BOBBY SAYS:

"Don't you wake the baby, dear! Hush, be quiet, run away!" That's the talk I allus hear when I want a chance to play. "Stop yer noise; you'll wake 'im up!" When I wistle for my pup.

What's the use of 'em still? Guess 'e's got 't learn 't sleep. Long 'th noise or they will 'ave to stop 't ears 'n keep Cotton in 'em, which 'ud be mighty funny, seems 't me.

That kid allus seems 't take Let the time I want to yell For his time for stomach ache. N'en the folks-alus tell Me to shut up, or they'll enough Howling round-it's purty tough.

But if I could have my way Kid 'n me 'ud yell 't split Both our throats 'n yell all day—" 'twouldn't hurt us, not a bit. 'We 'ud be havin' fun 'Thout hurtin' any one.

Just His Way.

Man that is born of woman is of few days, but of quite a considerable number of nights. The reason for this is that so many of the days do not count, while occasionally there is a night thrown in that counts double. He arises in the morning and hustles for a few dollars, and then when the lights are lit he inflates his lungs and blows them all in.

He goes out of his way to impress on the minds of the rising generation that honesty is the best policy, and then he winks both eyes or studiously looks the other way when dollars are falling into his pocket from questionable sources.

Thus he flourishes for a little season, thinking that no man is wise to his game, when the world is to him as big as a conch shell. Then the sheriff comes along to cut him down; but, lo, his property is in his wife's name, and he retires to become the oldest inhabitant and to spend the rest of his life kicking on the honest men who get elected to the legislature and who save $10,000 on $1,000 salary, for, having been through the mill, he knows their ways.

The Sweet Singer

A little frog sat on a log. Down at the west end of a bog. His cheery song he hummed along. And on the deep notes came out strong.

A mix in bed some harsh words said. Because his morning sleep had fled. He tore the air and swore a swear. But still his frogship did not care.

Not His Choice.

"If you are good when you are a boy you may grow up to be a president."

"I don't want to take chances. If I am good I might grow up to be a preacher."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

If you think a woman can't keep a secret, ask the office girl.

There are lots of men that can tell the truth, but they won't.

A woman never realizes what a good listener her husband is until he is absent and she has no one to talk to.

The man who speaks before he thinks is apt to have necessity to apologize.

The more familiar some folks are with the truth the less use they have for it.

With some people the slimmer the purse the bigger the bluff.

There are some people who have nothing in their heads but a sounding board.

It often takes weeks for a household to recover from an attack of housecleaning.

You sometimes find a man who is willing to save money if some one else will earn it.

Early rising is said to be good for the health, but the matter has never been thoroughly investigated.

Never give more than $5 to a fortune teller; otherwise you'll get such good prognostications that you won't be able to sleep over night—and you might have to go hungry the next day.

What the man who thinks he understands them doesn't know about women would fill quite a book.

A Lively Corpse.

Petaluma, Cal. Oct. 4.—Having a cruet prepared and sent for her remains is the unique experience which befell Miss Mabel Wilson. At a time when Miss Wilson was known to be visiting in San Francisco, a young woman bearing the same name committed suicide there. A sister of the Petaluma girl was satisfied that it was Mabel Wilson, of Petaluma, who had elected to leave this world, though she could assign no reason for the rash act. Her father was of the same belief and he procured a casket at his home in Ukiah and sent for the remains of his daughter. In the mean time Mabel Wilson appeared at her home in the flesh. What will be done with the coffin purchased is the only question that is now bothering the Wilsons.

Millions of sea pigeons were to be seen at the mouth of the Columbia River last week, following a school of sardines.

COMMANDER AT BULL RUN.

General H. C. Corbin in Charge of Missions on Famous Battlefield. When the Union and Confederate forces met in deadly combat on the battlefield of Bull Run early in the civil war they little thought that in a little over forty years their movements would be simulated in a bloodless contest on the same battlefield by soldiers drawn from both sections of a reunited country.

