At the Native Son's hall tonight Misses Regina Rast, Maud Rast, Flossie Shambrook and Elva Wimberly, will be hostesses at what will undoubtedly be the largest private party of the season, the last of guests numbering near one hundred and eighty. No adequate idea of the beauty of the decorations can be gained from a mere description for the bare unattractive interiors of the two rooms and entry way have been transformed into really charming parlors. The entry way and dressing room are done in scarlet and green, warrior ferns and scarlet quince blossoms being used for the floral decorations, and numberless Chinese lanterns their gay coloring intensified by the incandescents within, threaded on bands of scarlet and green are suspended overhead. The doorways are draped with American flags. The main hall of the building is in yellow and green, ferns and bowls of jonquills adding greatly to the effect of the color plan which is carried out largely in bands of budding and huge fern fronds. The banquet room shows green and purple, the walls being draped with felmets into which evergreen is threaded, and the flowers used are bowls of violets set of by ferns. Pedro and Finch will be the games of the evening, the winners to receive handsome Gibson heads plaques done in pyrography.

Burgess Catching, a 15-year-old boy, son of L. Catching, formerly of Riddle, but now a resident of Angels Camp, Calif., pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny, in Justice Buchanan's court, Thursday. The crime was committed last Saturday while the young man was employed at Gilde, by Ransome Soper, as a wood cutter. Young Catching appropriated $20 of Mr. Soper's money and then left for Riddle. Geo. Yokum, of Riddle, a cousin of the boy, came to the court the sum of $15, which the boy had given to him to purchase a ticket to California for him. Mr. Yokum also made good the other five dollars, and on promise to be a better boy, young Catching was given his freedom, although the case was not dismissed. Mr. Yokum also agreed to send the boy to his father, who, it seems, has neglected him for the past few years, and the boy was inclined to go the way of the wicked.
