TOO MANY KINDS OF SOCIALISM.

"All Socialists," said Yves Guyot the well-known French political economist, recently, "argue that when they have the power everything will go on admirably, but the Socialists fail to show us the harmony necessary to that end. The leaders in the movement are separated by violent hatreds. In 1903 the Congress held at Dresden by the German Socialists demonstrated their reciprocal antipathies, and the last International Congress, held at Amsterdam last year, showed how divided were the French Socialists.

"We have had our socialistic experiments. Roubaix, a manufacturing centre with a population of 120,000, was in 1893 a socialistic municipality. It was carried on several years and then collapsed. They who had directed affairs did not offer any vigorous resistance. They had brought such fantasies into their administration that they well understood that if they continued they would incur the gravest personal responsibilities.

An administration ought not to be dominated by its employees, and the greater the number of such employees the more preponderating is their influence at elections. They believe that the public utilities are their own property, and they impose their will on the candidates, becoming thus the masters of those who ought to direct them. That is the fatal consequence of all varieties of socialism."

CLEAN MEN WANTED.

The standard demanded by President Roosevelt to qualify for a federal appointment in Oregon should be fully accepted by the Republican leaders of this state. The crowd that wants the federal appointments now pending in Oregon contain the names of some excellent men and a whole lot of poor ones. The Plaindealer believes the time has come when superior qualifications, honesty and strict integrity should be taken into more serious consideration in making such appointments. The drunkard, the gambler, the slot-machine fiend, or the man otherwise careless and reckless in his conduct should receive little consideration at the hands of the delegation. Neither does the party owe a man anything who merely worked his position in the legislature to get some club over the delegation. Two many men are holding federal office all over the country whose positions are due more to pull and push and graft than to any relation they occupy toward the masses of the people, or to any superior qualifications which they may possess. It is time a higher standard was established in Oregon politics.

SHAME ON BUFFALO BILL.

Denied a divorce from the patient wife who shared the hardships of his youth, accused of excessive drunkenness and of driving his daughter to the grave by malicious accusations against her mother and his wife, Buffalo Bill, once the proud hero of frontier stories, is now a despised old ruffian, stripped of honor and naked before the gaze of the world, says the Salem Journal.

Thirty years ago, the wife whom he has accused of being incompatible and jealous, lived in a sod hut on the North Platte, darning the murderous Indians, nursing her infants, deprived of civilized associations and bereft of all the pleasures of a luxurious home, all because of her love for her then gallant scout and hunter, Buffalo Bill. As she has grown old in his service, she became despondent, and at last he determined to cast her off in her old age, for a more dashing young woman whom he had found among his showwomen.

Instead of granting his divorce, the Denver court strips the old rake naked, and points the finger of scorn at him. Let him take his medicine.

Hereafter let us mention his name only in disgust. The man who casts off his wife because she has grown old is the worst yet.

PROGRESSIVE REPUBLICANISM

Populists throughout the country regard with demure interest the modest strides which Kansas is taking in State Socialism.

That Republican state is to own and operate oil refineries to the end that Rockefeller's trust may not swallow the earth.

Besides the Kansas State refinery, the Republican legislature favors other things which are almost new under the sun.

No trust, corporation or private partnership shall be allowed to sell cheaper in one place than in another in Kansas—freight being deducted.

All over that state the price must be the same.

Maximum freight rates have been established, oil pipe lines have been made common carriers, and the pumping of Kansas gas out of Kansas forbidden.

Is it possible that the Populists are to find themselves reduced to a state of mere "eminent respectability" by such thoroughgoing revolutionists as the Republicans of Kansas?

In a recent lecture Booker T. Washington said that one-twenty-sixth of the soil of Virginia is owned by negroes, according to the official records. The negro race has developed more rapidly in the thirty years of its freedom than the latin race has in 1,000 years of freedom. About 65 per cent of Italians, 85 per cent of Spaniards, 70 per cent of Russians and 80 per cent of South Americans are illiterate, but after thirty years of freedom only 54 per cent of the negro population is illiterate. "In Georgia," Mr. Washington said, "$16,700,000 is the taxable value of the negroes' property. Probably the colored man has learned the lesson of hiding its real value from his white brother; the figures ought to be over $30,000,000."

One of the latest innovations made by the Southern Pacific Company is that of abolishing bonds of passenger conductors running on the lines of the company in Oregon. They have been notified by the company that hereafter no bonds will be required for the faithful performance of duty, and as a result they will not be required to expend a portion of their salaries to pay the premiums on the bonds as in the past. The conductors running on the company's lines in this state are a fine lot of men, and of such standing as to preclude any suspicion as to their honesty. The conductors are grateful for this mark of confidence reposed in them by the management of the company.