The command of the troops employed in the maneuvers was conferred upon Major General Henry Clark Corbin of the regular army.

General Corbin was born in a log cabin in Clermont county, O., Sept. 15, 1842, raised on a farm and educated in the common schools and in a private academy. He began the study of law, but on the outbreak of the civil war, though only nineteen, entered the army. He at first held a commission as second lieutenant of the Seventy-ninth Ohio volunteers, but his bravery and capacity won him rapid promotion, and in 1864, just before the Atlanta campaign, he became a lieutenant colonel. He was in command of the Fourteenth United States colored infantry during some of the most exciting operations of this campaign.

MAJOR GENERAL HENRY CLARK CORBIN, U. S. A.

General Corbin was brevetted a brigadier general of volunteers in 1865 and on the conclusion of the war entered the regular army. He served ten years on the plains in New Mexico, Arizona and Texas and in 1877 was detailed to service in Washington, where he rose in the service of the adjutant general's department, becoming head of the department early in 1888.

General Corbin was married in 1865 to Miss Frances Strickle of Wilmington, O., who died in 1883. His second marriage in 1901 was one of the most brilliant functions of the kind ever witnessed at the capital. The bride was Miss Edythe Patten, one of the wealthiest and most cultured women of Washington.

EDGAR M. CULLEN.

Brooklyn Jurist Who Succeeds Chief Judge Alton B. Parker.

Edgar M. Cullen, who has been appointed chief justice of the New York state court of appeals to succeed Alton B. Parker, the Democratic presidential candidate, has been by turns a soldier, a civil engineer, a practicing lawyer and a supreme court judge. Born in Brooklyn in 1843, the judge was educated at Kinderhook academy, Columbia college and Kenesawitz Polytechnic institute. He was graduated from Columbia when only seventeen, and was studying engineering when the civil war opened. Commissioned as second lieutenant of the First New York Infantry, he saw service at Corinth and the siege of Vicksburg, and when but nineteen years of age he became colonel of the Ninety-sixth New York infantry.

After the war Judge Cullen became an engineer and followed the profession for a year. He then turned to the law, was admitted to the bar in 1867 and soon became one of Brooklyn's leading lawyers. He became a supreme court justice on Jan. 1, 1883, was re-elected in 1884, and his judicial experience covers twenty-three years.

Although a lifelong Democrat, he was appointed chief justice by a Republican governor and will serve until Judge Parker's term expires on Jan. 1. It also seems probable that he will be the candidate of both parties for chief judge at the November election.

Canyonville.

Mrs. E. L. Goodridge returned Sunday from the Gold Bug Mines.

It is rumored that the Levens Lodge Mine will soon resume operations.

Rev. L. C. Zimmerman is attending the M. E. Conference at Eugene.

Mrs. David Albino is visiting at Glendale and upper Cow Creek.

Andy Poole and family have gone up the river to reside.

The Bailey and family have moved to Glendale where they expect to reside permanently.

John Albino, of Upper Cow Creek, was in town last week.

Prune drying will soon be a thing of the past in this locality.

L. Acker, who has been here with a tent, taking pictures, will go to Glendale Monday morning, and expects to leave Monday morning, and will go to Glendale.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Some men make love as if they were ashamed of it.

Never try to converse on topics of the day with a woman who has a teething baby.

A bachelor's idea of the psychological moment is the one when he did not propose.

Twin babies can do more to convert a man to the gospel of industry than twin sermons.

Age cannot wither the conceit of some men.

We are no sooner through with nursing our mosquito bitten skin till we are called on to lament our moth eaten flannels.

Women don't care how untrue the things may be that a man says, as long as they are pleasant.

It takes a lot of religion to last some people over Sunday.

Health may be wealth, but it takes industry to convert it into cash.

It is a wise man who, having but one brand of goods, knows how to label them to suit the trade.

When a flirt falls in love with a man, he should buy a ticket for the woods without any return coupon.

