If They Had Emptied the Bottles What Then?

The Lebanon Express says: Two high society women from Albany had quite an experience near Spicer the other day. They were driving a horse hitched to a single buggy, and it is reported both women were well loaded with "bug juice" and were driving in a reckless manner, and one of them either fell out or was thrown out of the buggy, and was badly bruised and received a severe scalp wound. Dr. J. C. Booth was called and dressed the wound. The doctor reports they had several bottles of whiskey which they had not emptied yet when the accident happened.

Timber land entrymen should think well and seriously before they take up timber or supposed timber lands in this part of the state. The latest swindle in this line coming under our observation is the location of two 4,000,000 feet of lumber claims on the top of a bald mountain.

A contribution of 25 cents from a Maine woman, a widow who said it was all she had, was the beginning of the collection taken up by Rev. A. B. Simpson, in the Christian Alliance camp meeting in that state. He suggested that she retain a part, but she refused. The collection was for foreign missions, and $41,000 was raised in the three principal meetings of the day.

Sam S. Shubert, theatrical manager of New York, is arranging to recruit for the musical comedies of his firm and that of Nixon & Zimmerman of Philadelphia 500 chorus girls from all over the country. Fourteen offices will soon be opened. Mr. Shubert has discovered that well-bred women improve the chorus and will try to engage that kind. Offices will be established in Portland.

Honk-a-Tonk Affair.

Last night a bar keeper at a saloon on Jackson street beat up a Chinaman or some other kind of a man and was fined $25 and costs by Justice Buchanan. After that was over a white man was beat up at the same place and Doctor Hoover took twenty stitches in the man's head and then he was not half stuck together again. The assailant is now in the county jail in the absence of $1,000 bond.

THE SILO.

It is of Great Value to Dairymen if Correctly Built and Operated.

My seven years of experience have proved to me the great value of the silo, says W. B. Barney of Iowa. Round silos are best. Build them on a hill beside the barn. If possible, to decrease labor in handling ensilage. Use nothing but the best of material. They may be lathed and plastered at any time, if desired. The important point in filling is to tread the ensilage well while filling. Use twenty-five pails of water each noon, the same amount at night, and, when finished, pour on six or eight barrels in addition. About twelve tons of silage per acre can be raised under ordinary circumstances. I usually raise 125 acres of corn, and for my silo cut that which is not apt to mature in time to avoid injury from frost. I have tried the various varieties of corn designed especially for ensilage, but have not had as good success as with the ordinary field varieties. Were I planting my entire acreage for ensilage purposes I would make no change in seed or method of planting or cultivation, except to drop more kernels in each hill.

There is a difference in the digestive capacity and requirements of cattle, but for the ordinary cow forty pounds of ensilage, ten pounds of clover and timothy hay and four pounds of oats and bran would constitute a good ration, well balanced, for one day's feed. Ordinarily I cut corn for ensilage about a week before it is ready to shock. Some of my corn was frosted this year, but it made good ensilage. I used more water than usual on it, and this takes the place of the juices which are wanting. I would do the same thing when putting up drier corn.

There has been a shrinkage of late in the creameries in Iowa. Had the dairymen used silos these 200 creameries could have been kept open. The time is coming when sufficient ensilage will be saved to feed milking cows during the dry period of the summer. I have experimented with alfalfa a little of late. If we can succeed in raising it successfully here, we will have secured a feed of great value in milk production.

Rhubarb.

Rhubarb is made more agreeable to the eye by preserving the crimson color of the raw stalks. Choose the reddest stalks and cook without peeling. Do not sweeten until it is taken from the fire. A tablespoonful of orange juice improves the flavor of rhubarb.

WISCONSIN DAIRY LAW.

Measure Adopted by Legislature to Prevent Sale of Insanitary Milk.

In order "to prevent the sale of unclean and insanitary milk and the use thereof in the manufacture of food products and to prohibit unclean and insanitary conditions of creameries, cheese factories and milk dealers' establishments or outfits" the Wisconsin legislature has passed and the Wisconsin governor has approved a law which reads as follows and is its own best commentary:

Section 1. Milk which shall be drawn from cows that are kept in barns or stables which are not well lighted and ventilated or that are filthy from an accumulation of animal refuse or from any other cause, or from cows that are themselves in a filthy condition, and milk in or from cans or other utensils that are not kept in a clean and sanitary condition, or milk to which has been added any unclean or insanitary foreign substance is hereby declared to be unclean and insanitary milk, provided that nothing in this act shall be construed to prohibit the sale of pasteurized milk or cream to which viscogen or succrate of lime has been added solely for the purpose of restoring the viscosity if the same be distinctly labeled in such manner as to advise the purchaser of its true character.

Sec. 2. No person, firm or corporation shall knowingly offer or expose for sale or sell or deliver for sale or consumption or to any creamery or cheese factory or milk condensing factory or have in his possession with intent to sell any unclean or insanitary milk.

Sec. 3. No person, firm or corporation shall knowingly manufacture for sale any article of food from unclean or insanitary milk or from cream from the same.

Sec. 4. All premises and utensils employed for the manufacture or sale or offering for sale of food products from milk or cream from the same which shall not be kept in clean and good sanitary condition are hereby declared to be unclean and insanitary. Any city milk dealer or any person, firm or corporation furnishing milk or cream to such dealer or the employee of such milk dealer and any person, firm or corporation or the employee of such person, firm or corporation who operates a creamery, cheese factory or milk condensing factory or manufactures, reworks or packs butter for sale as a food product shall maintain his premises and utensils in a clean and sanitary condition.

Sec. 5. Any person, firm or corporation who receives any milk or cream in cans, bottles or vessels which have been transported over any railroad or boat line where such cans, bottles or vessels are to be returned shall cause the said cans, bottles or vessels to be emptied before the said milk or cream contained therein shall become sour and shall cause said cans, bottles and vessels to be immediately washed and thoroughly cleansed and aired.

Sec. 6. Whoever violates any provision of this action shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100 for each and every offense and in default of payment thereof shall be imprisoned not less than thirty days nor more than sixty days.

Water Shrews.

A pretty little animal, writes a correspondent, occasionally to be noticed at the edge of a stream or pond is the water shrew. The ways of these creatures are most fascinating. I have seen them quietly emerge from the grass, run down the side of the bank into and along the bottom of the stream. While under the water their movements are very rapid. They scrape away on the bottom with their feet, thrusting their long snouts into the mud and under stones and leaves in search of insects on which they feed. They then retire a little way up the bank for a moment or two to take breath and hurry back to their work once more. I have never seen water shrews dive. They simply run in and out of the stream, as if air and water were both alike to them, and they were equally at home in either element. When under the water, they look as if they were covered with minute silver pearls owing to the particles of air adhering to their furry bodies. Land and water shrews are not of the mouse tribe. They have the sharpest and most delicately beautiful teeth imaginable and live entirely on insect food.—London Opinion.
