Sheriff H. T. McCallen with Roy McCallen and H. C. Slocum, Jr., as guarantors, took five prisoners to Salem Saturday night to the different State Institutions.

Among them were Frank Davis and Joe Kenis, who plead guilty to the crime of larceny and were sentenced to the Reform School. L. Goodwin was sentenced one year in the penitentiary for larceny Fred Strong, an escaped Reform School convict, was returned, and Geo Davis who was committed to the Insane Asylum.

A correspondent of the Marshfield Mail from Dora has this to say: The air is full of railroad talk up here. E. N. Harry is piloting a party through a pass in the Coast range near the Coos Bay wagon road. So it is possible that the "Foot's Pass" may develop into a great thoroughfare for the iron horse out to Roseburg.

The names of the business men you find in the advertising columns of the PLAIN DEALER are the live business men of the city. They wish to gain a reputation as fair, honest dealers in their respective business. They merit a share of your patronage, and you are assured a square deal and fair treatment when you patronize them.

The Calapooia Investment Company commenced work on the concrete dam at the head of their irrigation ditch Wednesday morning with a force of six men. The dam will be built this fall before high water and everything put in shape to take water to the land next summer. It is the intention of the officers of this company to push the work as fast as possible.—Oakland Owl.

KRUSE & NEWLAND
The Weaker Sex.
One of those frail fragile creatures called girls will:
Dance from 8 p. m. to 5 a. m. with exposed arms and neck, constricting stays and crippling French heels, and suffer no ill effect.
Gambol for hours at a time in the coldest water, while the men stay in from seven to twelve minutes, and then bask for their heaviest sweaters and V. O. P.
Consume such inordinate quantities of chocolates, sodas, bon-bons, ice cream sodas, etc., as would ruin the digestion of a glass-eater.
And perform other equally wonderful feats of strength, endurance and resistance.
Yet they call them "the weaker sex."

ASHLAND'S STRAWBERRY WIZARD.
J. D. Bolton of this city is having a profitable season this year with his fall crop of strawberries. During the month of September he sold 37 crates, and if the weather continues favorable, will market nearly as many more this month. Last fall he sold over sixty crates. The prices received have averaged from $1.90 to $2.25 per crate, and he finds a ready market for all he can grow. The varieties which he has induced to produce two crops yearly are magoons, Texas and Tennessee. He started four or five years ago to propagate the two-crop berries and has been increasing the output ever since. There are now several growers in Ashland who raise crops of fall strawberries.—Tidings.
