"Nettie, the News Girl."

As a writer of melodrama, Lem B. Parker has struck a popular chord. His latest triumph "Nettie the News Girl," will be at the Roseburg theatre Friday evening, Feb. 17.

Apart from the story which ends somewhat out of the ordinary, the play has been given a most accurate and elaborate stage setting. Special people are carried to look after and obtain the various electrical and mechanical effects with which the play abounds.

As a play, few of native make have been more fortunate and have more more forcibly dramatic or has more more deftly combined the elements which appeal to the emotions, than the story of "Nettie, the News Girl," which appears at the Roseburg Friday Feb. 17.

Truly harmonious in its construction, pathetic, lovable and humorous, appealing in detail to all alike, the young, the old, the grave, the careless, those who joy or weep, all who have witnessed this drama will have felt a mighty influence from a mighty play.

He is greatly surprised at the mildness of our climate, although the present cold snap here with the thermometer standing at 20 to 28 above at night is unusually cold for this section. He is also very favorably impressed with our country and we learn that on his return home in a few weeks he will be accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Fraley, who will reside with him. He is a very genial young man and the Plaindealer was pleased to receive a call from him.
