FOR PRESIDENT
Theodore Roosevelt, of New York.
FOR VICE-PRESIDENT
Chas. W. Fairbanks, of Indiana.

PARKER VS. ROOSEVELT.

Judge Parker is evidently a man of the Turner type. Tall, handsome, commanding, he has posed gracefully, looked wise and maintained silence, and the admiring multitude has done the rest. Even the famous Telegram, which seemed to be the spontaneous outburst of a frank and honest nature, was virtually squeezed out of him by the daily journals of Greater New York. The ship of state would drift, were Judge Parker in command, says the Argus. Not so Roosevelt: when the ship doesn't go to suit him, he rolls up his breeches and jumps out and tows the craft in the direction that does please him. He may yank it around abruptly and unmercifully, but he is not helpless, as Judge Parker would be, and those on board have confidence that while he may give them the ride of their lives, he will not upset them. The worst trouble with Theodore is that he makes conventional people seasick, and they long for a calm.

President Roosevelt has been giving his new Cabinet officers an idea of what the "strenuous life" really is. Only a few days after his return from Oyster Bay the Chief Executive invited Secretary Morton, of the Navy Department, and Secretary Metcalf, of Commerce and Labor, to accompany him on a stroll through the country after office hours. Accordingly the new secretaries presented themselves at the White House promptly at 4:30, and were driven with the President to a point in the country about seven miles from home. When they reached a spot sufficiently remote to suit the President, he and his guests alighted, the driver was dismissed, and the carriage sent home. "We will walk, now," said Mr. Roosevelt, and putting his intention into effect, he started homeward down the dusty road, at a stiff, country gait. Trailing behind were the two Cabinet officers. The route picked out by the President led over hills and dales, through thickets and down well-trodden roads; over rocks and through creeks. It was a typical cross-country run, with an abundance of barriers thrown in. At times the President's companions were within hailing distance; at other times they were in the also-ran class. The trio reached the city about dark, the President bright and fresh as when he started, but his companions well tuckered out. It was their first experience with the strenuous President, and they are both willing to admit that the term has been well applied to President Roosevelt.

Every member of Congress, when first elected, is faced with the necessity of outlining his programme for a public career and must stand or fall upon the wisdom of his decision and acts. He must decide whether he shall enter into competition with the men with records of long and honorable service behind them in seeking his share of the credit and plaudits for honors in the forum of debate and the contest for general legislation, or whether he shall devote his time to the interests of the particular constituency he may represent. If he represents a district in the House, or a State in the Senate in which the party majorities are strong and fixed and his tenure of office assuredly long, he may with safety elect to devote his efforts to a specialty, to stamping his impress upon legislation on subjects to which he has devoted much thought and attention. In that event his first influence must be exerted to secure assignment to the committees that furnish the field for the exercise of his efforts and after that everything depends upon the man and his willingness to work. Most of the legislation of the Congress, in fact, is the work of specialists.

The war in the far east is nothing as compared with the spectacular and aggressive warfare being waged at Eugene between the Guard and Register, wherein extravagant adjectives and red hot epithets are employed instead of shot and shell. We suggest on behalf of the beleaguered supporters of those hostile papers, that their troubles be submitted to the Hague tribunal, which has long been out of a job. Be good.

The following fine tribute was paid that typical American, President Roosevelt by Secretary Hay at the conclusion of a brilliant speech recently: "But to talk about Roosevelt! it is as easy as to sing 'the glory of the Graceme.' Of gentle birth and breeding, yet a man of the people in the best sense; with the training of a scholar and the breezy accessibility of a ranchman; a man of the library and a thinker; a soldier and statesman; a reader, a writer and a maker of history; with the sensibility of a poet and the steel nerve of a rough rider; one who never did and never could turn his back on a friend or an enemy. A man whose merits are so great that he could win on his merits alone; whose personality is so engaging that you lose sight of his merits.

Under the circumstances the Democrats ought to put up a game fight this fall. They have placed the management of their campaign in the hands of the owner of a notorious gambling house, and have named as their Vice Presidential nominee a man who is a confirmed pokerplayer. The news comes from Elkins, W. Va., the home of Henry Davis, that Judge Parker's running mate is a confirmed pokerplayer. Seldom an evening passes that this octogenarian falls to round out his day with a quiet game. It has been a part of Senator Davis' life for many years to devote an hour each evening to the great American game and if he should be elected to the Vice Presidency, it is predicted that poker will be even more in vogue in official Washington than it is today.

Douglas county, it is observed, is acquiring much better country roads by a systematic and permanent system of road building which has been inaugurated in this county in the past few years, some late examples being found in the road improvements on the county road leading over the hill north from Roseburg to Edenbower and also from Roseburg east through the Bushey tract. Although much trouble and expense has been experienced still the good results obtained are more than equal to the costs. The people demand good roads, and must have them. No other factor serves so well in building and settling up a new country as good roads.

