MONDAY, APRIL 10, 1905.

The best judges now say there will be a good crop of prunes.

Russia's foothold in Manchuria has been reduced to a very uncertain toe-hold.

The Barnum and Bailey circus and all the other big things will be in Oregon this year.

The new canal commission is expected to begin a mud, dirt and rock throwing campaign soon.

Nature is also on the side of the big fair. Oregon crops promise to be above the average this year.

A smooth stranger buncoed a Walla Walla lawyer out of $200 and now the follower of Blackstone knows how his clients feel.

Violent exercise is dangerous for children. A little girl in New York state jumped the rope over 200 times in succession and dropped dead.

The lucky man is the one who grasps his opportunity and hustles. The man who does not put off till tomorrow what should be done today.

Speaking of the Rockefeller donations to foreign missions, it may be truthfully said that all money has, some time or other, been in pretty bad hands.

With President Roosevelt whizzing around the South, Emperor Williams setting the Mediterranean afire and King Edward scooting across France, travel news begins to assume a live aspect.

The general conditions throughout the country so far this season have been very satisfactory, and the prospects seem to indicate that 1905 will rank as another prosperous year for trade and industry.

It matters not whether you have been appointed on a committee to work for the Lewis and Clark fair. Get busy anyhow. Appoint yourself a committee of one and go to work. Your commission will not be revoked.

In the demise of Mrs. Susan Loomis-Stewer, the youngest hand that stitched on the first American flag that floated over American soldiers in Oregon has lost its cunning. She and another assisted Mrs. Mary Holden in making the flag that floated over Captain Bennett's company, called the "Oregon Rangers," in 1846.

Dr. Harry Lane has expressed his willingness to accept the democratic nomination for Mayor of Portland. Dr. Lane is a grandson of Gen. Joe Lane, Oregon's first territorial governor, a historical figure in American public life. Dr. Lane and Rev. Father Arthur Lane of the Catholic Church in Jackson county are cousins.

Missouri will be represented at the Lewis and Clark exposition, which opens at Portland, Ore., June 1, by a $35,000 exhibit, in charge of a state commission. Missouri was the point of departure of Lewis and Clark, and is naturally one of the stars at the centennial exposition where rolls the Oregon, and hears the strains of modern progress in addition to its own dashing.

Did you ever count the words in a column of ordinary newspaper print? There are about two thousand words in a column. Suppose you sit down and write a thousand words on some subject, and then another thousand on another until you have written eight or ten thousand. Try it and see if it is right easy. Keep that gait up for a month. Then chase a local item all over town, and after you have gotten the facts all right, condense them into a few lines—an hour's work that can be read in a few seconds. Do this for a dozen items that seem insignificant after they are printed, but which you know are important; then have the items criticized and inaccuracies pointed out to you when it is too late to correct them. Oh, yes, it is easy.—Guard.

A COMMON ABUSE

There should be some substantial recourse for the man or woman who is brought into court in some civil action and who without justification is slandered, maligned and vilified by some young bandy-legged, weasel-eyed, lantern-jawed, putty-headed upstart of a lawyer, who mistakes abuse for argument and his profession as a license to drag the character and the good name of respectable people in the mire. If a few self-respecting people who fall victims to such outrageous treatment would, at the first opportunity thereafter, make a few indents with a two-year-old club in the soft craniums of such smart-Alecks, a more sane custom might soon be inaugurated. An example of this contemptible legalized slander is found in a recent civil action in a Willamette valley town in which a respectable couple, a man and his wife, were defendants. At the close of a long, rambling, senseless argument by the attorney for the plaintiff, we find this modest gem of logic and sound argument: "If the fair management would cage the pair and put them on exhibition, and the devil should happen along, his satanic majesty would buy them up at any price, for they would have any attraction he had down in hell."

Of course there are many criminal cases of a heinous nature in which the employment of very strong language is fully justified on the part of the prosecution, but there is no excuse for the employment of such slanderous and abusive language in the prosecution of ordinary civil cases. It would be about as reasonable for an editor to likewise abuse his privilege and treat to a rich brown roast every person who took issues with him or his paper on any public question, political or otherwise.