The Portland Journal has been boastfully nagging the Telegram of late. In vindication of the Journal's charges the Telegram published pictures Tuesday of great bales of "refused" and "returned" Journals which were awaiting shipment on the Oak street dock at Portland, to the La Camas paper mill to be re-manufactured into paper. The Telegram also published affidavits proving that the Journal's alleged picture of the Telegram's waste papers was papers being shipped to the mill by the Salvation Army which had been gathered up about the city. No doubt the Journal now recalls the old adage about people who live in glass houses.

Mrs. Chadwick, according to her story, paid or agreed to pay such commissions for loans as would break a millionaire in no great length of time. In one case she received $68,000 on the strength of an obligation for $180,800, and in another she got $85,000 and paid $109,000 within a few days. She is deserving of no great amount of sympathy, but neither are the bankers or brokers who skimmed her, or tried to do so. Between the two the public will be inclined to lean to the side of the woman, though without falling in love with her.

When District Attorney Francis Joseph Heney completes the land fraud cases in Oregon he will return to private practice, says the Portland Telegram. This is contrary to the wishes of President Roosevelt, who has urged the prosecutor to carry his efforts into other states. But, though there is to be investigations in other Western States, and many indictments are expected, for a veritable cauldron of crime is said to be known to exist, some one other than Mr Heney will conduct the campaign.

The Eugene Register is authority for the statement that Senator Kuykendall is out of politics to stay, and in commenting upon the situation remarks, "His retirement takes him out of the list of governorship possibilities and leaves the local field open to some other good man for state senator."

Ex. Gov. T. T. Geer, of Salem, was a passenger on Tuesday morning's local returning from San Francisco where he has been on business.

NO LAND OFFICE INDICTMENTS

J. T. Bridges and J. H. Booth, the register and receiver of the Roseburg land office, are not, in all probability in danger of indictment from this federal grand jury, which is about to convene for a term-ending session of five days. It has been rumored for a long time that both of the Roseburg officials would be indicted when the jury came together once more, but this is not now thought to be the case. The time is too short and other things of greater importance are pressing on the government for recognition.

Already before the Roseburg office is vacant there is a long list of aspirants for the place to be filled. And with equal promptness are the records of the men being scanned for the taint of the serpent. If to the past deeds of any one hangs the slightest suspicious circumstances, the applications will be passed over like a white chip at Monte Carlo. Such is said to be the program, and the successful aspirant will have to pass a more rigid examination as to qualifications and character than has been required in the history of the office.—Oregonian.

Because the Portland Oregonian criticized the propriety of the subject "From Sporting Life to Preaching," selected by Rev. D. S. Toy, one of the Portland evangelists, on which to discourse, it being an exposition of his own past follies, strong resolutions were passed by the various Portland churches condemning the Oregonian Tuesday evening. An extract from the Oregonian editorial follows: "But isn't silence about such a life better than exposition or exploitation of it, for sensational purposes? Is it edifying, can it be conducive to the cause of truth and virtue, for one like Brother Toy to tell how bad he has been?" The Oregonian's questions seem pertinent, timely and to the point and there are a great many people enjoying the reputation of possessing good, sound, horse sense, who will heartily commend its criticism of the rather sensational Rev. Toy. One Portland minister, Rev. Wm. E. Randall, pastor of the Central Baptist church, had the temerity to vigorously "speak out in meelin'" and oppose the passage of the resolution. However, the big revival at the metropolis goes marching on.

FIRE DESTROYS OLD LAND MARK

Firemen S. Carroll and A. Q. Johnson Injured.

UNDER FALLING WALLS

Building was Occupied by Reed's Saloon and Butterfield's Restaurant. Loss Covered by Insurance.

Last night the old Hoover residence on Jackson street occupied by C. L. Reed as a saloon and M. Butterfield as a restaurant was totally destroyed by fire.

