W. H. Murdock, of Cleveland, brought to the PLAINDEALER office this morning seven or eight branches cut from his hazelnut trees. Several years ago he planted some French hazelnuts and now he has twenty-four large trees. The branches were well filled and had more nuts on them than the writer ever saw on nut bushes, in either France or England. There are thousands of opportunities open, for enterprise, grit and gumption in Oregon that would give profitable results, and the hazelnut is one of them, because the hazelnut is indigenous to the soil.

Word has been received that Smith Bailey of this city just had what came near proving a fatal accident. He had started for Roseburg with his trotter and sulky and when going around a curve about two miles from Jefferson, he ment an automobile. The horse reared and plunged throwing both over the grade. Mr. Bailey lay there, he knows not how long when a man going by on a bicycle found him and worked with him for some time before he recovered. He was then taken to Jefferson and sent to Eugene on the train. He is expected home tonight. Whether he is fatally injured or not is not yet known.

On last Thursday our sister town, Oakland, had a little excitement to break their monotony of peaceful sublimity. A timber man by the name of Bestul, who was carrying a heavy load of fire-water, was charging through the main streets of Oakland at a pace too furious to be allowed by law, and was placed under arrest by City Marshall Hogan. He was taken before the recorder where he plead guilty and was set free. Imbibing more freely than ever, he followed the marshal all over town and finally sprang on him. As soon as the officer could recover himself and draw a weapon Bestul ran. But City Marshall Hogan fired with the result that Bestul is now nursing a sore arm and stands a good chance of facing the charge of resisting an officer.

Short, of Wilbur, sang and as usual her solos were well rendered. Mrs. Barzee in her recitation No Saloons up There, received well merited applause. In short all the pieces were well executed, and the people of Roseburg hope that the W. C. T. U. will give another entertainment in the near future.