A RELIC OF ANTIQUITY

The form of the census blank used in the enumeration by Oregon assessors was authorized by the Legislature of 1864, and while the state has advanced steadily along the line of a diversity of products, no change has ever been made in the census blank to provide for new conditions. Four of the state's chief products—hops, prunes, mohair and poultry—are not mentioned in the blank at all. The state has been rapidly growing in industrial importance all these years, but no effort has been made by the Legislature to keep the state census blank revised to meet existing conditions. Secretary of State Dunbar called the attention of the last Legislature to the importance of a revision of the blank, but no attention was paid to his recommendation. The blanks sent out to the county assessors have been prepared in strict conformity to the statutes and no blame can attach to Mr. Dunbar for the insufficiency of the form. The census, however, will be of little value to the state at large. The rich and prosperous counties of the Willamette valley and Southern Oregon will suffer most by the poor showing, as many of their important industries will not be enumerated at all.—Observer.

The only newspaper of prominence in Chicago that supported Judge Dunne for mayor, besides Hearst's papers, was the Chicago Journal. Being asked repeatedly why that newspaper, which for nearly half a century has been an exponent and upholder of the Republican party, supported Judge Dunne, the Democratic candidate for mayor, its answer was: "Because this is in no sense a party campaign. It is not a fight between Democrats and Republicans. The all-prevailing issue is the street railway question. * * * This is a fight of the people against corporations which holding illegal possession of Chicago's streets, have given the poorest possible service for the highest possible price."

Petitions bearing a few more than 400 names have been filed with the county clerk of Linn county requesting a referendum vote on the omnibus appropriations bill passed by the late session of the legislature. Most of the signers of the petitions live in the precincts adjacent to Lebanon, and Brownsville, though a few small petitions from Albany have been filed. The number already filed lacks only about 50 of Linn county's proportion of the quota necessary to secure the referendum vote. It is reported that the petitions are being readily signed wherever presented, but the excitement over the referendum movement has died out completely.

"Forensic sometimes comes to men, but never to assemblies." The application of this will be evident after Chicago has had a few years of municipal ownership, opposing this investment of private capital. This will be another step towards socialism and governmental paternalism. How long will it be before the state will be asked to run our grocery stores, our dairies and hundreds of other things on which the people are dependent, but which are now operated by private capital?

EASTERN CROOKS COMING.

Reports from various towns and cities of the state show that burglaries are being committed, apparently by men who are recent arrivals from the east and south. The officers at St. Louis have notified the police on the coast to look for hundreds of sure thing, men, burglars, forgers and other criminals.

We have escaped from the workings of the advance guard of this motley crowd of scoundrels, but for how long remains to be seen. The local officials, both city and county, are well prepared to put a quatos on the operations of the pilgrim scoundrels, if they appear, which they are almost certain to do during the next few months.

The city council of Harrisburg has voted to establish an electric light system to be owned and operated by the city. A special 5 mill tax was ordered as well as the issuance of $3,000 in bonds. A $7,000 plant will be put in.

A hint to Portland: The high-priced German restaurant at the St. Louis World's Fair bankrupted its owner, while the man who sold hot roast beef sandwiches on the Pike made an independent fortune.

Next Friday, April 14, is Arbor Day and J. H. Ackerman, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, has issued a very fine program for the teachers of the state.

The new mayor of Chicago, Mr. Dunne, has thirteen children. His large family was an issue, and some people voted for him and against race suicide.

If Rojstevsky meets Togo something is liable to happen—to Rojstevsky. The Indian ocean may be the site of a new submarine cemetery soon.

They are not talking of building a railroad from Medford to Crater Lake, they are building it. They hustle down in southern Oregon.

Japan's army organization has taken the conceit out of the military medical departments in every other country.

Musings.

Fashion, seen through those flimsy waists, still dictates pink, or blue ribbons.

A much better theory for Dr. Oeler would have been that all women retain their age after 35.

Maud Gonne, the Irish Joan of Arc, is still fighting for liberty, but just at present in a divorce court.

A Joseph milliner advertises to take chickens, eggs and butter in exchange for her goods. Happy bunnies up there.

Governor Folk is right. There is too little respect for law. On the other hand, there is too much law, but legislative-made and court made, not entitled to respect.

Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman says that women are not nearly so beautiful as men. Had we known that she was going to mention it, we never would have sent her our photo. Now, Lottie you stop!

When the women see the heroine in the hero's arms on the stage when they read in the last chapter of a book that the hero and heroine are embracing, how they applaud! But when they see the man next door kiss his wife good-bye before starting for work how they laugh and wonder "how long it will last."

Jim Newland tells another story which he alleges is the whole truth. He says when he was farming out in Looking Glass valley he had a turkey gobbler of a very motherly disposition, that he set said gobbler on a half-case of hens' eggs, that said gobbler hatched out every egg and raised a fine brood of chickens. "That is nothing Jim," remarked Dave Shamrock, who overheard the story, "I once had a white maltese cat that ate with the chickens, keep the setting hens' eggs warm while they feed, and even got on the roost at night and put his head under an old hen's wing."

