

tracting wide attention, and there is a prospect that the bidding will be lively. The men who are putting their stock up at auction expect to see much of it sold at a sacrifice, but their purpose is to create an interest in thoroughbred stock, so that their private sales will increase. Their belief is that if a few hundred head of thoroughbred cattle are scattered through the farming districts farmers will become convinced of the advantage of keeping that class of stock, and will buy more.

Since it was certain that the stock would be sold at a sacrifice, no one breeder would furnish all the stock for the sale, but each of a number of the most prominent breeders contributed a few head of cattle, sheep, goats and hogs, and whatever loss there may be will be distributed so that no one will feel it.

Superintendent C. A. Murphy, in charge of the pavilion at the Fair Grounds, is working with a force of men decorating the building and mapping out the space to be occupied by the different exhibits. It is evident that the great pavilion will be crowded from end to end with products of farm, garden, orchard and factory of such excellence as has never been surpassed in this state.

The State Board of Agriculture has secured R. L. Harriman, of Bunson, Mo., a prominent horseman of that state, to act as presiding judge at the races, and Robert Leighton, of Vancouver, British Columbia, will act as assistant and starter of the running races. The third judge has not yet been chosen.

The Board of Trade display shipped to Salem, for exhibition at the State Fair, on yesterday demonstrates two things viz:

First, we have as fine products as can be produced in the United States.

Second, we have the most indifferent class of people in the world.

In support of the first statement we will say that the display of grains, grasses, fruits and vegetables, sent to the fair yesterday will not be excelled by that from any county in Oregon. It is the quantity complained of. Every farmer, gardener and orchardist in Douglas County should have been represented in this exhibit, in some one article at least. For instance the secretary (who is not credited with a large head) could put the entire prune exhibit in his hat, yet we pose as, and are in fact, one of the leading prune counties of the State. This state exhibit should have contained at least 1000 lbs. of prunes. The apples, pears, and peaches brought to the Board of Trade for exhibition at the State Fair, was altogether too small. The agricultural display in wheat, oats and corn, is in the "blue ribbon class." The growths are especially fine; but not nearly all the varieties grown in the county are represented.

The following is a list of contributors to the exhibit.

Thos. Hinkle—Red and gray oats; Johnson's winter, big club, bearded club and Australian club wheat; timothy; yellow dent and white field corn; tomatoes; late Crawford peaches, and the following grasses: cheat, orchard, meadow bunch, velvet, red top, Italian rye, English rye, English blue and Lincoln.