As far as possible the Democrats are going to confine their campaign this year to attacks on Roosevelt. It was predicted many weeks ago that Theodore Roosevelt would be the paramount issue of the campaign. Recent events have sustained that prediction. For several weeks past Democratic leaders in New York and in Washington have employed men to go over all the writing of Theodore Roosevelt from the time he entered Harvard up to and including his speech of acceptance at Oyster Bay, and to pick out everything upon which can be linged criticism, no matter how remote. It is to be a campaign of personalities and mud slinging on the part of Democracy.

Lane county is greatly enthused over a proposition of some capitalists to connect prominent points in the county with electric railways. The county court will do well to weigh the matter carefully before an exclusive franchise is granted the aforesaid capitalists. An electric line is being projected from Portland up the Willamette valley, which seems to be a bonafide enterprise, and which will prompt a good many speculators to endeavor to secure franchises and rights-of-way along the proposed electric railway route, to hold merely for speculation, which sometimes tends to obstruct and delay a legitimate enterprise.

It is said that the democrats will be able to collect a large campaign fund this year for the first time in many years. Where will they get it? From the trusts, which are angry at President Roosevelt, because he refused to allow them to violate the law, or to look upon them as above the law. Will the trusts give money to Parker, in view of the anti-trust plank of the St. Louis platform? Why should they not? That is not his plank but Bryan's. Parker's plank is in the New York platform, and the trusts can easily get assurance from Belmont and Meyer that he will stand by that.

The town of Hubbard has been experimenting with crude oil on the streets. A correspondent says: The city has had a lot of crude oil put on some of the streets as a test to see what effect it would have on the dust, and also to see what it will do this winter. So far, this season it has kept the dust down in good shape. The oil is much cheaper than sprinkling the streets with water, and also lasts longer.

If there are any other points in the Democratic platform, which Judge Parker thinks he can improve he will probably suggest them Aug. 10, in his letter of acceptance.

The Olds, Wortman & King Department Store at Portland has adopted modern business methods and in it humanitarian ethics are exemplified. The store closes at 1 p. m. on Saturdays during August—employees go off on healthful recreations, getting health and strength for next week's duties. It makes a better Sabbath observance not only possible but probable, says the management.

This is a great year for the Democratic Davises. Henry G. Davis is candidate for the Vice-Presidency; Cyrus W. Davis has been nominated for Governor of Maine, and Jeff Davis Governor of Arkansas. The latter is the only member of the great Davis family who is likely to be heard of after election.—Oregonian.

State Printer J. R. Whitney has the thanks of the PLAINDEALER for a copy of the game laws and other state documents of interest. Heretofore the game laws have not been in print for general distribution, but now they can be had by sending to J. W. Baker, the state game warden, at Cottage Grove.

President Roosevelt will probably decide not to run when he sees some of the forecasts of the democratic wiseacres and, further, learns that a small town down East which "has polled its vote for the successful presidential candidate for twenty years," is for Parker this year.

The Democrats of Washington state have nominated ex-Senator George Turner for governor. Disaffection in the republican ranks of the state over Mears' nomination for the governorship leaves the election of Turner not among the improbabilities at the November polls.

Theodore Roosevelt is said to be "dangerous" because "dictatorial." But he was not the man who dictated by telegraphic dispatch an addition to the platform, or an interpretation of it. There must be a mistake about dictators, very pertinently remarks an exchange.

Now it is said that Candidate Davis is not to be married to the woman who as a girl refused him over 50 years ago. Perhaps she gave him the other mitten.

People do not "pass by on the other side" of stores that are advertised—unless the stores on the "other side" are better advertised.

The New York Press is getting gay in its old days. It says, it makes a great comfort to women to wear the kind that don't bag at the knees.

Seven men named Bill were together in the Blue River mines. They discovered the fact and immediately named the place Billsburg.

Judge Parker has resigned his judicial position. He will regret it after November.

Roosevelt's son has a Bible class, Theodore, Jr., teaches ten little boys in the Episcopal church at Oyster Bay.

A good, big load of hay and a $20 gold piece are about the same size these days in Western Oregon.

A law licensing hunters and fishermen is suggested for the next session of the Legislature.

A Ten Acre Melon Field.

L. S. Coon of Dillard, was transacting business in Roseburg Saturday, and delivering a wagon load of fine musk melons. He informed a PLAINDEALER representative that he has under cultivation this season about ten acres of water melons and musk melons, as well as quite a large tract of tomatoes all of which are doing unusually well and are of excellent quality, it having been a very good season for such products especially for river bottom land such as Mr. Coon cultivates. Water melons from this field will be ready for the market this week and tomatoes are also ripening. Mr. Coon is a large and successful grower of Strawberries and other small fruits, the plants of which he also cultivates for market.

"A Runaway Match."

The indications are for a big house at the production of "A Runaway Match" at the Roseburg theater on Wednesday evening, Aug. 17. It is considered one of the best attractions that has been booked for the season, and from all accounts, the play is scoring a big hit on the road as it did during its New York production, where it held the boards for a long season. Many clever specialties are interspersed throughout the play and the costumes of the ladies in the cast are the exact reproduction of those worn in the metropolitan production. The press notices give evidence that the play more than meets the anticipation which was aroused by the claims of the managers of the play. Music will be furnished by the Roseburg orchestra providing the company does not carry an orchestra of its own.

