As an example of the mechanical ability the cripple's tricycle which has just been built throughout by Will Johnson at the bicycle repair shop of West Roseburg, is a specimen that is worthy of praise. It is constructed with ball bearings and runs very easily being geared so that the operator may be in any direction or climb any ordinary hill. The friends of Mr. Johnson deserve credit for the funds so liberally given and Mr. Johnson for the faithful labor, time and expense which he has sacrificed in order to benefit his unfortunate fellow man.

Prof. Hunt's dog and monkey circus, under the personal management of Mr. Hall, independent of the carnival, has been one of the biggest attractions on the midway, not only for the young people but enjoyed by the older ones. The ease with which the dogs and monkeys do the bidding of their master is most remarkable and the rapidity with which each is carried through without a hitch, makes one almost believe that the animal actors are human. The clown dog and the large monkey riding the bicycle offers a great deal of amusement for the little ones. Everyone should see the dog and monkey show.

MOLLIE.

The Dixie Carnival at Roseburg.

Crowds are coming from surrounding towns and from a country to visit the different attractions of the Dixie Carnival. As the week progresses the crowd increases and everybody seems to be satisfied with the shows. The writer has been through the different tents and finds everything as represented by the spouters. While some things are not exactly as they are painted on the canvas one is assured of their money's worth at every performance. All shows are moral and interesting. As usual the snake-eater, "Easi," draws large crowds of people. "Dixie Land," the coast show, is having its share of patronage, as the negro shows always do. The laughing, jking and singing darkies always add life to the tired sightseers. In the Laughing Palace, where one laughs at himself because he is the whole show and pays his money to see himself look tall, short, fat, round, crooked and straight, is visited by hundreds. "No Name the Malay Wonder," has the people guessing and is continually entering a large crowd of people. The Electric Palace is doing a great business and all who see the statue turn to life go away with their eyes.