It was at the cemetery in Wynoose and the minister was so moved by the grief of the stricken husband, that he tried to lessen the weight of the affliction: "My brother," he said, "I know this is a great grief that has overtaken you, and though you are compelled to mourn the loss of this one, who is your companion and partner in life, I would console you with the assurance that there is another who sympathizes with you and seeks to embrace you in the arms of unfeeling love." To this the bereaved man replied by asking, as he gazed through tears into the minister's face: "What is her name?"

DISTRICT FAIR TO BE HELD AT ROSEBURG

The Roseburg Park and Fair Association have decided to hold the annual district fair at the Roseburg grounds again this fall, it having been held at Eugene last year and at Marshfield the former two years. The fair will be held about the middle of September, the exact days to be determined at another meeting of the directors to be held in Roseburg, Monday, May 1, at which time there will also be election of officers.

The Roseburg Park and Fair Association will meet conjointly with the fair directors. After this meeting, full details of the arrangements will be announced.

This fair will distribute about $1800 in premiums and purses among the citizens of this county and will no doubt be largely attended by strangers many of whom will be in the state attending the Portland Exposition and looking over the country with a view of locating or making an investment. It therefore behooves the people of Douglas county as well as the other counties of this district to make a liberal exhibit at the district fair, and the people should begin hiving plans now for individual exhibits. This should be made the greatest fair in the history of the association.

UNREQUITED LOVE LEADS TO TRAGEDY

The little town of Mott, in Siskiyou county, five miles from Siston, was the scene of a fearful double tragedy last Wednesday night, when J. H. Gregory, a rejected lover of Miss Anna E. Miller, shot and killed the latter and then turned his smoking revolver into his mouth and ended his own life.

Miss Miller was the teacher of the public school at Mott. Gregory had been in the berry and ice business at the place, until a few months ago, with his brother, W. N. Gregory. Eight months ago he met Miss Miller, whose home is in Scotts Valley, and later they became engaged. All went well until a few weeks ago, when Miss Miller met Lyman Osborne of Siston, and it was clearly a case of love at first sight. She told Gregory that it was best to break their engagement and gave her reason. Gregory became despondent and last night's fearful tragedy resulted.

It occurred at a spot selected by Gregory, under a tall weeping pine, near steps leading over an old-fashioned fence. After shooting the girl who had rejected his love, he flung himself across her dead body and placing the revolver in his mouth, ended his own life.

NOT A KICK, BUT A CORRECTION

The dispute over the winner in the state trophy match of the annual rifle, revolver and carbine match of the Oregon National Guard, held last October, was settled finally yesterday, when Adjutant General W. E. Finzer awarded the trophy to Company M, of Salem.

When the competition was held last October the team representing Company D, of Roseburg, led off the score, but a protest was entered by several of the other teams, on the ground that the men had been placed too close together on the firing line and thus hindered were at a disadvantage in their shooting.

The protest was presented to Major F. S. Baker, the officer in charge of the competition, to whose discretion such details of the competition were left. After a consideration of the facts presented in the protest he decided that they were justifiable and annulled the former competition. At the second meeting Company M took first place, but when the award was made, Company D entered a protest and appealed to Adjutant General Finzer for the recognition of the first match and the award to it of the trophy. Since that time Adjutant General Finzer has placed the matter before several officers of the War Department and other authorities, with the result that the action of Major F. S. Baker as officer in charge has been sustained. Confirmation of the award of the trophy to Company M will now be issued.

The trophy consists of a silver cup, and it will become the perpetual property of the organization first winning it three times. In the first annual competition held in 1903, it was won by Troop A, of the cavalry.

The above article appeared in a recent issue of the Oregonian and has since been published in several other papers of the state and is correct except in that part where it speaks of the second meeting. Roseburg's company only shot once at the range, while Company M and three others had two trials at it. The order read that there should be no previous practice at the range during the day of the shoot and that was one of the points made in the local press protest, but Roseburg is not crying because the contest was decided against them. When the team was sent from this city to Portland they knew they were going up against a hard contest, and although Company D lost the contest under protest, many officers high in rank in the state guard have expressed their surprise at the decision. Anyway the local militiamen are not discouraged at the showing made by their team in the lost contest and feel assured that they will at least be a represented on the state team at the national shoot in Sea Girt, N. J., August 24, 1905, and that they will also be heard from at the next annual competition.

ESTABLISHMENT OF BOOTH-KELLEY CO.

