By DUNCAN M. SMITH

THE FIRE ALARM.
How our pulses throb and tingle
When the fire warnings come
And their warning signals mingle
With the city's drowsy hum!
How the gong
Strikes the strong
As the engines maddly rattle
Down the way
And the horses snuff the battle
Far away!
Then our legged footsteps quicken
As the bell's warning sounds,
And our hearts grow faint and sickened
As we think of home and friends.
For the dread
That the red
Fiend, remorseless, all devouring,
Meets with strife,
Even now in the streets
Babes and wife.
When the hose cart, maddly ringing,
Spurs the pavement with its wheels,
And the hook and ladder swinging
In its mad impetuous reels,
Come a thrill
Rolling in
And our staunch blood goes bounding
As we hear
The alarm's impetuous sounding
On our ear.

Break the Record.
"Messenger boys are proverbially slow," said the man with the sad countenance, "but the one who started with a message to the spring, and discovering a ball team on the way that wanted a mascot, went with it and came back in the fall to finish carrying the message, probably took the cake or got around it."
"That was not so bad for a messenger boy," replied the romance builder who was on a vacation, "but I happen to know personally of a case which makes your hero look like a true son of Mercury. This boy, being sent to deliver a message three miles away, with instructions to bring a return acknowledgment, becoming interested in a beautiful girl, paused on the way to grow up, get married and raise a family, and sent his oldest son back with the reply as soon as the youngster had grown large enough to fit the uniform."
"Yes," replied the sad man thoughtfully, "he was the winner as far as reported, and doubtless the company sent to the bakery and ordered a special cake for him."

Sympathetic.
"She is very tender hearted."
"Is she really?"
"Well, I should say so. She knits woolen socks for the feet of her steam radiators because, she says, she can't bear to see them have chilblains."

Empty.
High on the water wagon,
The driver hums the tune—
The only fellow that is left,
And he may tumble soon.

Sure to Follow.
"What makes you so positive we will have an open winter?"
"My wife has just purchased an expensive set of furs."

Explained.
No doubt the small boat bugs the shore.
In handi-capped bargains
Because the poor thing has no more
Attractive thing to tug.

FERT PARAGRAPHS.
Strange that people who yearn for the higher life never think of such a thing as moving into the attic.

Even though a woman is not keeping a boarding house for her health, she should take into account the health of her boarders.

If the hen could read the papers and see the quotations on eggs she would doubtless do a little crowing under her breast.

A bluebeard man is always ready to buy a gold brick if it is labeled "Hair Restorer."

Time and tide wait for no man. Neither will the sunrise postpone its engagement an hour or two in order to give lovers time to say "Good night!"

Big words only impress those who do not understand their meaning.

At times freedom does not appear to be wholly an ideal state to the young ladies.

When opportunity goes to knock at some man's door it hangs around until it is certain they have gone out.

In an Ingotville village a dead dog is considered of much greater value than a live lion.

At forty a man wishes that he knew as much as he did at twenty and that he really knew it.

All men are to be trusted—if they are sufficiently well paid.

POETRY VERSUS POLITICS.

In the Case of Eugene F. Ware Poet-ry Won Out.

Eugene F. Ware, who is perhaps best known by his pen name of Ironquill, is more interested in poetry than politics. For this reason he recently resigned the office of United States commissioner of pensions, which he assumed at the urgent request of President Roosevelt in 1902. He was succeeded by Vespuasian Warner. Mr. Ware's pursuit of the muse has been interrupted by the perplexing and often vexatious duties that fell to him as head of the pension bureau, but he now proposes to throw off cares and responsibilities and give himself up unreservedly to the delights of literature.

Mr. Ware once wrote a poem the closing lines of which read:

The soul does sometimes seem to be
In sunshine which it cannot see,
At times the spirit seems to roam
Beyond the land, above the foam.
Back to some half forgotten home.
Perhaps this humbly.

Every time the poet tried to tie himself down to the prosaic routine of the pension office his spirit seemed to roam "back to some half forgotten home." He is credited with introducing many important reforms in the administration of the office, but he found the duties of the post irksome. As he once expressed it to President Roosevelt, "Two years in the pension office is equal to four years in hades." Poetry, politics, law and fighting have mingled picturesquely in the life of ex-commissioner Ware. Born in 1841 at Hartford, Conn. he moved with his parents to Iowa and was scarcely twenty when the civil war broke out. The very day Sumner was fired on he enlisted in the Union army. He served through the war and came out a captain. He is a good lawyer and has several times been honored with public office, but his "Rhymes of Ironquill" and other literary ventures promise to give him more fame than his political ventures or attainments as a member of the legal profession.

Mr. Ware is never too busy to attend a circus or eat pie. Two men prominent in railroad affairs recently invited him to lunch in a swell New York restaurant. The two men ordered an elaborate spread. Ware was approached by the waiter with a menu card.

"Bring me," said Ware, to the horror of his friends, "a half pie, and be sure to leave the pie in the tin in which it was baked. Bring me a spoon with which to eat the pie and a quart of good milk, about half cream. That's all."

A GENTLE FROM UTAH.

Senator Elect Sutherland and His Career in a Mormon State.
George Sutherland, who was recently chosen by the Utah legislature to succeed Thomas W. Kearns in the United States senate, was representative in congress from Utah from 1901 to 1903. He is a lawyer and has served in the Utah legislature. He was born in England in 1862. Though of Mormon parentage, he is a gentle and is friendly with the authorities of the Mormon church and to leave the pie in the tin in which it was baked. Bring me a spoon with which to eat the pie and a quart of good milk, about half cream. That's all."

In 1883 he married Rosa Lee, a daughter of the Mormon elder John D. Lee, who was executed by the federal authorities in 1877 for his part in the famous Mountain Meadows massacre of 1857, in which about 120 non-Mormon emigrants lost their lives.

Pedigree Assured.—Prospective Purchaser.—Is that a genuine English bulldog?
Dealer—Genuine English? Why, say, that dog actually drops an "er" every time he barks.—Chicago News.

Itch—Ringworm

E. T. Lucas, Wings, Ky., writes April 25, 1902: "For 10 to 12 years I have been afflicted with a malady known as the 'itch.' The itching was most unbearable. I had tried for years to find relief, having tried all remedies I could hear of, besides a number of doctors. I wish to state that the one simple application of Ballard's Snow Liniment cured me completely and permanently. Since then I have used the liniment on two separate occasions for ring worm and it cured completely. 25c. and $1.00 Sold by A. C. Marsters & Co.

Avoid of Strong Medicines

Many people suffer for years from rheumatic pains, and prefer to do so rather than take the strong medicines usually given for rheumatism, not knowing that quick relief from pain may be had simply by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm and not taking any more medicine internally.