BORN.

PEARSON—In Roseburg, Aug. 6, 1904, to Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Pearson, a boy.
MARTIN—At Smith River, Oregon, Aug. 4, 1904, to Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Martin, a bouncing 9 pound boy.

A Roseburg Invention.

A very simple and practical little device for pulling and topping sugar beets has just been invented by Messrs. W. M. Hodson and Geo. Hayes of Roseburg, who have applied for a patent on the machine. This simple little piece of mechanism was invented with a view to expediting the harvesting of the beet crop, being so constructed as to pull and top beets at the same time.

It has an adjustable gauge so they may be cut off at any place that may be desired. It is about the weight and length of a short handled spade, and is very durable. There is nothing to get out of order, and it is of cheap construction, and will last a life time. It will top and lift any size of beet from one to five inches. Such an implement will be a great labor saver in the large sugar beet fields of the United States as by its use the number of hands required for pulling and topping beets can be reduced one-half.

Violent Attack of Diarrhoea Cured by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and Perhaps a Life Saved.

"A short time ago I was taken with a violent attack of diarrhoea and believe I would have died if I had not gotten relief," says John J. Patton, a leading citizen of Patton, Ala. "A friend recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I bought a twenty-five cent bottle and after taking three doses of it was entirely cured. I consider it the best remedy in the world for bowel complaints. For sale by A. C. Marsters & Co.

Home Again.

But you don't know where I've been—
Away off down on a farm!
Look here, where I've burnt the skin
More'n half way up my arm!
I could hit a teeny pig
To bring home, but ma said no,
It would get too awful big
When it oct begun to grow.

An' I saw 'em makin' hay
With a cutter ten feet wide—
When I wanted, all the day
I could sit on top an' ride!
An' onct, sir, the cutter stick
Cut a rabbit right in two—
He went "squeak, squeak!" like that, quick—

An' you ought to seee him—whew!
Farmers have no grow'ry store,
But they get their eggs in mows,
An' they need 'em milkmen, for
They squeeze milk strai' out of cows.
An' my uncle—Uncle Jed—
Onct when I was standin' by,
"Open up your mouth!" he said—
But he squirted in my eye!

I went round in overalls
An' had pie for breakfast—gee!
An' I rang the bell that calls
in for dinner 'or tea.
An' the hired girl, she ate
At the table long with us—
Country girls are 'posed to wait,
So ma didn't raise a fuss.

I washed near the back-stoop pump
In a basin with the rest.
An' nobody tried to jump.
On us when we splashed or messed.
Ma, she says that I'm a sight
'Cause I got so black—oh dear,
I'm afraid I'll get all white,
Fore I go again next year.

Swaps Sweetheart for Coon Dog.

WELLINGTON, CONN., August 6.—Wellington Fuller has married his brother Arthur's girl, and brother Arthur is now owner of Wellington's prize coon dog. Wellington says he has got the best and prettiest girl in Berkshire County, Mass., and brother Arthur says that if there is any dog in the county that can tree more coons than his new dog he'd like to know it.

Wellington and Arthur both became smitten with pretty Miss Ivy White, Walter White's daughter, last fall, and they began "callin' regular." Arthur is twenty-four and his brother twenty-six. Soon the big brother began to understand that the little brother was getting more smiles than he was, and the village folks told him he'd better be sry. He might have settled it in a fight, but he chose diplomacy.

"Arthur did ye ever see a coon dog that could catch more coons than my Sport?"

Arthur admitted he hadn't.

"Arthur, Miss Ivy is a pretty girl, but I guess as how you have seen some one jest as pretty?"

Arthur thought maybe he had.

"Well, Arthur, there ain't another coon dog like Sport, and there may be another girl like Miss Ivy. I am going to give you Sport. He's your'n."

Arthur was delighted.

"And when you ret Sport I want you to forget the way to Miss Ivy's house and let me do all the courtin' alone," said the big brother.

Arthur thought it over. Sport certainly was a good dog and Miss Ivy certainly was a fine girl—but there wasn't another dog like Sport.

"Being as I am only twenty-four and pretty young to get married, I guess I will take the coon dog, if ye really mean it," announced Arthur.

To show that he meant it Wellington and Miss Ivy White were married in the village church in New Boston, Mass., last Friday. Arthur has bought a new gun and is impatient to get after the coons.

Work on Lumber Flume.

The Booth-Kelly Lumber Company have a large force of men employed building a new span across the Coast Fork of the Willamette at Saginaw for the lumber flume, says the Cottage Grove Leader. The span is 150 feet long. G. W. Catching is in charge of all construction work for the Booth-Kelly Company, and has practically completed the work. All was done without interrupting the flow of lumber across the span. Many large timbers came shooting across last Friday when the Leader representative was there. These timbers are for the Armour Car Company, at Omaha, Nebraska. Yard forces are being increased and the shipments are likewise showing a tendency toward larger volume.
