WHAT IT COSTS TO "HIT" TRAIL

Ten Dollars and Fifty Cents to See All Sights at Exposition. Detailed Expenses.

Portland, June 1.—"How much will it cost to see everything on the Trail?" is the natural question asked by thousands of people. They want to see all the shows if they are financially able to do so. To "hit" the Trail, and "hit" it from one end to the other, without passing up a single attraction, will cost less than $12, and there are about 40 shows on the Trail.

Then, again, if a person desires to "blow" himself to see how much money he can spend on concessions without visiting or indulging in any of the shows or attractions more than once, he would find it impossible to spend more than $10. Of course, if he wanted to ride in an electric launch all day, or be pushed around the grounds in a roller chair from morning to night, $10 would not last him more than a few hours.

Take a man who comes to Portland to see the Exposition with the determination of visiting and seeing everything of interest, notwithstanding the cost. It will cost him 50 cents to obtain admission into the Fair grounds. Then, being fatigued, he will allow himself to be pushed about the grounds in a roller chair for about an hour.

Then he will procure a reserve seat and listen to the band playing in the grandstand as long as he desires. Feeling like a little stupid from arising early, he takes a ride on an electric launch. Being ignorant of the notable events arranged for each day, he will buy an official programme. He will also purchase an official guide.

About this time he will turn towards the Trail. Taking them as they come, he will visit attraction after attraction. About this time he will be ready to shoot the chutes. After wandering around a while he spies a shooting gallery and tries a few shots at moving targets. Then he will hunt out the life-saving exhibit and rent and buy reserved seat, also purchasing an official catalogue to take home with him as a souvenir of the Exposition.

He remembers that he greatly enjoyed his ride on the lake, so he turns his footsteps to the landing and hires a gondola. Tiring of that and in need of exercise, he procures a rowboat and skims the waters for an hour. Desiring to secure a better view of the Exposition, he ascends in the captive balloon.

He will visit the Cario Theater and take a ride on the hunched back of the camel. Then he will try his horse-riding on a donkey. By this time he has seen all the concessions and is out just exactly $10.50, which includes his admission fee to the grounds.

As a matter of fact, it would be impossible for a person to visit all the shows and attractions at the Exposition in even two or three days. Very few of the shows are of short duration. It has been estimated that it would take considerably more than two days to attend and stay to the close of every attraction on the Trail alone. Of course, many of the visitors will find shows that do not appeal to their sense of humor or enjoyment, and will not go in.

Maurice Blanchard, inventor of the Improved Mincal smelter, spent several days in Roseburg, this week on his way to Grants Pass to superintend the building of a custom smelter of his patent at that place. He says the Rogue River Mining & Smelting Company with a capital stock of $100,000, has been incorporated by J. C. Probstel, C. L. Probstel, D. R. Snowgoose, W. T. Fleck, H. A. Corless, B. A. Williams, at Grants Pass. The site has been selected and secured at Savage Rapids, six miles east of Grants Pass and work will begin at once.

Governor Pardee and party of California passed through this city last night on their way to Portland to be present at the opening of the Exposition today. On the same train was a party of the traffic managers.

Sheriff H. T. McClellan, Clerk Z. N. Agee and Assessor Geo. W. Staley left on last night's overland for Portland to be present at the opening of the Lewis & Clark fair.

ROSEBURG BOY AT WASHINGTON

High School Student Writes Entertainingly in Regard to His Long Journey.

Following is an interesting write-up of his trip across the continent by Harry Hildeburn, who was chosen by the Roseburg High School to represent it at the inauguration of President Roosevelt:

The first thing I discovered after leaving Roseburg was that the berth was too short, but this did not trouble me long, for the next thing I heard was the porter's melodious voice informing me that I would "have to hurry" or I could not get dressed in time for Portland.

I got out of Portland about 9 o'clock and had the rear car all to myself. The scenery up the Columbia was fine and I reached the Dulles about noon, where I met a comical Dutch "kidd" that I used to chum with at Mt. Angel college. After leaving the Dulles the scenery was not worth speaking of, all there was to be seen was sand hills and sage brush. This continued until I reached Ogden, Utah, when the country began to take on a brighter aspect. I was in Ogden for two hours, where we lost the first of the three hours we lost on our trip to Washington. I walked down the street about 15 blocks and found it to be a very pretty place.

The next place of any consequence was Cheyenne, Wyo., where I lost my private car. While going through Nebraska the sand was so fine that it would beat through the double windows so bad that about every half hour one could scrape off a handful of sand from the window sill.

I crossed the Missouri river east of Omaha. It was a little more than twice as wide as the Omipqua.