That Life Saving Pay Day. There's a day for which I'm sighing. Golden day of sweet relief. On it ever I'm relying. Though it's requisite it be brief. But that day I hail with gladness. Although after it comes sadness.

In my dreams the day comes to me. Fraught with what I'm most in need; When I wake a chill goes through me. Wake to wish that time would speed. Fast away the glad day bringing. Toward it all my hopes are winging.

When I picture what without it I would my life be, I despair. There is just this thing about it. It's the only day I dare. Hold myself erect and say. "I am all O. K. today."

Once a week my step is buoyant. To the cashier's desk I go. None would need to be clairvoyant. Who my cause of joy would know. Am I happy as I gather. In my weekly stipend? Rather!

Has One Sense.

"WHERE ARE MY SLIPPERS?"

"CAN'T FIND DOLLY."

"I WANT MY BALL."

"Justice may be blind, but she evidently is not dead."

First Aid to Greasiness. "Got any midnight oil?" "What kind is that?" "I don't know, but my son is studying to be a great man, and he says that is the kind they burn."

Glittering Success. At first he tried to rob a bank. But that didn't make him rich. But when he robbed a bakery. Why, then he took the cake.

Real to That Extent. "I dreamed last night that I was worth a million dollars." "How did it seem?" "Like a dream, of course."

More Practical. Under the bed to find a man. She looked, but saw no mother's son. And so she tried another tack. And advertised for one.

His Early Training. "If the senator never went to college where did he get his flow of language?" "He used to break mules for a living."

They Wait. Why is he called the waiter? Will some one kindly wait? Because it is the eaters Who always have to wait.

Liked That School. "My doctor says coffee is more harmful than beer." "Gimme that doctor's address quick."

Spice of Life. This is a world of trouble. Of taking and of giving. But, with the trouble minus, Would life be worth the living?

Missing His Opportunities. "My husband shoves himself." "He takes no interest then in sporting events."

GAME LAWS OF OREGON.

At this season of the year there are beginning to come in inquiries as to the open and closed season for fish and game in Oregon. The PLAINDEALER prints the following brief synopsis furnishing the information:

Male deer, antelope and mountain sheep, open season July 15 to November 1. Female deer, August 15 to November 1. Killing of spotted fawns, elk or beaver prohibited at all times of year. No one is allowed to take more than five deer in a season. Night hunting or with dogs, the purchase or sale of hides without tags, or of venison, prohibited.

Open season for silver grey squirrel, October 1 to January 1. Quail, grouse, native pheasants, prairie chickens, open season October 1 to December 1; limit, 10 birds per day. Douglas county, Sept. 1 to Dec. 1.

Ducks, geese, swan, open season from September 15 to January 1; limit of ducks, 100 per week or 50 in one day.

Eggs of game and song birds protected the year around. Trout, open season April 1 to November 1. To be taken with hook and line only. Sale prohibited at all times.

The laws of the State require non-resident market hunters to have a license, costing $10 per season.

It is unlawful to hunt within inclosures without owner's permission.

Beauties of Nature.

(Dedicated to Oliver L. Moore, Aldon Barnes and J. A. Buchanan.)

Now nature paints her forests A variegated hue, And all her grandest colors Lend enchantment to the view.

No artist's brush can imitate How skillful be the hand, That gorgeous scenic splendor That dots this favored land.

The sun behind a bottled flush Is sinking in the west, The evening for her bath of dew Is partially undressed.

The planets light the heavens With the flash of their cigars. And the sky has put its night dress on And buttoned it with stars.

New Route to Coos Bay.

Some of the features in which the new railroad coming from the Willamette valley will have a decided advantage will be the fact that the route will come to Coos Bay where we have a fine steamer service to San Francisco. Hundreds of travelers will take this route in preference to any other as it will be much pleasanter and cooler in hot weather to travel on the commodious steamers which take the traveling public to San Francisco in 30 hours, whereby they will avoid the terrible Siskiyou mountains.