At about two o'clock a. m., Mrs. Butterfield, who was sleeping in a rear room of the restaurant was awakened by the roaring and cracking of fire. She looked out and saw the flames eating through the rear room of the saloon and at once awakened her husband and then ran to a room in the center of the building where her little son, Vern, 9 years old, was sleeping and called him. By this time others had seen the flames and heard Mr. and Mrs. Butterfield's cries for help. The fire alarm had been sounded and the Umpqua Hose company were on the scene with their apparatus. Considerable time was lost in getting water owing to the defective hydrant at the corner of Jackson and Oak street which required several minutes to open sufficient to get a good stream of water. The fire made such rapid headway in the old building that it was found necessary to put on two streams of water from this hydrant, and while the second line of hose was being laid, S. Carroll and A. Q. Johnson two firemen, were severely injured by the falling of the battlement or front of the building which had recently been tacked to the eaves of the house to give it the appearance of a square store front. The bottom wall having burned away the top heavy front fell so suddenly to the pavement that those two young firemen who were handling the nozzle of the hose were unable to get from under it and were struck down and buried under the wreck. As soon as it was seen that their comrades were caught under the burning debris firemen and bystanders rushed forward, raised the wreckage and pulled the boys out. Carroll was found to be suffering from a severely sprained foot and Johnson's back was badly sprained, while both were considerably bruised. They were removed to their homes where Drs. Houck and Seelye attended them. Both are resting easy today, but it will be a few days before either of them will be able to about.

The loss by the fire is mostly covered by insurance. Mr. Reed, who values his fixtures, stock and business at about $1100 was carrying $800 insurance. The old building was almost entirely covered by insurance amounting to $600. Mr. Butterfield is the heaviest loser. He values his business and fixtures at about $500 and carried no insurance. He succeeded in saving a little bedding, some carpets and a few canned goods. The building was the property of G. W. Hoover and Clara Hoover of Portland. Recently Dr. E. V. Hoover sold his interest in this property to his brother G. W. Hoover, McDougall, the tailor, and Loren D. Harvey, the clothes cleaner and presser, were forced to remove their tools and goods from their building, but have now moved everything back and with the exception of a little damage by water, they suffered no loss.

The origin of the fire is not known, but it is believed that it caught from the terrazzo floor in the rear room, there having been a fire in the stove when Mr. Reed closed his saloon at about one o'clock, last night.

A third tragedy in Douglas county has just been averted. This time a love-sick swain tried to poison himself but unfortunately the laudanum was not effective—a reflection upon the druggist who sold it.—Eugene Register.

PORTLAND OREGONIAN REVIVAL CRITICISM

Portland, March 29.—Last night the following statement was reported and adopted at certain so-called evangelical meetings in Portland:

Whereas, The Morning Oregonian in its issue of today, March 28, 1905, has unjustly and venomously attacked Dr. D. S. Toy, one of the honored members of the corps of evangelists whom we have invited to our city; and

Whereas, The Oregonian persistently arrays itself against evangelical Christianity, sneering at its methods and scoffing at its fundamental tenets; and

Whereas, The Oregonian, for years, has taken a position on moral issues subversive of the higher life of the community and in antagonism to the moral interests of our city; be it

Resolved, That we, the members of the evangelical churches and congregations of this city do hereby condemn the discourteous and uncalled for treatment of Dr. D. S. Toy, the noted and honored minister of the gospel; and further be it

Resolved, That we do hereby enter our vigorous protest against the policy of the Oregonian in maintaining such an unfair and unreasonable attitude toward those interests so vital to the moral welfare of our city.

That it may be seen in connection with this statement, just what the article was that called it out, the article is here reproduced, viz:

ONE'S MORAL WORTHINESS
 "Rev. Daniel S. Toy will tell the story of his life, 'From Sporting Life to Preaching.'" Such is the public announcement. Brother Toy, probably, has been a very vile, immoral and wicked man. Such confessions, unhappily, is included in his statement, or at least it is to be inferred from it.

But isn't silence about such a life better than exposition or exploitation of it, for sensational purposes? Is it edifying, can it be conducive to the cause of truth and virtue, for one like Brother Toy to tell how bad he has been?

Again, wouldn't it be more in accord with the dignity of human nature if such an one should enter into his closet and shut his door, and refrain, even for revival purposes, from exposure of his past life in its monstrous moral nakedness?

Most people are decent people and moral people. They have an invincible repugnance to exhorters who undertake to preach virtue and morality and religion by telling how bad they themselves have been.

The Oregonian is a newspaper of the old fashion. It doubts seriously whether the best preachers of morality and virtues are those who admit they have been dissolute, but profess reformation. Doubtless, it is a great thing for a woman who has led an evil life to abandon it. But she can't proclaim herself advantageously as a reformer. Your revival preacher who has "reformed" is much in the same case. Quiet repentance and works meet for repentance are better, every way.