I arrived in Chicago about 9 o'clock p. m. and was obliged to take a cab from the C & N. W. to the Pacific depot. Here I wired to Pittsburg for accommodations from there to Washington. I was in Chicago three hours and took a little street car ride down the city, but did not see much as it was night. After leaving Chicago I got acquainted with State Senator Coe and his wife, of Portland, who were also going to Washington. We arrived at Pittsburg about 6 o'clock and after dinner we walked around through the city until about 10, when we returned to the depot and found difficulty in getting standing room in a depot that covers over a block. We were informed by a ticket agent that there were over 125,000 people to go to Washington that night and about one-half of which were colored.

There were trains running every 10 minutes to and from Washington for two days, and out of all this rush there was only one accident, which happened on the train behind us. 10 soldiers being in our car, we reached Washington the next day, Friday, about 10 a. m. The streets were crowded and it was all one crowd that ever assembled in Washington.

The inaugural ball was also on the evening of the inauguration and was held in the pension building, which is the largest brick building in the world. Here the colored servants could be seen dancing along side the president, in fact anyone could go who had the price of admission which was $5.

The next day, Sunday, I spent most of the time at Fort Meyer, Arlington and the National cemetery, which are in Virginia. While at Arlington I went through the mansion of Gen. Robert E. Lee, which is owned by the government, and has been turned into a sort of a museum and is filled with old relics from the south.

On my way out I passed the residence of Francis Scott Key, Gen. Grant and also the Dewey home, which cost $50,000. It is a three story building and has a frontage of about 20 feet. It is of brick and has no yard, it is not even on a corner. I also passed the residence of the different legislators, that of the Chinese being the most handsome.

The next morning I visited the Capitol, which is situated on top of Capitol Hill, 97 feet above the Potomac. The central building is constructed of sandstone, painted white. The extensions are of marble. The entire length of the capitol is 751 feet, width 350 feet; area over 3 1/2 acres. The capitol consists of a main or central building, from which arises the dome, and two extensions, north and south, connected with the central building by corridors. It has three stories, basement, principal story and attic, and the roof is surmounted on all sides by an ornamental balustrade.

In the central building are the rotunda, the supreme court room, committee rooms and the National Statuary Hall. The north extension contains the senate chamber, and is known as the senate extension. The south extension contains the hall of representatives, and is designated as the house extension. The dome terminates in a lantern, which is surmounted by the statue of Freedom, towering 307 1/2 feet above the top of the dome. The dome is of iron and weighs 8,900,200 pounds. It is so constructed that the variations of temperature in iron plates expand and contract, "like the holding and unholding of a hilly." The statue is of bronze and is 19 1/2 feet high, and represents armed Liberty.

DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The district conference for the Willamette district of the M. E. Church, South, convened in this city this morning at 9 o'clock. Immediately after the devotional exercises led by the presiding elder, C. L. Casland, of Corvallis, H. C. Brown was elected secretary and the business of the conference was taken up. Reports were read and the various committees appointed. G. H. Gibbs, financial secretary and agent of the Milton College was present, and introduced to a conference. Services were held at the church last evening, Rev. H. C. Brown occupying the pulpit. At the morning services at 11 o'clock today, Rev. A. J. Starnum, occupied the pulpit. There will be services again at 8 o'clock this evening. Conference will be in session until Saturday evening. Following are the clerical delegates present: Rev. C. L. Casland, of Corvallis, presiding elder; Rev. H. C. Brown, of Medford, secretary; Rev. H. W. Coward, of Portland; R. D. Gardner, Junction City; P. A. Moses, Corvallis; J. Starnum, Rev. Williams, J. A. Allison, G. W. Honsholder, T. P. Hayes, Myrtle Creek; R. A. Ragon, H. C. Allen, Roseburg. Lay delegates: M. P. Morse, Jas. Heron and W. A. Buchanan, Corvallis; J. D. Baughman, T. L. Weaver, Myrtle Creek; W. S. Branch, Oak Creek; E. Cooper, Junction City; H. J. Wilkins, C. W. Kirk and W. L. Cobb, Roseburg.

There were 201 all told. We again the next day at 10:30 for the parade, but things went so slow that we were obliged to stand on the side streets until about 3 o'clock. While waiting we got hungry, a pie wagon came along and we relieved it of about 200 pies. The Harvard boys also participated in a similar feast, and it was good as a circus to see about 300 fellows all eating pie at the same time. The parade took place on Pennsylvania Avenue along which were built seats in every possible place where space would permit. The price of a seat was $2.50 and $5. This money went toward the expenses of the inauguration. We passed the president about 5 o'clock. He raised his hat and smiled. We finished the parade about 7 o'clock and after dinner we went to the fireworks which were beautiful, after which I retired. I believe, the finest in the United States.

No one but soldiers were permitted to see the president take the oath of office on account of so many being killed in the rush for a glance at the president on former occasions.

It was said to be one of the largest