A prominent official of Booth-Kelley Company made the following statement to the grand jury at Portland last week relative to the history of the corporation together with Senator Mitchell's connection therewith.

How Company Started
 "In 1884 Henry B. Miller, present United States Consul to Yokohama, started a small cash and door factory at Grant's Pass. He gave it the name of the Sugar Pine Door & Lumber Company, and the original stockholders consisted of Henry B. Miller, Frank J. Miller, H. C. Kinney, John C. Carson and Senator John H. Mitchell.

A few years later K. A. Booth, John F. Kelley and George H. Kelley acquired a small quantity of the capital stock, which originally amounted to $50,000, of the par value of $100 a share, but which was afterward increased to $125,000. Fleischner, Meyer & Co., Foster & Robertson, and other Portland business houses were a good interested in the corporation in a small way.

In 1899 the Booth-Kelley Lumber Company took over this stock by exchanging the Booth-Kelley certificates for the certificates of the Sugar Pine Door & Lumber Company, and merged both into one company. Senator Mitchell owned 75 shares of stock at the time, which he held until 1904, when some Vichigan parties commenced buying up the Booth-Kelley stock, at which time he disposed of all his shares.

Boys' Scout Out

J. I. Jones owned a small sawmill near Cottage Grove in the early '90s. In an effort to enlarge his business by the construction of a more commodious mill at Siskiyou, Or., he became financially embarrassed, and in 1897 the Booth-Kelley people bought him out. With the money realized from his big mill sale in 1899 or 1900 J. I. Jones and J. W. Cook formed a partnership, gathering a tract of about 10,000 acres, mostly railroad land, on Brumbagh River. In 1901 they sold out to the Booth-Kelley Company. The Government's theory in that the Booth-Kelley people furnished the money to Cook & Jones with which to purchase this land, whereas the reverse is the case. We never did want them to get hold of our own holding right under our nose.

The percentage of timber land owned by the Booth-Kelley Company is small, as compared to other lumbering concerns. It is safe to say that 70 per cent of our holdings are embraced in odd-numbered sections, the title to which was derived through the Oregon & California wagon road grant. We probably own 185,000 acres in Oregon altogether, a great deal of which is located in Eastern Oregon, and has no bearing whatever upon the timber situation, as it is mostly grazing land. We still retain ground 20,000 to 25,000 acres in the Cascade forest reserve, out of an original ownership there of 40,000 acres.

BIG OFFER FOR DOUGLAS TIMBER

The Oakland Owl says, a few residents of this city have been offered from $1800 to $2000 for their timber claims near Oakland. Timber in Southern Oregon has a commercial valuation the same as elsewhere. Speculators may claim the land fraud investigations are ruining the timber business, but the low prices will not last long, no matter who is innocent or guilty of acquiring timber unlawfully. Perhaps some companies and individuals have violated the laws, but we fail to see where these acts have anything to do with hundreds of good citizens who have government deeds for their timber lands.

Ojala News

Gardening the order of the day. Grain of all kinds looking fine. Goat shearing is about through. The yield of Mohair is very good this season. Fruit trees heavily loaded and upon examination we find it not injur'd by the frost. Grass is excellent and stock of all kinds is doing exceedingly well. No buyers for our surplus cattle as yet.

James Byron, Jr., contemplates a trip into Southern Oregon mines soon. Jimmy, as he is more familiarly known, has fitted himself as an assayer. In this he has had considerable experience in Nevada and also Alaska.

Geo. Wells of Montana, is still here though he intends leaving for that state again soon. He regrets returning to his adopted state, being that this is his birth state and most of his relatives are here.

John Friend, after spending the winter here with his brother, William, returned Friday to Southern Oregon, where he will probably remain during the summer and will return here again the coming fall.

J. W. Farland and his son, William, are engaged in building a sawmill. This season he intends to install a wood saw and chop mill, and as soon as they can, put in turning laths. We believe and hope they may be successful with their enterprise.

An effort is being made here for subscription in aid of the county for the exhibits at the Lewis and Clark, with poor success we regret to say, as we think every one interested should do what they could in aid of exhibits for our county. We could, if properly represented, show as good stock, farm productions, fruits, minerals, etc. as any in the state, and to display them will require finance.

Best and Most Popular.

"Mothers buy it for croupy children, railroad men buy it for severe coughs and elderly people buy it for a gripple," says Moore Bros., Eldon, Iowa. We sell more of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy than any other kind. It seems to have taken the lead over several other good brands." There is no question but this medicine is the best that can be procured for coughs and colds, whether it be a child or an adult that is afflicted. It always cures and cures quickly. Sold by A. C. Marsters & Co.
