Mrs. Jack Rabbit: "Now, children, you must look your best and be good bunnies. The president has come all the way from Washington to see what a fine growing family we have."

People Talked About

CHARLES E. TOWNSEND of Michigan awoke to find himself famous by reason of his name being attached to the most important bill passed by the Fifty-ninth congress...

CHARLES E. TOWNSEND

Mr. Townsend was re-elected to the Fifty-ninth congress. He is forty-eight years of age, was born on a farm near Jackson, Mich., and studied at Michigan university.

"Papa," said the son of Charles A. Edwards, secretary of the Democratic congressional committee, "why am I a Democrat?"

"Who wants to know?" asked Mr. Edwards sulkily.

"The teacher," he replied.

"Well," said Mr. Edwards, "you tell the teacher you are a Democrat because you possess the God given faculty of being rolled in the dust and kicked and cuffed, of rising and declaring to the world, 'Well, we lost this time, but we will win in 1908.'"

Senator Frederick T. Dubois of Idaho, who has been a prominent figure in the Smoot investigation and is an old time enemy of the Mormons, is one of four brothers, the others being William, Lincoln and Kilbourne, who as boys were nicknamed Will, Link and Kill.

The senator is known as a joker. Last summer some one in Idaho gave his baby a dog. It was a mongrel, but the attachment between the child and the puppy was so great that the latter was brought on to Washington. One day the pup followed the senator to the capital.

"What kind of a dog is that, Dubois?" asked Senator Bailey.

"That? That's a fishhound," Senator Dubois told him. "Why, that's the finest breed of dogs we have in Idaho. Every morning that dog goes down to a trout stream and brings in a trout when we are in Idaho. He never fails."

"He must be a wonderful animal," agreed Senator Burrows.

"Wonderful doesn't half describe that dog," Senator Dubois continued. "Why, one morning we had no fish in the house, and what do you think that dog did? Why, he went out and brought in a can of sardines."

Senator Samuel Douglas McEnery of Louisiana, who, though a Democrat, declared himself a supporter of President Roosevelt's programme for regulating railroad rates, has been twice governor of Louisiana and also chief justice of the Louisiana supreme court.

He is a native of the state, was born in 1837, is a graduate of the United States Naval academy and of the University of Virginia and in the civil war was a Confederate lieutenant under Magruder. He succeeded N. C. Blanchard in the senate in 1896 and was re-elected in 1902. Senator McEnery is very deaf.

Recently a correspondent for a New Orleans paper sent him his card in to him, and the senator came out into the lobby in response to it.

"Good afternoon," said the correspondent. "Is there any news today?"

"What's that?" asked McEnery, putting his hand to his ear.

"Have you any news?"

"Yes," said the senator; "I think I have just one." He reached into his pocket, took out a cigar, handed it to the amazed correspondent and stalked away. When the senator reached his seat he turned to Senator Pettus and said: "What do you think of the news of that New Orleans correspondent? Why, he called me away from my work here to get me to give him a cigar!"

Senator George C. Perkins of California got his start in life through running steamboats. He landed in the Golden State as a lad of twelve and for several years was employed in a grocery store. He managed to save up $500. One day he found the ferry-boat which was operated across a neighboring stream stuck on a sand bar. The owner was disheartened and talked of selling out. "How much would you take for the boat as it lies?" inquired young Perkins.

"A thousand dollars and not a cent less," was the reply.

Perkins drew his $500 out of the bank, succeeded in borrowing $300 more, and before sundown the ferry-boat was his. He had to cut away the sand bar by his own labor, but the venture proved successful and after a time he sold out for $3,000. Then he bought a store and some years later found himself in a position to purchase the controlling interest in an ocean steamship company.

Senator Perkins tells a story of a scene in a courtroom on the Pacific coast when he was arrested for robbery. He vehemently asserted his innocence even after he had been convicted by a jury.

"May the Almighty strike me dead on this spot if I am not innocent!" he shouted.

The judge waited for a minute or two, then said: "Well, perhaps, as Providence has not interfered I will take a hand and sentence you to three years at hard labor."

Andrew Carnegie is very free with his money, but he has for years made it a rule not to sign notes. He says he can pay cash when he has any obligations to settle or wishes to accommodate a friend by a loan. As a witness at the trial of Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick in Cleveland he testified concerning notes which she negotiated at banks on the strength of his supposed signature.

Mr. Carnegie likes to have his little joke as well as anybody. Some time ago the members of the Iron and Steel Institute of Great Britain were visiting the United States, and the great steel magnate was with them during their stay in Washington. A local reporter approached a short, well-groomed gentleman wearing the badge of the institution, and the following conversation occurred:

"I beg pardon," said the reporter, "but would you kindly give me your opinion concerning the iron and steel industry of the United States? How does it compare with the progress made in your country?"

"You Americans are wonderful people," responded the visitor. "Do you know, although the members of the institute have not yet seen very much of the work in this country, we are constantly scratching our heads to keep up with you."

The conversation continued in this strain for some moments until the reporter, flushed with the apparent success of his efforts to get an interview, requested the stranger's name. The gentleman handed the inquirer a card and hurried away. It bore the name "Andrew Carnegie."

President Samuel Spencer of the Southern railway opposes government supervision of railway rates, but says he would like to see rebates abolished. He is credited with knowing more about the details of railway management than any other man in the country, and J. Pierpont Morgan, whose partner he was in the years of the trust in his judgment. Measured by his inches, Mr. Spencer is a small man for a big position. Short, wiry and a bundle of energy, he has come to be considered one of the giants in the world of industry.

Besides being president of the Southern he is the executive head of five other roads and a director in several more. Naturally he is a busy man. When he was in the firm of Morgan, DeLox & Co. he was in much demand for consultation on railway projects. A man with 35,000 acres of coal land to sell, 600,000,000 in value, visited Mr. Morgan's office in New York after day to strike a bargain and was invariably at last forbidden to do so by Mr. Spencer. Taking the hint, he called on Mr. Spencer three times a day for three weeks, being always informed by some understrapper that Mr. Spencer was not in. One day he camped beside the door until he saw Mr. Spencer enter the office, then landed in his card. "Mr. Spencer is not in town and"—"Here, boy, you just present that card and tell Samuel Spencer that my time is as valuable as his. I want one minute by the watch and no more." "You understand, sir?" He was invited to enter. Watch in hand, he stated his business without needless indirection and when the minute was up started out. Mr. Spencer begged him not to be in a hurry and kept him there half an hour talking over.

Mr. Spencer was born in Georgia fifty-eight years ago and is a graduate both of the University of Georgia and the University of Virginia. He started in railroad engineering as a rodmans and worked his way up.