There are situations in which modest stillness and humility are especially becoming, and impressive, too. Brother Toy doubtless knows why he ought to repent and what he has to repent of. But he needn't tell it; and it will not help the cause of virtue, if he should.

The Oregonian on Wednesday replied to the renotation as follows: Readers will judge. Mr. Toy was a "sport." Now he is a preacher. The Oregonian expressed its opinion.

The Oregonian is a rational not a factitious newspaper; it doesn't mistake a silly ecstasy and the cant that goes with it for morality and religion. It speaks for common intelligence, common judgment and common sense. God as it supposes, does not damn every one to hell who doesn't fall in with the scheme of these hysterical revivalists.

The Oregonian would have avoided speaking so plainly, and it does so only because it is challenged in a manner that makes plain speaking necessary. It has within it no "undiscovered" crimes unwhipped of justice; and it has merely requested that those who have may better repent and keep silent. The Oregonian challenged the jurisdiction of all such to sit in judgment upon morality and religion, either for itself or for any who protest with it.

SPLENDID SCORES MADE BY CO. 'D'

Following is the computation of the averages of scores made by members of Co. D, First Separate Battalion O N G, who qualified on the range during the target season of 1904: Out of the 39 qualified, four finished as sharpshooters; eleven as marksmen; seven in the first class, one in the second, and 16 in the third. Ira Cole, who came so near winning the individual state medal last year, was absent from the range practice or he would undoubtedly have qualified as a sharpshooter.

Sharpshooters—Who have qualified in class and are ready for the expert rifemen's test:

Sergeant F. O. Stewart, 85 1/2 per cent; Sergeant Walter Theilkeid, 80 per cent; C. S. Jackson, private, 61 per cent; Capt. B. Hamlin, 56 1/2 per cent.

Aldrich, 75 1/2 per cent; A. Q. Johnson, 74 1/2 per cent; Geo. R. Murch, 74 per cent; Sergeant Jas. O. Singleton, 73 1/2 per cent; Harry L. Wilson, 69 1/2 per cent; Sergeant M. F. Appeal for Peace

Oh, stop the war, the cruel war
 Of Asiatic hosts,
 May peace its echo sound afar
 To all the foreign coasts.
 May arbitration intervene
 And herald joyful news
 Until the contest cease and keen
 Shall render peace its dues.
 May nations learn a better way
 For conquest and for spoil
 Than murder in the light of day
 Destroying millions' toil.

PROMOTER SMITH GETS A RICH ROAST

J. H. Upton in the Port Orford Tribune gives the following interesting data in regard to the Southern Oregon Company which has done so much toward retarding the development of this country:

"Judge Bellinger has just dismissed the suits brought by Coos county people to compel the Southern Oregon Co., to sell the 100,000 acre grant of valuable land in accordance with the terms of the grant by Congress to the State, which required that no more than 160 acres should be sold to any one person, and at a price not to exceed two dollars and a half per acre. The court held that the parties suing not being original parties in interest could not maintain such actions. This meaning that the state could enforce the terms of the grant.

The grant was secured about the time Congress was sobering up from a long debauch in road grant matters and could not have been secured had not the above limitations and restrictions been incorporated in the bill. It was the Coos Bay wagon road grant and was turned over by the state to a company formed at Roseburg to build the road. But this company did not build any road to speak of, yet it got the grant, and should have offered it as the land had been required to do so by Congress. It however, in flagrant disregard of the law and of the people's rights in the premises sold in a lump to Stanford Crocker and Co., who later conveyed it in a lump to the Southern Oregon Co. The property is now worth more than one million dollars, and has been a great handicap on the progress and development of Coos county and will continue to be.

The Southern Oregon Co., was organized in Boston by Elijah Smith a promoter of some renown but not conscience. The stock was sold in small shares mostly to poor people of Massachusetts who ransacked the savings banks for the money to make the investments. The Co., which consisted chiefly of Elijah Smith came on and bought the grant in question and thousands of other broad acres at very low figures buying at the same time the Empire sawmill and soon shutting it down and other Empire City property. The Co., became involved in a receivership and later on in another. By these means the Massachusetts small investors were squeezed out; and it was these who furnished the original capital which was invested in the enterprise. And Elijah Smith is rich and respected."

According to a popular belief, yes. Gen. Zachary Taylor was not sworn into office till Monday, March 5, 1849. David R. Atchison, then Senator pro tem from Missouri, was president of the Senate, and in this sense was the acting president from noon on March 4 till noon on March 5.
