WANTED!!

Fifty laborers at Ray's Dam, near Tolo, Ore.; Wages, $2.50 per day for first-class men.

DR. C. R. RAY, Tolo, Ore.

Tin Canning Kostall.

Joe Kostall, ex-big leaguer and former twirler for the Portland Browns, was heard to remark, before the first game with Marshfield that if they (Roseburg) did not win they could can him. The game went the wrong way and in the evening after his battle his team-mates did not fail to remember the pitcher's assertions. A can was secured and Joe pounded up at Dungan's. The proper attachment was made and Joe did a hot foot up Front Street, with a quartet of Roseburgers following closely at his heels with clubs and brickbats. The scene created great merriment for the crowd of spectators that witnessed the performance and Joe, too, good natured as he is, seemed to share in its enjoyment.—Marshfield Sun.
