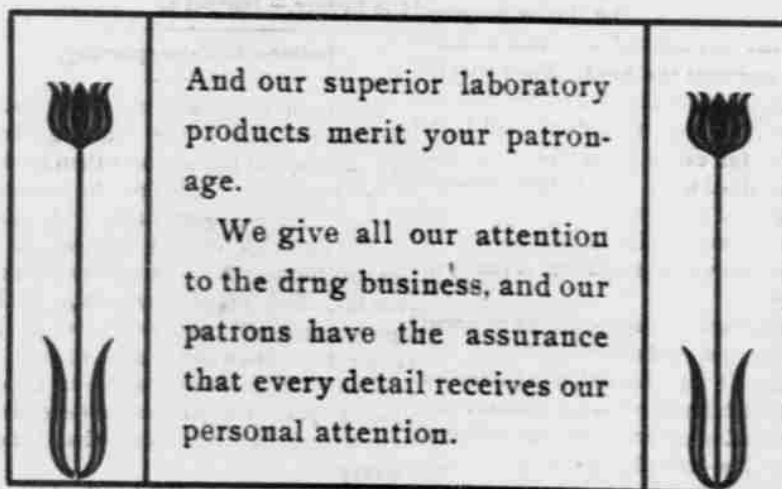

The mine which is owned by Portland parties and managed by Mr. Rowley, is showing some fine and promising ore as are all mines through the district.

Mr. Woolley speaks in the highest praise with the hospitality he received on his trip, and is greatly elated at the prosperity and enterprise of the farmers, ranchers and miners of what is usually considered the wilds of Oregon, but which is really a field of wealth to enterprising people.

The General-Purpose Horse.

In these days of specializing the general purpose horse is being crowded to the rear. Several years ago he was much sought and a class was one of the best from a marketable point of view. Now, however, people have come to realize that his work was but poorly done. As a roadster he lacks much of the speed and considerable of the action that makes the ideal roadster. As a drafter he is merely a makeshift. Willing enough he may be, but measured in pounds his load must be not more than half of an ordinary drafter's load. Even the farmer, to whom he is perhaps more useful than to anyone else, finds it pays better to keep an extra horse for the road, and good, blocky, broody mares for the farm work.—[Live Stock World.]

ARTEMUS.

Last Night of Carnival.

Last night was the closing of the Carnival, and the continual showers which had fell at various times during the day tended to dampen the closing hours of Queen Willethea's reign, but nevertheless the merry makers were out in force until a late hour, and confetti flew thick and fast, the camel trotted his usual route, the Ferris wheel turned dizzily around, Wallas roared and inhaled smoke, the glass blowers blew as did also the spellers, Lunette floated on air the statue turned to life, Lotta danced as did also the bear, the dogs barked the old Plantation coons drank beer. Eau de snakes, and we are all glad its over.

Snyder Cannot be Found.

E. P. Bagshaw, the timber cruiser, with whom Harmon Snider went into the mountains, near Perdue, has returned to this city. Mr. Bagshaw says that after Snider left his place for Perdue on his return home, he became uneasy about him and wrote Thomas Cannon to see if he had arrived in Roseburg safe, and immediately upon receipt of the information that he had not, Bagshaw gathered together a party of eight men and made a thorough search of the surrounding country for three days but could not find a trace of the missing man. The search was then abandoned, and Mr. Bagshaw returned to Roseburg.
